ACCORD POSSIBLE ON REPARATIONS IF ALLIES ACCEPT YOUNG'S FIGURES

American Presents New Offer Approved by Germans, Said to Involve Concessions.

AMOUNT REPORTED TO BE SIX BILLIONS

This Is $4,000,000,000 Less Than Allies Asked for — France and Belgium Swayed by Public Opinion

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, May 4.—Solution of the problem of German reparations seemed tonight to depend upon whether the allies are willing to accept figures proposed by Owen D. Young of the United States and accepted by the German experts.

What those figures are, remains the strict secret of the negotiators. But according to the best information they involve important concessions from the figures presented by the creditor nations in their memorandum.

After tentative acceptance by the Germans of the figures proposed by Young, representatives of the Allied Powers were assembled today in the Hotel George V to consider them. What they concluded is not known, but there are many reasons for believing that they deferred acceptance of the proposal.

Young's figures were prepared several days ago, and, according to American sources, were the normal consequence of his memorandum which preceded the German offer.

Concession Probably Asked for.

The best information available tonight gave the figures as about half way between the allied demands and the German offer on annuities. American expert circles deny that the figures are half way.

In any case it is supposed in other allied circles that Young's proposal demands an additional sacrifice on the part of France and her allies. It is upon this that rests the crucial point of the negotiations.

If France and her allies are willing to make sufficient deductions from their reparations claims then an accord is quite possible.

Further concessions from the French and the Belgians, it is pointed out, depend upon public opinion. The French delegates consider that they have gone to the limit permitted by public sentiment in France, where nobody is willing to concede that payments on war debts should exceed receipts from Germany for the devastation of invaded French territories.

Speculation on the German offer proceeds on the assumption that it seeks to induce the allies to reduce their demand about four billions.

Six Instead of Ten Billions.

The German offer, calculated at 5 per cent interest plus nine-tenths of 1 per cent for amortization, has a present value of 26,000,000,000 gold marks (about $6,240,000,000). The allied demand amounted roughly to 39,000,000,000 marks, totaling, when costs of the army of Rhine occupation and redemption of Belgian currency is added, about 41,000,000,000 marks (about $10,000,000,000).

The German offer is based on the assumption that the proposed international bank would earn profits sufficient to pay the annuities from the thirty-seventh to the fifty-eighth year. This period represents the gap in spread of payments between previous allied and German offers.

Deeply involved in German consideration of the proposals is the problem of commercialization. The Germans insist that in acceptance of allied demands for extensive commercialization of the debt is the seed of danger to the German financial structure, since under the Dawes plan Germany is protected from making injurious transfers. Commercialization, of course, would make such protection impossible, since bonds and their interest must be met or German credit seriously impaired.

The new plan would relieve Germany of part of the burden the creditor nations want to place upon it, yet the allied debts would be paid. If the bank's profits were inadequate, it was said, there was always the chance that the United States by that time would revise the last of the debt payments downward.

It was explained that, if one con-

MEXICAN REBEL WITH $700,000 HELD AS ABSCONDER

Salvador Ateca and Secretary Arrested in New York After Forfeiting Bail in Kansas City —U. S. Official and Attorney Also Accused.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 4.—A former paymaster in the Mexican rebel army and his secretary, who slipped through the fingers of the law in Kansas City, Mo., were arrested here today had a black bag containing approximately $700,000, with which officials suspect they were absconding to Spain. With them were found a United States Government official and a former government employe who were charged with conspiring to assist the flight.

Salvador Ateca, the former rebel paymaster, until recently held the gambling concessions in the Mexican State of Chihuahua with the rebel Gen. Marcelo Caraveo, former Governor of Chihuahua. His secretary is Antonio Haqueo.

The Americans arrested are Russell Mathews, assistant director of immigration at El Paso, Tex., and W. H. Fryer, former assistant United States Attorney at El Paso.

Ateca and Maqueo were arrested in Kansas City Wednesday by secret service operatives as fugitives from justice from El Paso. Their bail was set at $5000 each, which they promptly posted in cash out of the black bag and kept on traveling.

Thinking, officials surmise, that they had outwitted the secret service agents Ateca and Maqueo, with Matthews and Fryer, took quarters in a Broadway hotel awaiting a chance to leave the country.

This afternoon Assistant United States Attorney George Mintzer, several detectives and a group of Secret Service men walked into their room with a pass key.

There are two charges against Ateca at El Paso. He is assused of violating the presidential neutrality proclamation by smuggling an airplane to the Mexican rebel forces across the border, and there is a civil action filed in the Texas city by the Republic of Mexico and the state of Chihuahua seeking to regain funds he is alleged to have appropriated from the Juarez city treasury.

Pending hearing on extradition to face these charges the Ateca and Maqueo were held without bail by a United States Commissioner. The Americans, were allowed to give $2500 bail, but this time no one was allowed to post the bail out of the black bag.

Among the items in the black bag were $76,497 in United States currency; a bag of Mexican gold coins of a large but not precisely determined amount; 21 certificates of deposit on the First National Bank of El Paso, drawn to the order of Leo P. Shuster and indorsed by him and Ateca, amounting to $104,098.27; a check to Ateca's order on the Canadian Bank of Commerce for $14,661; another on the same bank for $750; a certificate of deposit on the First National Bank of El Paso, directed to the International Banking Co. of Madrid, Spain, for 100,000 pesos; certificates of deposit on the El Paso bank drawn to Ateca's credit for 200,000 pesos, for $2978 and for 50,000 and 60,000 pesos; two checks on the State National Bank of El Paso to Ateca's order for 25,000 pesos each; and a certificate for 550 shares of stock of the Altar & Cananea Mining Co.

United States District Attorney Tuttle was informed that 14 trunks the prisoners checked in Kansas City were awaiting disposition at the Pennsylvania station here and said he would have them impounded.

RAYON PLANTS PLAN TO REOPEN

But Strike Leaders Say They Doubt Workers Will Appear.

ELIZABETHTON, Tenn., May 4.—Dr. Arthur Mothwurf, president of the American Bemberg and American Glanzstoff corporations, whose rayon plants near here have been closed since April 15 by a strike of the 5500 employes, announced today that operations would be resumed Monday.

Union leaders announced that if the plants chose to reopen Monday they would cease their efforts toward an amicable settlement and "would not be responsible for anything that might occur." They expressed doubt that enough workers could be obtained to enable operation with even a skeleton crew. Two companies of the Tennessee National Guard remain on duty at the plants.

EXCHANGES SHOTS WITH ROBBER NEAR CROWD ON GRAND

Auto Rental Firm Manager at 3524 Washington Av. Fires at Holdup Man, Who Escapes by Taxicab.

Near the crowded intersection of Grand and Washington boulevards, Ray Brazee, manager of the Hertz Drivurself Station, 3524 Washington boulevard, fired two shots at a fleeing robber, who replied with five shots from the running board a moving taxicab, at 10:45 o'clock last night. One of the shots struck the rear of the taxicab, but the robber escaped with several hundred dollars in cash.

Brazee was alone in his office when the robber entered with a drawn pistol, ordered him to raise his hands and scooped a handful of bills from the cash drawer. As the man ran out, leaping to the running board of a passing taxicab, Brazee followed with a revolver and fired at the robber. The machine disappeared eastward on Washington.

The cab was later recovered by police at the intersection of Channing and Bell avenues. A bullet hole had been drilled in the rear.

Cab Stolen From Driver.

The cab had been taken a short time before from William Funk, a chauffeur for the Columbia Cab Co., who was kidnaped, robbed and bound to a tree in St. Louis County by two "fares" he picked up at Hamilton avenue and Delmar boulevard.

Funk told police he took the two men to 6900 Plymouth avenue, at their instructions, where he was forced at the point of a revolver to retire to the passenger's compartment of the cab. Then the machine was driven to a point on Lucas and Hunt road, near St. Charles road, where he was ordered out, robbed of $9 and tied to a tree by his hands and feet.

The machine was driven away. After a time Funk succeeded in freeing his hands sufficiently to reach his pocket knife, with which he cut the rope.

Grocer Disarms Robber.

A young man who attempted to hold up Scott Cherry in Cherry's grocery at 218 South Taylor avenue last night, made the mistake of hitting the grocer in the jaw after he had already clubbed him to the floor.

Cherry took a pistol away from the would-be robber, chased him out of the store, and fired at him, the only bullet in the weapon. All because he had been hit in the jaw.

"It made me mad," he told a reporter. "The young fellow came in

COMMITTEE CAN'T AGREE ON RIGHT OF MELLON TO SEAT

Votes 8 to 7 for and 11 to 4 Against Disqualifying Him, but No Motion Has Required Majority.

WILL MAKE THREE REPORTS TO SENATE

Borah for Change in Law—Walsh to Offer Testimony Indicating Secretary's Activity in Trade.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 4.—The right of Andrew W. Mellon to serve as Secretary of the Treasury, although he is a stockholder in various enterprises was upheld today by eight of the 17 members of the Senate Judiciary Committee, but a poll failed to develop a majority and three separate reports will be submitted to the Senate for its decision.

Fifteen members of the committee were recorded tonight. They divided 8 to 7 in favor of the report of Senator Steiwer (Rep.), Oregon, holding that Mellon's stockholdings do not violate the statute forbidding the Secretary of the Treasury to carry on trade or commerce.

Sixteen members were recorded on the motion of Senator Walsh (Dem.), Montana, proposing an open investigation of Mellon's relations with the companies in which he is a stockholder. The vote stood 9 to 7 against that course.

The report of Chairman Norris (Rep.), Nebraska, that Mellon as a stockholder was disqualified from continuing in the post he has held for eight years stood rejected by a vote of 11 to 4.

The four Democratic Senators absent from the meeting, all but one of whom was polled later, are: Gill, Washington; Ashurst, Arizona; Caraway, Arkansas, and Stephens, Mississippi.

Walsh Proposal Beaten.

Ashurst indicated he would not vote on any of the reports but would oppose the motion to have the committee conduct hearings, thus making a majority of the committee against the Walsh motion. Stephens, the only unrecorded member of the committee is absent from the city because of sickness in his family and has not participated in the discussions.

With the reports coming before the Senate next week, Senator McKellar, (Dem.) Tenn., author of the resolution ordering the inquiry into the right of Mellon to hold office, announced he would bring the question to a decision by a motion to adopt the report of Senator Norris.

Walsh, who asked for the open investigation, produced before the committee a deposition of Secretary Mellon, relating to a visit by him to Canada in 1925 in his interests as a stockholder in the Aluminum Co. of America. He said he intended to put that evidence before the Senate.

Borah for Change in Law.

Senator Borah (Rep.), Idaho, and Senator King (Dem.), Utah, are preparing a third report. They maintain Mellon's holding of stock does not disqualify him, just as the supporters of the Steiwer report contend, but they add that any activity in business would disqualify him.

"My view," said Senator Borah, "is that the ownership of stock does not of itself render a person ineligible to this office.

"But while the ownership of stock does not of itself render the person ineligible, any activity or concern in carrying on the business in which he is a stockholder would be a violation of the law. The Secretary of the Treasury under the statute is compelled to divorce himself completely from advising, counseling or directing the business.

"I take the view also that the statute ought to be amended and made more specific and more adapted to modern business. The statute was adopted 140 years ago and it is indefinite in the light of present business methods."

Detailed Vote on Reports.

The vote for the Steiwer report follows: For—Steiwer, Oregon; Gillett, Massachusetts; Deneen, Illinois; Robinson, Indiana; Waterman, Colorado; Burton, Ohio, and Hastings, Delaware, Republicans, and Overman, North Carolina, Democrat. Against—Norris, Borah and Blaine of Wisconsin, Republicans; Walsh, Caraway, Arkansas; King and Dill, Washington, Democrats.

The vote against the Walsh resolution showed the same lineup. Those supporting the report of

HOOVERS PICNIC AT ROADSIDE ON OUTING IN AUTO

Drive to Annapolis and Back Visiting Historic House on the Way.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 4.—President and Mrs. Hoover, following a custom of years of spending in the country as many Saturday afternoons as possible, motored through Maryland to Annapolis this afternoon, lunched beside the roadway and returned to the White House at 8:30 p. m.

Accompanied by Mark Sullivan, newspaper writer, and Mrs. Sullivan, who have gone on such trips with them before, the President and Mrs. Hoover left the White House shortly before 2 o'clock. Plans for the trip had been guarded carefully and the White House correspondents were requested to stay behind, as the President was anxious to avoid crowds and curious spectators.

The party returned to Washington by the Defense Highway.

POPE BLESSES U. S. AT END OF AUDIENCE TO BOSTON GROUP

Pontiff "Moved Profoundly" by Delegation of 250 Led by Cardinal O'Connell.

By the Associated Press.

ROME, May 4.—The United States in general was blessed by Pope Pius XI today at the conclusion of an audience granted to 250 pilgrims, led by Cardinal O'Connell of Boston. It was the first big American delegation of the year. He spoke to them for 20 minutes and the audience lasted three-quarters of an hour.

Referring to the visitors as "our most welcome guests," the Pope said in English, "You are very welcome." Then in Italian he added, "Your presence here moves me profoundly. To think you have come so far to seek the home of the common father and give proof of your devotion to the vicar of Christ and His church. It is a holy deed you are accomplishing by this pilgrimage."

At the conclusion of a hymn, the Pope smiled and said in English, "Very, very well." Someone in the front rank proposed three cheers for the Pope, which were given lustily.

110,000 NEW YORK BUILDING TRADESMEN GET 5-DAY WEEK

Trades Council Agrees to Make Effort to End Electrical Craft War With Employers.

NEW YORK, May 4.—By the terms of an agreement made today by the Building Trades Employers' Association and the Building Trades Council, 110,000 building tradesmen receive the five-day week without loss of pay, effective Aug. 24.

In return, the Building Trades Council agrees "to use every effort to adjust differences in the electrical trade and co-operate with the Building Trades Employers' Association in maintaining peace in the building industry."

The first effect of the agreement is expected to be the return of several hundred craftsmen to jobs they quit in support of Electrical Workers' Union No. 3, which is at war with the Employers' Association and its members who are electrical contractors. The threat of a lockout affecting $150,000,000 in construction now under way and 150,000 tradesmen disappears.

ATTEMPT TO KILL GEN. CALLES AT FETE IN SONORA REPORTED

Gen. Rico Said to Have Disarmed Demented Man, Knife in Hand, Embracing Leader.

By the Associated Press.

NOGALES, Ariz., May 4.—Reports were received by the Nogales Herald from Hermosillo, Sonora, that an attempt was made there last night to assassinate Gen. E. Plutarco Calles, Commander-in-Chief of the Mexican armies and former President of Mexico.

The reported attempt was made at a reception given in honor of Calles. A man said to be mentally unbalanced, the son of the late Rafael Izabel, Governor of Sonora during the Diaz regime, embraced Gen. Calles at the reception, holding in his hand an open knife.

Gen. Rico, who took an important part in the Mazatlan siege, seized the young man, quickly disarmed him and the reception proceeded.

Gen. Calles arrived in Nogales, Sonora, today by airplane from Hermosillo. He was accompanied by Gov. Rodriquez of Lower California.

By the Associated Press.

HAVANA, May 4.—A controversy between members of the Havana Post of the American Legion and proprietors of a new Havana barroom over use of American silver dollars as floor tiling in the saloon was settled today by the removal of the dollars from the floor.

The matter had been referred to the American Embassy here with the request that a formal protest be entered with the Cuban State Department. "Desecration of the American eagle," was the charge.

ROW OVER SISTER OF CURTIS REVIVED BY LONGWORTHS

Speaker and Wife Decline to Attend Dinner Where Mrs. Gann Receives Seat of Honor.

SOCIETY EXPECTED TO FOLLOW EXAMPLE

Open Feud Between Presiding Officers of Legislative Branches May Be Provoked by Action.

By PAUL Y. ANDERSON,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, May 4.—The social war in Washington official circles broke out afresh tonight, when Speaker and Mrs. Alice Roosevelt Longworth desclined to attend a formal dinner at which Mrs. Edward E. Gann, the sister and official hostess of Vice-President Curtis, received the ranking seat among women guests. The dinner was given by Eugene Meyer, retiring Commissioner of the Farm Loan Board.

Mrs. Longworth declined to comment when called on the telephone.

"I am enjoying a quiet evening at home with my husband," she said. "That is all I care to say."

However, it was learned from other sources thaht the action of the Longworths amounted to a declaration that Congressional society does not intend to accept the settlement of Mrs. Gann's status, recentl yreached by the diplomatic corps on the strength of a broad hint from Secretary of State Stimson. Vice-President Curtis had demanded that Mrs. Gann receive the social status customarily accorded the wife of the Vice-President.

Local Society Not Bound.

The diplomatic corps, in reluctantly announcing its ruling, took pains to explain that it applied only to social events sponsored by members of the corps, and was not intended to be binding on local officials. It is now evident that the leaders of the Congressional set have taken the corps at its word, and purpose to enforce a different ranking on Mrs. Gann, insofar as Congressional functions are concerned.

Tonight's incident has additional interest from the fact that it is likely to provoke an open feud between the presiding officer of the House and the presiding officier of the Senate. Vice-President Curtis had exhibited unusual bitterness over the questioning of his isster's status, and no one who has the slightest acquaintance with the daughter of the older Roosevelt believes that she will surrender. She has long been the unchallenged leader of Congresional socety, due not only to her illustrious family history, but also to her brillant personality.

Hoover Dinner Is Discussed.

The social waters of the Capital also are disturbed over the dinner which President and Mrs. Hoover gave at the White House last night to Prince and Madame De Ligne, the Belgian Ambassador and his wife. The honor was interpreted as the President's reply to a series of attacks on the Ambassador which have recently appeared in the Washington Post, owned by Ned McLean. The furor provoked by the attacks caused Secretary Stimson to issue a statement declaring that the Post's attitude did not represent the attitude of the State Department.

The Post's attacks on Pirnce De Ligne are reported to have occurred almost immediately after an unpleasant scene at a reception, where the Prince is said to have taken exception to the gusto with which the publisher entered into the spirit of the occasion.

TEN KILLED IN RELIGIOUS RIOTS

Clashes of Moslems and Hindus in Bombay Renewed.

By the Associated Press.

BOMBAY, May 4.—Fighting between Moslems and Hindus today and yesterday had resulted up to this evening in the killing of 10 persons and the injury of 180. Because the continued assaults and stabbings the curfew regulation was enforced throughout the city tonight except for the fort area. No one is permitted on the streets from 10 p. m. to 6 a. m.

The Mayor called a meeting of citizens for tomorrow to discuss means of restoring peace. The present rioting over religious differences has not yet attained the proportions of the outbreak last February, when 45 persons were killed and 743 injured.

WOMAN WHO SUED FOR BROKEN TROTH DIES OF POISONING

Miss Helen Mary Quinn Day Before Had Filed $50,000 Suit Against R. F. Miller of East St. Louis

Poison caused the sudden death early yesterday of Miss Helen Mary Quinn, 31 years old, of East St. Louis, who the day before had filed a $50,000 breach-of-promise suit against Robert F. Miller, member of the St. Clair County Board of Supervisors and secretary of the East St. Louis Republican City Committee.

An autopsy was necessary to determine the cause of death and the viscera was sent late yesterday to the Gradwohl Laboratories in St. Louis for analysis to determine the nature of the poison. When the report is received, Coroner Boyne announced, an inquest will be held and an effort made to determine whether the poison was swallowed accidentally or intentionally.

Dr. Leo Madden, Deputy Coroner, who conducted the autopsy, said it showed that death was due to poison taken by swallowing, but that he could not state what kind of poison it was. The chemical analysis is expected tomorrow.

Miller, who is 32, was married March 22 to Miss Marion Nugent, daughter of the late Joseph Nugent, wealthy horse and mule dealer, and they are living with her mother at 1719 North Thirty-eighth street. Miss Quinn, employed at $45 a week as forewoman in a St. Louis department store, lived with her stepfather and mother, Mr. and Mrs. William Dauer, at 1720 Ohio avenue.

Talked to Her Brother.

After returning home from work Friday night, Miss Quinn, seemingly in good spirits, read a newspaper account of her suit and remarked: "This is not so funny as some people seem to think."

She retired at 10:30 o'clock. At 5 o'clock yesterday morning she was heard gasping in her room. Her mother found her bleeding from the mouth. Unable to speak, she was removed to St. Mary's Hospital, where she died. She had been suffering from a throat ailment, her mother said.

Miss Quinn's brother, John, told a reporter that before she died she murmured to him "I wanted to take a bromide, but I think I got mercury." Quinn said there was no trace of any receptacle of poison except a bottle of chloroform, which was in exactly the place he had been accustomed to seeing it in her room and which appeared to him not to have been reduced in volume. There was no odor of chloroform in the room and, reporters were told, no evidence that Miss Quinn had swallowed any of it. Her brother said she had obtained the chloroform two years ago for application to her face when suffering from neuralgia.

Pawned Engagement Ring.

A physician summoned to the house declined to expreess an opinion as to the cause of death.

Miss Quinn's funeral will be at 2 p. m. tomorrow at an undertaking establishment at 2525 State street, with burial in Calvary Cemetery, East St. Louis.

According to her brother, Miss Quinn had pawned her engagement ring at a St. Louis pawnshop.

In her petition, Miss Quinn alleged that Miller in 1924 promised to marry her, and that last Feb. 16 they set the date of their wedding as April 7, but two weeks before that he married Miss Nugent.

COURT GIVES ORDER TO JAIL H. F. SINCLAIR FOR 90 DAYS

Tomorrow Supreme Court Mandate Will Reach Lower Tribunal, Which Will Issue Commitment.

OIL MAN AWAITS CALL IN NEW YORK

He Will Appear Whenever Notified, His Attorney Says, to Serve Term for Contempt of Senate.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 4.—The United States Supreme Court today formally directed the District of Columbia Supreme Court to enforce the three months' jail sentence upon Harry F. Sinclair for his refusal to answer questions asked by the Senate Oil Investigating Committee.

The order of the Supreme Court, which was placed in the mail late this afternoon and on Monday will reach Frank E. Cunningham, clerk of the District of Columbia Supreme Court, is the last judicial step in the commitment of the oil man to prison except the actual imposition of the sentence by Justice William Hitz, who was the trial Judge.

Whether the District Supreme Court on Monday will order the enforcement of the sentence and set the time for Sinclair to begin his jail sentence was not determined today by that court's officials. Several formalities will be necessary before the commitment order can be promulgated.

Upon receipt of the mandate, Cunningham will notify Leo A. Rover, District Attorney, of its arrival. The District Attorney then will advise the oil man's counsel and will present a motion to Justice Hitz asking for the issuance of the commitment order.

Ready to Surrender.

George P. Hoover, counsel for Sinclair, will be called upon to surrender the oil man to the jurisdiction of the court, and, if he should fail to comply, the Federal Marshal will be ordered to arrest Sinclair.

Hoover today did not designate any definite time when Sinclair would surrender to the Court, but said the oil man would "appear when the Court calls for his presence."

He added that Sinclair was now in New York and ready to come to Washington when notified. District Attorney Rover, however, asserted that Sinclair might appear before the Court on Monday.

Jailer Hasn't Picked His Cell.

Meanwhile there was speculation as to what arrangements would be made for the incarceration of Sinclair in the District of Columbia jail. Maj. William L. Peake, superintendent of the jail, said he had made no plans to receive the oil man. "I do not even know in which cell I shall put him when he comes," Peake said.

He added that he could not discuss how Sinclair would be treated during his sentence, but said a recent prisoner who was a millionaire "didn't arouse my curiosity enough to single him out from among the other prisoners."

Under precedents dating back to 1897 Sinclair may ask the jail authorities for a number of favors during his sentence. Elverton R. Chapman, a New York broker, who refused to answer questions of a Senate committee regarding speculations by some Senators in sugar stocks and served a 30-day sentence in May, 1897, had a Persian rug and sumptuous furniture in his cell, and had meals sent in from a hotel during his prison term.

MARION TALLEY SINGS FINAL ROLE WITH METROPOLITAN

Declares She Is Going to Buy Farm Because It Is Only Sane Way to Live.

CLEVELAND, O., May 4.—Marion Talley, Kansas City choir girl who became a grand opera star at the age of 19, sang her final role with the Metropolitan Opera Company here tonight, after four years as a prima donna. Appearing as "Lucia di Lammemoor," she was heard by 8000 persons.

"I do not intend to study for a 'come-back' as was reported in some New York newspapers recently, and I have no plans for marriage," Miss Talley said.

"I am not tired of grand opera but I want to retire and I choose farm life because it seems the only sane way to live—the nearest way back to a simple, natural life."

GENEVA, May 4.—Germany washed her hands of the Preparatory Disarmament Commission today, at least temporarily. Whether she will participate further in the deliberations of the commission depends entirely upon Berlin's reaction to Count von Bernstorff's report.

Russia and China likewise are verging on a withdrawal from further preparatory work, following definite rejection of Moscow's proportional reduction scheme and Nanking's effort to outlaw conscription and compulsory training.

A virtual breakup of the sixth session Preparatory Commission came dramatically today following submission of a Franco-American compromise resolution, which stated: "The Preparatory Commission for the Disarmament Conference, having rejected the system of direct limitation of material in service and in stock, having noted that a system of indirect limitation (limitation of expenditures on material) did not meet the general assent, decided that limitation and the reduction of material must be sought by means of publicity of the expenditures."

Virtual Deadlock Reached.

Which is the equivalent to saying that the Americans, having unalterably opposed the limitation of budgets, and the French, having opposed the direct limitation of war stocks, both delegations have decided to limit nothing at all.

The so-called Franco-American compromise, which failed to get a unanimous vote of approval, besides precipitating Von Bernstorff's declaration, proved distasteful to Lord Cushendun. The British delegate yesterday left Hugh Gibson, the United States delegate, in an exceedingly embarrassing situation when he offered to accept the French demand for a budget limitation. Thus, Americans alone blocked the only remaining method whereby the limitation of war stocks could be effected.

In the night, Count Massigli, the French delegate, decided to make "concessions" to the Americans for having surrendered their demand for direct limitation of war materials, leaving the British again in the lurch.

Remaining Clause Is Void.

Even the publicity feature of the convention, which alone remains, is innocuous. For instance, one French proposal says, "Each country may, if it so desires, show for purposes of information, etc."

Again, the draft of an article which originally was intended to prevent the building up of unlimited air reserves through the employment of military pilots by commercial organizations, now reads: "The high contracting parties undertake not to require of civil aviation undertakings that they should employ personnel especially trained for military purposes."

Practically every article of importance in the completed part of the draft treaty is similarly filled with loopholes.

While giving no indication of what the German course would be in the future, Von Bernstorff plainly indicated to the commission that the usefulness of the German delegation was now at an end, until a plenary disarmament conference is summoned.

Considers Purpose Unfulfilled.

"We have reached the critical moment in our discussions," he said. "The commission was instructed by both the League covenant and the treaties to follow the path leading to appreciable reductions of armaments. While it appears that in some measure naval reductions might be obtainable, you have eliminated most of the essential elements of land disarmament."

Germany would have accepted almost any reduction, no matter how insignificant in the exaggerated armements tof today as the first step. Now the final decisions will rest with the general disarmament conference in which the countries which are not represented on the present commission will also have a chance to speak.

Germany disclaims any further responsibility for the actions of the Preparatory Commission, which will have to take full responsibility itself.

Wants Peoples to Act.

"In view of the gravity of the situation, I appeal to all countries to listen more and more to the insistence of the peoples and give definite instructions to further delegations," Von Bernstorff said.

Commenting privately later, Bernstorff revealed his disappointment. He broadly hinted that the Berlin Cabinet might consider further co-operation with the Preparatory Commission worthless.

However, there is a possibility that the present body will pass out of existance anyhow after the separate assembly reviews its work.

The Commission has failed to make any material progress toward disarmament. The way for possible reduction on the seas has been opened up, but land armaments will only be limited. Monday will bring Gibson's final declaration on naval questions, after which there will be an indefinite adjournment.

Cherry, who is 49 years old and lives at 5816 DeGiverville avenue, was treated at a physician's office for a laceration of the scalp.

$50 Loot in Grocery Holdup.

Two armed robbers held up a chain grocery at 6400 St. Louis avenue last night, taking $30 from J. F. Brown, the manager, and $20 from Arthur Huck, a butcher. They drove away in an automobile operated by a confederate.

A. E. Bauman, proprietor of a pharmacy at Rosebury and DeMun avenues, was robbed of $100 early last night by a young man who threatened him with a pistol and forced him to give him the contents of the cash register.

Bauman was alone in his store at the time.

Mexia, Tex., Man, 34, Says Woman Attacked Him in Quarrel and Parent Aided Her.

By the Associated Press.

MEXIA, Tex., May 4.—Lloyd Davidson, 34 years old, son of W. H. Davidson, signed a confession here today that he had killed his father and stepmother, Mrs. Ella D. Davidson, with a stick of wood Friday at their country home, then had set fire to the house.

The confession said Lloyd Davidson was at his father's home when a quarrel arose. The stepmother hit the youth on the head with a flashlight and he grappled with her. The father then interfered and Lloyd struck him with a stick of wood, then beat Mrs. Davidson to death.

WOMAN WHO SUED FOR BROKEN TROTH DIES OF POISONING

Miss Nugent eloped in 1920 with her father's chauffeur, Samuel Strohm, but later divorced him and obtained restoration of her maiden name.

Miller Can't Be Reached.

When Miller was served with notice of the breach of promise suit Friday evening, he also was served with formal notice that Miss Quinn intended to sue him to recover $10,000 which she alleged she had loaned him. Miller told the process server, Deputy Sheriff Al Burkhaus: "She hasn't got any case against me. She's all wrong." Miller later told reporters there were no grounds for the litigation. After Miss Quinn's death, he could not be reached, it being stated at the Nugent home that he had left the city.

Miss Quinn had told her mother, Mrs. Dauer, the latter said, that she had advanced $10,000 to Miller to finance his political campaigns, to pay for an automobile in which he formerly took her to work, and to pay for some of his personal expenses. Miss Quinn told her mother she had notes to show for the loans.

Whether the litigation against Miller will be carried on, in view of Miss Quinn's death, will be for decision by the administrator of her estate, her attorney said.

"Miller and my daughter had been going together for seven years," Mrs. Dauer told a Post-Dispatch reporter. "She always expected to marry him. Why, he ate meals at our house three or four times a week. They were together all the time. He drove her to work nearly every morning for two years.

Had Her Trousseau Made.

"April 7, their wedding date, was her birthday, and he had given her a ring. She had her trousseau all made up. Now she will be buried in what was to have been her wedding dress.

"He knew Miss Nugent even before he went with my daughter, but he said he had stopped going with her. His marriage to her came as a complete surprise to my daughter. He used to bring gifts to my daughter, and to me too, and I considered him a son.

"On my daughter's birthday, she received a box of American Beauty roses. There was no card attached, but my daughter found out from the florist that Miller had sent them. He called on my daughter three times after his marriage, but they did not go out together. He said he was sorry he had treated her that way, but he felt that his affection for Miss Nugent was greater."

Miller and Miss Quinn's brother, John, formerly were partners in a cigar store. Miller was defeated for City Commissioner in 1927, but was elected Supervisor last April 2. His marriage to Miss Nugent did not become public until April 23.

WESTERN ROADS TO CUT RATES ON EXPORT GRAINS

They Will Follow Eastern Railways and Are Expected to Include Flour in Lowering Tariffs.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 4.—Voluntary reductions in grain export rates, announced by Eastern Railroads at the suggestion of the Federal administration Friday, will be followed by like reductions in the same rates on the part of Western Railroads and will be extended to wheat flour. This was indicated today after conferences of members of the Interstate Commerce Commission with traffic vice presidents of several Western trunk lines and representatives of the Hoover administration.

Conrad E. Spens, vice president of the Burlington System and chairman of the Railroad Committee, announced after the meetings that he had summoned representatives of all Western lines to meet in Chicago Tuesday for the purpose of acting on the request for export grain rate reductions which has been made by the administration.

Affects St. Louis and Chicago.

"The reductions, if made," he said, "will apply on grain moving to St. Louis and Chicago from all Western territory, and will at least equal the cut announced by the Eastern lines on export grain movement East of Chicago and St. Louis—also, if reduction are granted by the Western roads, they will apply to wheat flour as well as to wheat.

"As the situation stands, the Eastern lines have announced an export grain rate cut amounting to 5¼ cents a hundred pounds. If reductions in the West on grain moving to Chicago and St. Louis equal to that amount are granted, the totaal export transportation charge from Western wheat growing areas on grain will be cut 11 cents a hundred pounds, or nearly 7 cents a bushel."

It was understood that Western lines were willing to grant the reductions sought, for a period limited to next September, but that the protests from milling interests against the failure to include flour had complicated the situation. The Chicago meeting called by Chairman Spens will be attended, it is said, by representatives of Southwestern lines reaching the Gulf ports and the program to reduce the export charges may be extended to include that movement. One of the Southwestern lines, the Kansas City Southern, already has announced a cut in the Gulf export rates.

Meeting in New York Tomorrow.

Spens, accompanied by H. W. Pierrepont, vice president of the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul & Pacific; D. W. Longstreet, vice president of the Illinois Central, and other Western trunk line representatives, plan to go to New York Monday to discuss the situation further with the representatives of Eastern lines.

An endeavor will be made to get the wheat flour reductions included in the Eastern export cuts. Eastern railroad executives, in announcing the intended action Friday, said that the great accumulation of grain on Western farms had created a national emergency and that the rate cuts would be made in an endeavor to help move the old crop into world consumption before the new crop was ready for harvest.

Applications in behalf of some of the Eastern lines were made to the commission today for emergency authority to make the new schedules effective on short notice and without the usual 30-day advance publication, but no action was taken upon the request in view of the discussion as to the attitude of Western lines and the proposed inclusion of flour.

MAIL PILOT FALLS 5000 FEET IN PLANE, ONLY SLIGHTLY HURT

CHEYENNE, Wyo., May 4.—Frank R. Yager, Boeing mail pilot, fell 5000 feet in an airplane which he was testing here today, and suffered only minor injuries. The plane was demolished.

Yager was testing a plane with a special tail section designed to bring the ship out of a spin more quickly than the regular type. He threw the plane into a spin at 5000 feet, and battled unavailingly in an effort to bring it out of the spin all the way to the earth.

COMMITTEE CAN'T AGREE ON RIGHT OF MELLON TO SEAT

Senator Norris included, beside the author, Senators Walsh, Blaine and Caraway.

Interpreting the Law.

The Stiewer report held the old law meant that the Secretary of the Treasury could not be a director or an officer in a corporation and that he could not participate actively in carrying on the business of a corporation, if the corporation were engaged in trade or commerce.

"The interpretation by the undersigned members of the committee," the report said, "is supported by the fact that numerous Secretaries of the Treasury have owned stock in corporations engaged in trade. It is inconceivable that all these Secretaries wilfully violated the law and equally inconceivable that the Presidents under whom they served would have appointed men of known ineligibility, or that the Senate would have confirmed ineligible appointees."

Norris' Arguments.

With respect to Mellon's stockholding as they relate to the statute, the Norris report says:

"The question might be simplified by asking: Is a person owning stock in a corporatoin even indirectly concerned or interested in the business of such corporation? In this simplified form the question answers itself. To deny that the owner of stock in a corporation is interested in the business of such corporation is a violation of all logic and reason; and to assert that the owner of such stock is not even indirectly 'concerned or interested' in the business of the corporation must impress the minds of honest people as being ridiculous. . . . It is common knowledge that the Gulf Oil Corporation, the Aluminum Co. of America and the Standard Steel Car Co. are among the largest business corporations of the United States. Their business operations annually run into the millions. A person who owns a 'substantial' amount of the stock of these corporations and who, in connection with members of his family and close business associates, can or ordinarily control the operations of such corporations, is not only interested but has it in his power to affect and control some of the most important business operations of the world. To say that such a person is not interested in the business operations of any of thesse corporations is to offend the reasoning processes of all logical minds.

Mellon's Income Tax $1,000,000.

"Several years ago when the law provided that the amount of income taxes paid by any citizen should be made public it became known that the income tax paid by Mellon exceeded $1,000,000. From the agreed state of facts he must have a vast fortune tied up in stock ownership of some of the greatest business corporations in the country and his income to a large extent, if not entirely, must come from his ownership of stock in these corporations. Can it be asserted with any reason or logic that he is not interested in the business which they transact? Can it be honestly claimed that he is not even 'indirectly interested,' or that he is not even 'indirectly concerned?' These questions are too simple and the answers are too self-evident to admit of discussion or doubt."

EARLY ACTION ON LOAN BILL LIKELY IN STATE SENATE

Buford's Obstructive Tactics Blocked by Referring House Measure to Another Committee.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, May 4.—Early action in the Senate on a bill to amend the small loan law appeared likely today following disclosure in yesterday' Post-Dispatch of the varied methods used by Senator Carter M. Buford to suppress all small loan bills in the Committee on Criminal Jurisprudence of which he is chairman.

Leading Senators indicate their belief that unless there is prompt action the whole body will be subject to severe criticism and to the questioning of its motives.

The action, if it comes, probably will not be on the Senate bills, for Senator Buford has shown no inclination to recede from his arbitrary stand against reporting the bills even though a majority of the committee wishes them reported, but on a House bill covering the same subject matter which was passed by an overwhelming majority of the Representatives.

Kept Out of Buford's Committee.

The House bill, which is No. 146, came up for second reading in the Senate Thursday and was referred by Lieutenant-Governor Winter to the Judiciary Committee instead of to Buford's committee as would have been the ordinary procedure. This bill puts the anti-salary buying section into the law, prescribes stricter regulation of the loan companies by the State Finance Department and reduces the interest rate from 3½ per cent a month to 2 per cent a month, or from 42 per cent a year to 24 per cent a year.

Senator Phil Donnelly of Lebanon, chairman of the Judiciary Committee, said:

"There will be prompt action on this bill by the committee next Tuesday. The bill will not be given precedence, but this committee acts promptly and all who wish to be heard on it should appear before the committee Tuesday. Immediately following the hearing the committee will vote on what to do with the bill and if a majority favors reporting it to the Senate either favorably or unfaverably, I as chairman will immediately make the report."

The Judiciary Committee includes in its membership five Senators who also are members of the Committee on Criminal Jurisprudence in which Buford has been smothering the small loan bills. Senator Buford is one of the five and the other four are Chairman Donnelly and Senators Whitecotton of Paris, Searcy of Eminence and Terry of Festus.

The other members of the Judiciary Committee are Senators Casey of Kansas City, McCawley of Carthage, Kinney of St. Louis, Haymes of Springfield, Cave of Fulton, Ralph of St. Louis County and Davis of Kansas City.

Way Now Open, McCawley Says.

Senator McCawley, commenting on the withholding of the small loan bills by Senator Buford, said there was more than one way of getting at legislation and that in this case the passage of the House bill had opened the way for the Senate to act. .. was his opinion action on the House bill now was the better way to get at the matter. If the House bill should be passed by the Senate it would then go to the Governor and if signed by him would become law. The Senate bills if passed in the Senate still would have to go through the House.

Several Senators commented on the rumors of corruption that have clung to the small loan bills ever since they were introduced and said any further delay would subject the entire membership to criticism and suspicion.

ROOSEVELTS BAG HIMALAYAN BEAR, THE GIANT PANDA

First of Kind Ever Shot by White Men Acquired for Chicago Museum.

NEW YORK, May 4.—"Great luck, shot giant panda jointly. Theodore Roosevelt."

This dispatch from Theodore Roosevelt, who with his brother, Kermit, is heading the Kelley-Roosevelt-Field Museum expedition in the unknown regions of Western China, indicates that both Theodore and Kermit were able to participate in the shooting of a giant panda, one of the extremely rare animals. Getting a specimen was one of the objects of the expedition.

It was impossible to determine where the expedition is at present, but the message was undoubtedly sent by runner to the nearest point from which it could be telegraphed to Hong Kong.

So far as the members of the expedition know, this is the first time a giant panda has been killed by a white man, and this is also the opinion of the officials of the Field Museum which is backing the expedition.

The giant panda ranges only a narrow belt in the mountains of Western China and is found only in high altitudes, usually from 7000 to 12,000 feet above sea level, among rocks and trees. Little is known of its habits. It is considered as intermediate between the bears and raccoons and is the size of a small bear. One of its peculiarities is the manner in which it walks on the soles of its feet with its heels touching the ground in the same manner as the bear or man.

HUNDREDS ATTEND FUNERAL SERVICES OF E. H. ANGERT

Held in County Home Where He Had Established His Famous Garden—Flowers Bank Rooms.

EULOGY DELIVERED BY SENATOR HAWES

The Rev. A. M. Schwitalla, S. J., Reads Prayers—Burial Takes Place in Bellefontaine Cemetery.

Where thousands gathered last Sunday to view the remarkable gardens of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene H. Angert, Kent road, near Clayton road, hundreds gathered yesterday for the funeral of Mr. Angert.

On the day when the people of St. Louis were invited to visit his gardens, following an annual custom of Mr. and Mrs. Angert, he was taken to Jewish Hospital. An infection of the nose, at first considered slight, resulted in septicemia. He died Thursday evening.

Flowers, to which Mr. Angert was devoted, filled two rooms and a hall of the residence. A blanket of lilies-of-the-valley from the St. Louis Horticultural Society, which e founded, covered the bier.

Many of the close friends of the family were there throughout the day, and others began arriving shortly after noon. They were standing in four rooms when the services began with Tschaikowsky's "Andante Cantabile," played by the Steindel String Quartet.

Senator Hawes Delivers Eulogy.

Prayers were said by the Rev. Alphonse M. Schwitalla, S. J., dean St. Louis University Medical hool, and the funeral address was delivered by Senator Harry B. Hawes, former law partner of Mr. Angert. # WANG ASKS U. S. TO GIVE UP ITS RIGHTS IN CHINA

Negotiations Looking to Waiver of Extraterritoriality Expected.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 4.—Negotiations looking toward relinquishment by the United States of the extraterritorial rights granted to its citizens in China by treaty were described in official circles today as a possible outcome of the note which has just reached the State Department from Foreign Minister C. T. Wang.

Secretary Stimson, who received a preliminary view of the situation from Wang at Shanghai while on the way from the Philippines to Washington in March, will study the Chinese request on his return from New York Monday. Before shaping any definite policy he is expected to seek the advice of President Hoover, who is familiar with the subject, having once lived in China.

Expressing "the desire of China to have the restrictions on its jurisdictional sovereignty removed at the earliest possible date," Minister Wang in his note said he hoped the United States would take the desire "into immediate and sympathetic consideration . . . so that steps may be taken to enable China to assume jurisdiction over all Nationals within her domain."

Wang reviewed the progress China has made toward unification and the steps taken to conform with the recommendations for legal and judicial reform made in 1926 by the Commission on Extraterritoriality set up by the Washington treaty of 1922.

"Extraterritoriality is a legacy of the old regime," the note said, "and has ceased to be adaptable to present conditions."

The United States Government is expected to seek information as to just what has been done by China to comply with the recommendations of the Extraterritorial Commission and to insure adequate guarantees.

Flowers, to which Mr. Angert was devoted, filled two rooms and a hall of the residence. A blanket of lilies-of-the-valley from the St. Louis Horticultural Society, which he founded, covered the bier.

Many of the close friends of the family were there throughout the day, and others began arriving shortly after noon. They were standing in four rooms when the services began with Tschaikowsky's "Andante Cantabile," played by the Steindel String Quartet.

Senator Hawes Delivers Eulogy.

Prayers were said by the Rev. Alphonse M. Schwitalla, S. J., dean of St. Louis University Medical School, and the funeral address was delivered by Senator Harry B. Hawes, former law partner of Mr. Angert. Senator Hawes related that 25 years ago he was absorbed by a caustic analysis of his public acts by a young lawyer. The analysis ended in approval and began a lasting friendship between him and Mr. Angert, who had recently been graduated from Harvard Law School.

(The text of the address, in which he suggested that the organization led by Mr. Angert be renamed the Angert Garden Club, is published elsewhere in today's Post-Dispatch.)

Pallbearers were law associates of Mr. Angert: Lon O. Hocker, Frank H. Sullivan, William O. Reeder, James C. Jones Jr., Sid C. Roach, W. A. Welker and Frank Mohr. The services closed with "Ase's Death" from Grieg's "Peer Gynt" suite.

Garden a Show Place.

Fittingly the services for this lover of flowers were held in the residence surrounded by gardens he has developed in 15 years from a clay bank to a show place of St. Louis. Some of those who attended had profited by his knowledge, his enthusiasm or his generosity, for he gave many of his idlest hours and hundreds of fine plants to amateur gardners.

A few of those who sent flowers were the Garden Club, which Mr. Angert founded; the Harvard Club; the Municipal Theater Association, leaders of which attended the funeral; the trustees and the pupils of John Burroughs School, of which he was founder; classmates of his daughter in the Community School; the Bar Association of St. Louis, and the fellow-members of his law firm. Not least regarded was a blanket of tulips, bridal wreath and purple iris from Mr. Angert's garden, made by his own gardener, Walter Ward.

Interment was in Bellefontaine Cemetery. Mr. Angert is survived by his widow, who was Miss Vera Giannini, granddaughter of the late Antnony E. Faust; a son and two daughters.

Eulogy by Senator Hawes At Eugene H. Angert's Funeral

Declares He Will Be Remembered as the Finest Flower in His Gardens—Praised as "Fighter of Shams."

The funeral address for Eugene H. Angert was delivered by United States Senator Harry B. Hawes, his former law partner and a friend for 25 years, yesterday at the Angert residence on Kent road near Clayton road. The text follows:

"Just a few weeks ago, in this happy, perfect home, our friend with sharp, clear intellect dissected a business plan, arranged the details of a summer's trip to Europe, discussed new books, lovingly joked with his guests, led the way to his garden, explained the flowers, speculated upon their bloom, and had already a reflected pleasure in anticipating the joy his thoughtful plans would give his visitors, the plant lovers of the city.

"The work was almost done. His annual labor of love into which he put his fancy, his experience, his humanity, his thought of others, was written into his garden in the language of flowers, written in beauty and perfume, in rare colors, in shadings and combinations of plant life, where nature's offerings to man had been assembled and protected by our friend, the friend of flowers.

For "Angert Garden Club."

"His garden gave pleasure, and it was characteristic of our friend that he wanted every home to have the same pleasure—a garden—so he created an annual, standing prize for the best backyard garden.

"I hope the Garden Club will now be named the Angert Garden Club. It would be more fitting than a monument and as permanent as statue.

"The ways to Providence are indeed strange, passing our understanding.

"When last I saw him he was in his garden in the midst of his flowers. It is the picture I have in my heart, it is the picture I would have remain; and I believe all his friends will preserve it, and as the years go by and fate writes 'finis' for each of us, there will always be to the very last the unfading and pleasing picture of Gene with his pipe in his garden.

"And flowers still bloom in his garden, their perfumes still rise and their varied colors still fill the eye with delight as we come to say good-by to our friend Gene.

"But while there was a Gene, there was at the same time a Eugene H. Angert.

"A Fighter of Shams."

"Sharp of speech, a master of satire, a dissector of men, a keen analyst, a fighter of sham, an enemy of hypocrisy, his word sometimes came dripping with vinegar, biting like an acid, tearing into the vital spots of smallness and meanness.

"He had a direct frankness that sometimes appalled his friends by the nakedness of his expressions. He did not know how to fence; his was always the straight thrust, the direct blow, the smash straight from the shoulder. He saw clearly, sometimes his vision was too perfect. He saw an ugly thing and instead of giving it room or passing it by, he stopped and denounced it with a candor that neither tact nor diplomacy could limit.

"He had a high pedestal for public service, and was quick in criticism of both stupidity and venality. Never a candidate for public office, he sometimes took a surprising interest in a special candidate or a particular issue, and then he was untiring, it absorbed him, then his withering sarcasms scarred and mutilated, his wit put a fine point on his darts which penetrated and burned.

"But his friendships were catholic. They embraced all elements of society, the high and the low, the rich and the poor, the intellectual and the ignorant. He secured pleasure from all elements of society, and in his own inimitable way took a quizzical interest in all.

Visited State's Beauty Spots.

"He had a certain assertiveness, fruit of a fine education, trained mind and unusual powers of observation, to which he constantly added by reading informing books and in conversations with men who specialized and had mastered a special subject.

"He traveled extensively in Europe and throughout America, and when chided upon not knowing the beauty spots of his own State, accepted the challenge and put in his last summer with his wife and children visiting the beauty spots of his own Missouri. In his travels he always took his family; they were never separated from him in his diversions or his pleasures.

"I first met our friend 25 years ago at a meeting of young men, many of whom are now leaders in our professional and financial life, and occupy high places then held by their fathers; the subject under discussion was myself, and being present I was amazed at the frankness and cold analysis of certain public acts of mine by one of the party. I inquired who he was and was told he was a young lawyer just back from Harvard. After a very critical and embarrassing analysis of my conduct he approved it. I was grateful and a wonderful friendship of 25 years' continuance began.

"Some few years later I read of a fee of $100,000 paid to this young attorney, a sum so large in those days that leaders of the bar were amazed, but he had earned the fee, it was not disputed, his clients were satisfied.

"He wrote the first plays for the then infant Racquet Club and burnt its members to a fine crisp with wit and humor.

"He became the best after dinner speaker in St. Louis; brilliant, clear, incisive. He sometimes offended, always amused and usually exposed a sham or brought a suffering ego to its Waterloo. His fame spread and he was in demand throughout the country. The invitations came so often and so fast they could not be accepted. At Lincoln's Inn in London he put the human, humorous touch into a great convention of international lawyers.

"He became a man who was consulted, not only because he was a lawyer, but because he saw things clearly and could describe them understandingly.

"But in this home of refinement and culture the things that make for material success and bring public applause have small place. The bigger things that tie and bind, that hold together, are devotion to family and loyalty to friends. These Gene Angert had in a superlative degree. We are all better men and women because we knew him; we are better citizens.

"He has left us, but his memory will come to us frequently, and when the sadness of the parting has gone it will be a message of bright things, of good things, and we will do for his dear ones as he would have done for ours, love and cherish them.

"And so we can only say farewell for a while, Gene. We will try to carry on and do the things you would have us do, grateful for our association with you, we yield to Providence.

"Kind, considerate friend, wonderful husband, inspiring father, good citizen, we separate, each remembering Gene the very human man, the very frank man, Gene the lover of nature, of flowers.

"He did not know it, but the finest flower in Gene's garden was Gene."

COMMISSION ROW FIRE DAMAGES THREE BUILDINGS

Loss Estimated at $30,000 Mostly to A. P. Meyer Co. in Whose Basement Blaze Started.

Hundreds of persons crowded into "Commission Row" last night while firemen of 18 companies fought a blaze in the four-story building of the A. P. Meyer Commission Co., at 818 North Third street. The Meyer stock was destroyed and the building badly damaged, while four neighboring commission companies suffered damage by smoke and water. The total loss was estimated at $30,000, mostly to the Meyer building.

The fire was discovered shortly after 6 o'clock by Harry Dickson, a merchant in the block, who had remained late in his office. He observed smoke pouring from an upper window of the Meyer building, and when firemen arrived flames were leaping through the roof of the structure. The blaze was under control within an hour.

An examination by Fire Chief Alt indicated that the fire started in the rear basement of the Meyer building, from some undetermined cause and had moved up the elevator shaft to the fourth floor where it spread rapidly

Water was poured on the building from 60-foot towers set up in the front and rear of the building while other streams of water were played on adjoining buildings. As darkness fell, large floodlights were turned on the building.

The Meyer company's stock, it was said, consisted of crated eggs and several hundred crates of live chickens, which were destroyed. Abraham P. Meyer is president of the company. The building is owned by Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Montague of Los Angeles, Cal., formerly of St. Louis.

Other firms damaged are the Hosto Commission Co., at No. 816; the Niemeyer & Buchmueller Commission Co., No. 814; the Heimos Fruit & Produce Exchange Co., No. 810; the St. Louis Butter, Egg & Produce Exchange, No. 810A, and the Scheitlin & Hofmann Fruit & Produce Co., No. 820.

Three four-story buildings were involved, the Meyer building in the center being L-shaped and extending southward in the rear to No. 810. All were empty when the fire broke out, employes having finished their work for the day.

68,264 ENTRIES IN $25,000 TEMPERANCE PRIZE CONTEST

Winner of Durant Enforcement Award and Dr. Noxon Toomey of St. Louis in List.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 4.—Entries in the $25,000 temperance prize contest "to procure a practicable plan as a substitute for prohibition," sponsored by William Randolph Hearst, stood at 68,624 today, the directors announced.

The W. C. Durant $25,000 contest for the best plan to enforce prohibition drew 23,230 entries.

Entrants in the Hearst contest include Maj. Chester P. Mills, who won the Durant contest; Frank C. Chavez, United States Attorney, Shreveport, La.; James W. Gerard, former Ambassador to Germany and treasurer of the Democratic National Committee; Dr. Noxon Toomey, St. Louis; Dean Christian Gauss, Princeton University; Sam W. Small, associate editor Atlanta Constitution; Max Radin, professor of law, University of California.

A staff of editorial readers is arranging the plans for submission to a board of judges which is expected to require a month determining the winner of the capital award of $25,000 and possible prizes of $5000 and $1000 for proposals considered second and third best.

NEW REPARATIONS PROPOSAL TO ALLIES MADE BY YOUNG

sidered the Allied claims as reduced by those $3,000,000,000 (estimated present value of the last 21 years' annuities) to a little over $9,500,000,000, then Young's compromise of 8,000,000,000 marks was almost exactly between the original German offer and the creditors' bill.

In this connection it was commented that Dr. Schacht proposed originally that the international banks have a capital of $1,250,000,000, but that the conference trimmed this down to $25,000,000, as the capital was to have been furnished out of the reparations payment to the Allies, these objected to having their money tied up simply to work in relieving Germany of part of its payments.

Young's plan calls for an initial payment of about $402,000,000 to increase at the rate of about $6,000,000 yearly to 1,900,000,000 marks at the end of the tenth year (about $456,000,000). In the eleventh year there would be a decided jump in figures.

Although the plan was in fairly definite form as agreed upon by Dr. Schacht and Young, it was understood a great deal of flexibility was possible in the payments after the tenth year, so that if the allies had any preference for any special system of annuities it was thought it could be arranged.

The Germans were said to feel that their provision that payments must be postponed, if Germany proves it is in distress, would protect it, if the early payments proved too high.

Stock Prices Rise on Report of Agreement in Paris.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 4.—Heavy buying, assumed to be due to reports of a reparations agreement at Paris, sent 50 industrial stocks and 20 utilities to high levels today.

The upturn checked a wave of week-end profit taking, which had been swelled by the collapse of a speculative bubble in the stocks of Advance Rumely Co., manufacturer of farm implements. Advance Rumely common dropped $22.50 to $60, in contrast to a record price reached last Wednesday just under $105, and the preferred stock dropped $11.50 to $78, as compared to a recent peak of $119.

They rallied at the close of the market, getting back to $69.25 and $84. Wild gyrations in these stocks have been accompanied by conflicting rumors of refinancing plans. There are accumulated dividends due on the preferred of more than $30 a share, and the company has earned nothing on the common stock for more than a decade.

Chesepeake and Ohio was a conspicuous strong point, selling up $8 to a record price at $230. Goodyear Tire mounted more than $7. Wright Aero advanced $6 and Packard Motor more than $4. Atlantic Refining and Pan American Petroleum issues sold up about $2 a share to new high prices.

Allis Chalmers, General Electric, National Biscuit, Electric Auto Lite, and American and Foreign Power were among issues losing from $2 to $3 a share.

The Associated Press price index of 50 industrials rose more than a point to 225.4, and the index of 20 utilities ½ of a point to 225.5. The index of 20 rails made a like gain, reaching 133.5, which compares with its peak of 141.2.

Firemen Find Benjamin Klamm Dead When Putting Out Small Blaze in Home of Daughter.

Benjamin Klamm, 77 years old, was found dead in the kitchen of his daughter's home, 7412 Minnesota avenue, last night by firemen who had been summoned there to extinguish a small fire in a heap of refuse in one corner of the room. Apparently Klamm had been suffocated by smoke.

His daughter, Mrs. William Wiegand, told the police that she did not know her father was in the kitchen when the refuse caught fire and she called the firemen.

Damage to the house from the fire and smoke was estimated at $100.

KILLS SON-IN-LAW CALLING TO BREAK NEWS OF WEDDING

"I Had to Protect My Family" Amarillo, Tex., Ex-Judge Says After Shooting Youth, 21.

By the Associated Press.

AMARILLO, Tex., May 4.—R. H. Hamilton, a former judge on the Commission of Appeals of the Texas State Supreme Court, today shot and killed his 21-year-old son-in-law, Thomas Walton Jr. He explained the killing by saying: "I had rather be dead than kill a man, but I had to protect my family." He was released on $20,000 bond.

The shooting occurred in Hamilton's law office, where Walton was reported to have gone to break the news that he had married Hamilton's daughter, Theresa, 19. Both Walton and his young wife formerly attended Texas University.

Although after the shooting, Hamilton denied that his daughter was married, records in the County Clerk's office at Georgetown, Tex., disclosed that Theresa Hamilton and Thomas Walton Jr., were married Feb. 10, by Justice of the Peace Bryan Blalock.

Friends said Walton had been sent to the Hamilton office to "explain everything." He said to Miss Evelyn Watley, stenographer, as he entered Hamilton's office: "If you hear some shooting you'll know I've been shot."

WHY BYRNE'S BACK YARD HAD SO MANY VISITORS

County Deputy Sheriffs Find Bucketful of Bottled Whisky There.

Deputy Sheriffs watching the actions of Peter Byrne, of 1110 Annie avenue, St. Louis Counyt, yesterday, as Byrne made numerous mysterious trips with casual visitors into his back yard, questioned Byrne who led them into the rear yard where they reported finding a bucketful of bottled whisky. They arrested him, charging illegal possession of intoxicating liquor.

Sheriff Lill and deputies raided two homes in Carondelet and arrested Edward C. Krassner of 242 West Ripa avenue, and Henry Kuhn of 241 West Ripa avenue, charging them with illegal possession. Lill reported finding home brew and wine in Krassner's home and a small quantity of wine in Kuhn's. The men were released on $1000 bonds.

RACING BALLOONS LEAVE PITTSBURG, HEAD NORTHEAST

Seven Bags Pass Apollo, Pa., at About 400 Feet—Navy No. 2 Is Sighted Flying Near Ground.

HIGH WIND REPORTED AT 1000 FEET ALOFT

H.E. Honeywell in St.Louis Craft Gains Altitude Better Than Aeronauts Who Precede Him at Takeoff.

By the Associated Press.

PITTSBURG, Pa., May 4.—Under overcast skies, and with a stiff wind blowing, the 12 entries in the National elimination balloon race took off from Pitt Stadium here beginning at 6 p. m., Eastern daylight time, today. The first bag aloft, the Aircraft Development Corporation entry, carried W. A. Klikoff, Detroit, as pilot and Thorvald Larsen, Dearborn, Mich., as aid. Rain was falling as the bag went aloft.

For the first time in the history of American balloon racing, the bags went up from an inclosed stadium. Several of the pilots failed to gain altitude quickly and were forced to drop ballast before they had proceeded far. A majority of the racers make good altitude within a few minutes. After studying those who preceded him aloft, H. E. Honeywell, pilot of the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce entry, discarded many ballast bags and he shot higher than any of the others.

The balloons were not released from the floor of the stadium. They were held by ropes until they breasted the high stadium wall and were then turned loose. No. 1 did not get much altitude, but the second bag off, Army No. 3, with Lieut. L. A. Lawson, Wright Field, Dayton, as pilot and Lieut. Edgar Fogelsonger, Scott Field, Ill., aid, shot high into the air a minute after being released by the ground crew.

Seven Bags Are Sighted.

Seven bags, none of which was identified, passed over Apollo, Pa., at 8 o'clock tonight. Apollo is 25 miles northeast of Pittsburg. The balloons were reported flying about 400 feet in the air.

At an earlier hour, 17 miles northeast of Pittsburg, near New Kensington, Navy No. 2 was reported to have come close to the earth. A resident of the vicinity phoned balloon headquarters that as the craft swept past him he talked with Lieut. Jack C. Richardson, pilot. Richardson was quoted as saying he was flying low in an effort to keep in a northerly wind current.

A report from Indiana, Pa., 45 miles northeast of Pittsburg, said a balloon was sighted there at about 8 o'clock. The airmen were dumping ballast, apparently getting ready to take a high altitude over the Allegheny Mountains. The bag was not identified.

The drift of the wind was north-northeast, indicating that the racing bags would go in the direction of New England, or over New York State to Canada. High winds of from 33 to 50 miles an hour at high elevations were reported from various points along the possible course of flight.

Start Delayed an Hour.

The start of the race was postponed for one hour because of adverse weather. Race officers scanned the skies carefully, for they recalled the disaster of last year's race when the bags ran into an electric storm, forcing most of the racers down and killing two balloonists. A few hours before the take-off, memorial services were held for Lieut. Paul Evert and Walter W. Mortman, who lost their lives in the 1928 race.

The other entries took off in the following order:

Army No. 2, Capt. E. W. Hill, Chanute Field, Rantoul, Ill., pilot; Lieut. Robert Herald, Chanute Field, aid, off at 6:09 p. m.

Army No. 1, Capt. W. J. Flood, Langley Field, Va., pilot; Lieut. J. G. Ent, Langley Field, aid; off at 6:12 p. m.

The Pittsburger, Dr. G. M. Le Gallee, Detroit, pilot; Walter Chambers, Pittsburg, aid; off at 6:17 p. m.

The Detroit Times, E. J. Hill, Detroit, pilot; Arthur G. Schlosser, Detroit, aid; off at 6:20 p. m.

Honeywell Seventh to Start.

The St. Louis Chamber of Commerce, H. E. Honeywell, Clayton, Mo., pilot; Roland J. Gaupel, St. Louis, aid, off at 6:26 p. m.

The Detroit Balloon Club, S. A. U. Rasmussen, Detroit, pilot; Tracy Southworth, Monroe, Mich., aide, off at 6:32 p. m.

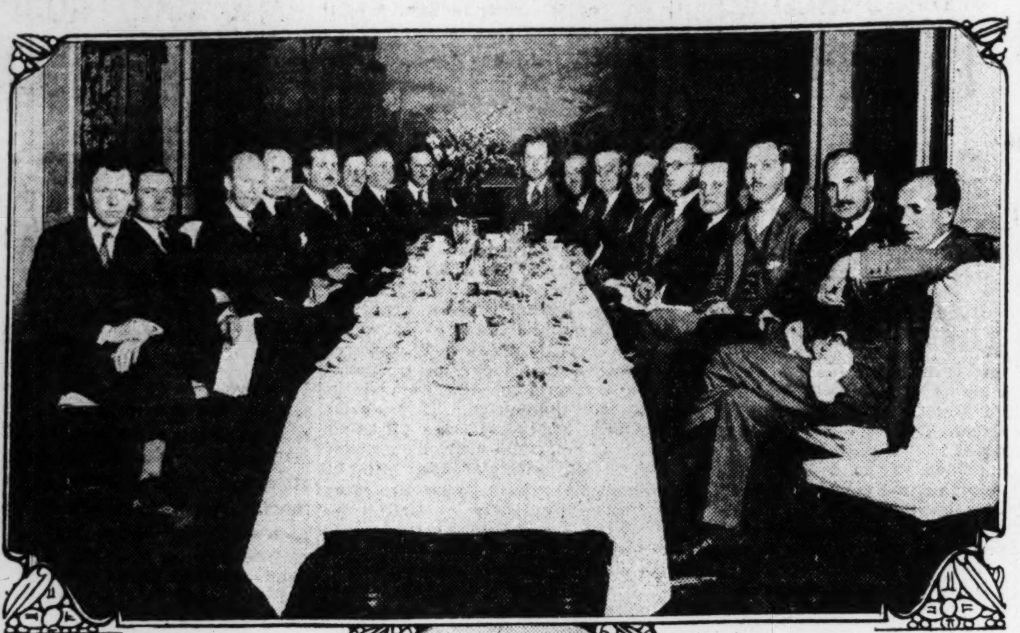
The American Business Club, Akron, A. C. Palmer, Akron, pilot; Walter B. Griffin, Akron, aid, off at 6:35 p. m.

Navy No. 2, Lieut. Jack C. Richardson, Lakehurst, N. J., pilot; Lieut. Maurice M. Bradley, Lakehurst, aid, off at 6:38 p. m.

Goodyear VII, Wade T. Van Orman, Akron, pilot; Alan L. MacCracken, Akron, aid, off at 6:41 p. m.

Navy No. 1, Lieut. T. W. G. Settle, Lakehurst, pilot; Ensign Wilfred Bushnell, Lakehurst, aid, 6:43 p. m.

Dinner and Investment Syndicate Of 25 St. Louis Men Earns $94,000



MEMBERS of the St. Louis Investment Syndicate at dinner at the St. Louis Country Club last Wednesday night. Around the table from the left: John S. Lehmann, John Curlee, A Wessel Shapleigh, Alvan J. Goodbar, John R. Shepley, Allan Gamble, Douglas Smiley, J. Harold Pettus, Ethan A. H. Shepley, Samuel D. Conant, James Taussig Jr., Maury Hill, H. S. Tittmann, Walker Hill Jr., Harrison Hoblitzelle, Arthur C. Crunden, George D. Scott.

Below, Floyd Augustine, who organized the syndicate nine years ago.

For Last Nine Years, Group Has Met Once a Month to Enjoy Fellowship and Choose Securities.

For the last nine years 25 St. Louisans, all prominent in the city's social and business life, have met each month at dinner to enjoy the fellowship of kindred spirits and, incidentally, to contribute $20 apiece to an investment program.

Today, with only slight changes in the club's membership, the fellowship continues and the investment program shows results beyond the most sanguine dreams of charter members. Each share, representing about $2160 paid in, is at present worth $5700. The investment of less than $50,000 has increased to $144,000 and has paid its 25 members about 37 per cent annually on their average investment.

Members of the syndicate, known as the St. Louis Investment Syndicate, are Floyd Augustine, Harold M. Bixby, R. F. Bixby, Oliver J. Anderson, P. Taylor Bryan Jr., Samuel D. Conant, Arthur C. Crunden, John Curlee, Dudley French, Allan Gamble, A. J. Goodbar, C. D. P. Hamilton Jr., Maury Hill, Walker Hill, John S Lehmann, J. Harold Pettus, A. Wessel Shapleigh, Ethan A. H. Shepley, chairman; John R Shepley, treasurer; C. D. Smiley, I. A. Stevens, James Taussig Jr., H. S. Tittmann, George D. Scott, secretary, and Harrison Hoblitzelle.

Founded Nine Years Ago.

The club had its genesis in the mind of Floyd Augustine, who patterned his conception from an older investment association. Just nine years ago he invited 11 mutual friends to a luncheon at the Noonday Club. From this luncheon of 12 men in their middle twenties, some lately from college, some lately from army camps, and all newly established in the business world, grew the St. Louis Investment Syndicate. Since then the association has met for a social evening at the St. Louis Country Club or the University Club on the first Wednesday of each month.

"At the outset the club was more social than financial" Ethan A. H. Shepley, an attorney who is chairman of the syndicate, explained yesterday. "It had little money, of course, and was chiefly concerned with the initiation of new members until the capacity of 25 was reached. The personnel was considered of primary importance.

"New members were elected by secret ballot, two blackballs eliminating a candidate. There was a gentleman's agreement that a member would never blackball a man simply because he desired the election of a pet candidate of his own. Any reasonable objection, however, even personal dislike, permitted a blackball.

Roster of 25 Members.

"Now we have a complete roster of 25 men representing widely diversified interests. We have bankers, manufacturers, brokers, aviation experts, miners, oil men, lawyers...."

As a result of this deliberative selection of candidates, election to the syndicate has assumed the nature of an achievement.

"We have maintained our personnel," he continued, "with but seven losses. Two members, Kenneth G. Carpenter and Robert Reynolds, died; four left the city, and one resigned — but without hard feeling; there has been no bitterness in the club. Of course, at times, particularly in the syndicate's early career, there have been some pretty hot fights over the selection of securities But they have been friendly and have been justified in the soundness of the issues finally chosen."

The success of the club is attributed by Shepley to three inflexible rules: Never buy on margin, never sell short and always select stocks of leading corporations in each industry.

How the Club Operates.

Describing the club's method of operating, he explained that it buys, in the main, common stocks of established companies listed on the "big board."

"At each meeting an investment committee of three is appointed to prepare recommendations to present to the next meeting," he said. "The specific recommendations are voted upon by the membership.

"It's hard to put anything over on that outfit. They laugh at tips—they want facts, earnings, liquid position, business booked ahead. We never trade between meetings. It isn't necessary because we aren't interested in minor fluctuations—we buy to hold.

"Our meetings generally are attended by more than 20 members. Those who are absent without excuse are fined $5. I'd hate to have missed any of our 105 meetings; they've never been dull and have always been informative as to the trend of business.

Made $30,000 in Year.

"Our future plans? We'll go right along. Liquidating dividends have been invariably voted down. We've been successful — why change? Now we trade in 100-share lots whereas we used to buy odd lots. We came through the bear market of 1920 all right and in the bull market of last year we made about $30,000 on an investment of little more than $100,000. Our total losses last year were $495. If we had wanted to speculate, we might have cleaned up."

"What was the biggest loss you ever suffered?" Shepley was asked.

"That's easy. We once had a secretary with a delightful and subtle sense of humor which he managed to translate into his minutes. When we mislaid the minutes of Dudley French we suffered our greatest loss."

MAN, 67, HIT BY AUTO DIES OF HIS INJURIES

August Koch Was Run Down April 19—East St. Louisan's Skull Fractured.

August Koch, 67 years old, 6828 Dale avenue, died at the City Hospital yesterday of injuries suffered April 19, when he was struck by an automobile, as he was crossing Vandeventer avenue at Palm street. The automobile was driven by John Stoelzle, 19, of 4242 Westminster. Stoelzle told the police Koch stepped in front of his car.

Victor Holten, 123 South Fourth street, East St. Louis, is in St. Mary's Hospital there, suffering from a fractured skull. He was taken to the hospital at 9:30 p. m. Friday by an automobile driver who said he found him lying on the Cahokia road, a little way out of East St. Louis, and who fled when hospital attaches called the police.

The motorist was driving a Ford coupe, it was said at the hospital. Holten, in a semi-conscious condition, was unable to tell what had happened to him.

Boyd Atkinson, 4610 Delmar avenue, suffered a fractured collar bone, three broken ribs, and internal injuries last night when he was struck by an automobile as he was crossing the street in front of 4033 Washington avenupe.

The driver, Wilbur E. Brown, a lawyer, 605 Clara avenue, was arrested and charged with careless driving and felonious wounding. He took Atkinson to Deaconess Hospital.

TWO EARLY HANDLAN WILLS REJECTED BY JUDGE AS VOID

Court Rules Neither Document Offered as Alternative Testament Is Valid.

Two previous wills of the late Eugene W. Handlan, vice president of the Handlan-Buck Manufacturing Co., which were offered for probate several days ago, were rejected by Probate Judge Holtcamp yesterday. Either was intended to take the plate of a later will which is contested by two of Mr. Handlan's sisters, Mrs. Lillian Lemp and Mrs. Marie Hornsby, in the event that will is declared invalid. There was no substantial difference in the previous wills.

Judge Holtcamp rejected the two wills on motion of Jesse W. Barrett, attorney for the contestants, who pointed out that Handlan's signature to one document had been torn off, while in the [illegible] will the word "voided" [illegible] written across the pages. [illegible]quently the court held [illegible] document was valid.

Handlan's estate inventoried [illegible] $400,000. Under all his [illegible] established a $45,000 actors' [illegible] fund and bequeathed [illegible] amounts to a niece, Miss [illegible] Handlan, to various [illegible] charities and churches [illegible] women friends. He died [illegible] 1928.

BUYS BACK SHARE OF POWER FIRM IN 4 NEWSPAPERS

Frank E. Gannett Gives Check for $2,700,000 to International to Clear All His Properties.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 4.—The $2,700,000 of holdings of the International Paper & Power Co. in four of the 17 newspapers owned by Frank E. Gannett were bought back by the publisher today. A check for this amount was given the International to retire all the company's investments in the Brooklyn Daily Eagle, the Albany Knickerbocker Press, the Albany News, and the Ithaca Journal News, the only Gannett papers in which the company had taken interests in return for a loan.

Almost simultaneously with an announcement by the Brooklyn Eagle of the transaction, Archibald R. Graustein, president of the International, who testified before the Federal Trade Commission in Washington last Tuesday that his company had invested $10,000,000 in certain newspapers, wired the commission of the repurchase. He said the International would continue to furnish newsprint for Gannett.

Denies Press Was Influenced.

An editorial in the Brooklyn Eagle told of the repurchase and said that when Gannett "accepted in perfectly good faith a loan of approximately $2,700,000 from the International Paper Co., which acted in equally good faith, it was because the loan could be had at terms better than were available in the open money market."

"The International did not ask and did not receive any voice in the policies of the Eagle or any Gannett newspaper," the editorial said.

"It was and is Mr. Gannett's belief that this was a straight forward, legal business transaction which should not be questioned by any one," the announcement says. "Criticism by the majority of the press of the nation, however, is that this financial association with a company which also sells power may not affect the quality of the newspaper involved but could affect that paper's influence with its readers."

"The Eagle has faith in the integrity of the American press. It has faith in the sincerity of those publishers who accepted international loans as they would any loan without thought of allowing an outside influence to affect the policy of their papers.

"The Eagle has no quarrels with critics who condemn its judgment but it regrets the unwillingness of some of its contemporaries to recognize an honest motive.

"Mr. Gannett is the head of America's third largest group of newspapers. The absolute independence and integrity of a Gannett newspaper must never be in doubt. To that purpose at a very considerable cost to Mr. Gannett, the Brooklyn Daily Eagle, the Albany Knickerbocker Press, the Albany News and the Ithaca Journal-News have today delivered Mr. Gannett's personal check for better than $2,700,000 upon the Chemical Bank & Trust Co. to retire every dollar of obligation owing the International Paper Co. or any of its subsidiaries and to return to Mr. Gannett's possession every security held by that company in any Gannett newspaper.

"In accomplishing this the cheerful willingness of International to part with desirable investments not yet collectable is acknowledged."

Walsh Wants Postmaster General to Give Facts on Newspapers.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 4.—A resolution was introduced today by Senator Walsh, (Dem.) Montana, asking the Postmaster General to submit to the Senate the names of all owners, managers and security holders of the newspapers in which the International Power & Paper Co. has an interest. The resolution is an outgrowth of testimony before the Federal Trade Commission which disclosed that the company held stock or securities in 13 newspapers in various parts of the country.

Immediate action on the resolution was deferred by Senator Watson, of Indiana, the Republican leader, who informed the Montana Senator that he desired to examine the proposal.

The information desired is in the hands of the Postmaster General by virtue of an act passed in 1912 requiring newspapers to file a list of owners with the Government. Senator Walsh said the purpose of his resolution was to find out whether this act needed any amendment.

OLIVE STREETCAR STOP CHANGE

Sixteenth Street to Replace Fifteenth Beginning Tomorrow.

Sixteenth street will be a stop for Olive street cars and Fifteenth street will be discontinued as a stop, beginning tomorrow.

In approving the Olive skip-stop system recently, the Public Service Commission ordered this shift made as a convenience for car riders. The next stops to the east and west are Fourteenth and Eighteenth streets, and the change equalizes the distance between the various loading points.

WILL ATTEMPT TO BREAK SMALL PLANE ALTITUDE MARK

Barling Craft to Be Used in Test Here During Aeronautic Meeting.

An efforts to break the present altitude record of 22,250 feet for light planes, now held in England, will be made here with a Barling NB-3 monoplane during the Third National Aeronautic Meeting, May 27 to 30, according to announcement from the Nicholas-Beazley Airplane Co., Marshall, Mo.

The Barling NB-3 is a low-wing plane of unusual appearance. In tests at Marshall one of the little ships closely approached the altitude record, and executives of the company are confident the record will be broken on the official attempt here. The Barling NB-3 has a 60-horsepower radial engine.

We can't all hope to play in the early nineties—but any one can dress a good game. Good golf is mental anyway. Requires confidence — and good-looking clothes give confidence in golf as well as in business.

Sports clothes, perhaps more than any others, should be made-to-measure—made to hang right, with little touches here and there to give distinction.

Material? You really make us smile. GLEN ADDIE WOOLENS, of course. Pure Scotch — and among the 44 patterns, at least twenty most suitable for sports suits. $60 with knickers—a little more if you want trousers also. Good idea.

WINS SUIT TO ENJOIN HIS OUSTER FROM FIRM

Midland Paper Co. Secretary's Agreement to Sell Stock Held Void.

Officers of the Midland Paper Co., 524 South Main street, have been permanently enjoined by Circuit Judge Landwehr from removing Carl Stockstrom, 4111 Flora place, as its secretary and treasurer. The Court also held void an agreement signed by Stockstrom and other officers providing that in event any of them should either resign or be removed from office the stock of such person was to be sold at its book value to those remaining.

Testimony in suit for injunction filed by Stockstrom showed that he owned 75 per cent of the stock of the corporation, which does a paper jobbing business, and that other officers were indebted to him for money he advanced so that they could buy stock. He also is a creditor of the company.

Last January notice was served on him that the board of directors would on Jan. 25 oust him from office and also take steps to enforce the agreement. Stockstrom explained that he signed the agreement merely for the purpose of keeping peace in the company but he later contended it was void. The document was executed in October, 1925, about the time the business was incorporated. When the suit was filed a temporary restraining order was granted which prevented the taking of any action affecting Stockstrom before the case could be heard.

The injunction order is against Edward Sebastian, president; C. Sidney Weaver, vice president; E. A. Sebastian Jr. and Robert Todd, who, with the plaintiff, compose the board of directors. Todd, however, took the side of Stockstrm, who is his brother-in-law.

Stockstrom charged that a majority of the board brought about a condition which was embarrassing to him, although he had an investment of $65,000 in the business and stood liable on the company's notes for $29,000 borrowed. He said his partners offered him 65 cents on the dollar for his holdings, which, they said, was its book value, but he refused. He asserted the stock was worth its full par value, $100 a share.

According to the defense Stockstrom made a statement that he regarded the business as his "plaything" and he employed persons who were not experienced. It was brought out that E. A. Sebastian has been earning $10,000 a year from the business while Stockstrom's salary was only $3000 a year. Weaver received $4000 a year.

Under Judge Landwehr's order Stockstrom is now in complete control but the individual defendants as well as the company have filed motions for a new trial. Stockstrom's counsel yesterday asked that the motion filed in behalf of the company be struck out, alleging the persons who caused it to be filed are not now authorized to act for the corporation.

CALLS LAW ENFORCEMENT BEST CURB ON RECKLESS DRIVERS

More Salutary Than Moral Suasion, Police Judge Beck Says in Radio Address.

Strict enforcement of laws is more effective in reducing traffic accidents than general education and moral suasion, Police Judge Beck said in an address over radio station KMOX last night, in which he asked for support for the campaign of the Safety Council May 13 to 17, for greater safety in traffic and industry.

"Enforcement of the law is the most important link in the chain of safety," Judge Beck said. "Penalties, liberally assessed and made to stick, have, from my observation, proved to be the most effectual way of instilling traffic ordinance education. Education and moral suasion have their rightful place. They are the seed from which public opinion takes root and when public opinion is withheld, the courts become a useless fifth wheel of governmental machinery."

Judge Beck took issue with the assertion that automobile accidents are largely due to drunken driving.

"For every citizen killed by a drunken driver, a dozen are killed by sober drivers. The sooner the decent, sober traffic law violator learns that drunken drivers can no longer be made the goat for all the severe penalties, the sooner the number of automobile collisions and deaths will decrease."

SUES FOR RECEIVER FOR AMERICAN ASPHALT CONCERN

S. P. Barron Declares Owner of Stock Acted for Another Firm Violating Antitrust Laws.

Suit for a receiver for the American Asphalt Association, with offices in the Wainwright Building, was filed in Circuit Court yesterday by Sterling P. Barron, 6170 Pershing avenue, a stockholder, who alleges that the company has been earning heavy profits operating gilsonite mines in Utah, but it is not paying him dividends.

The petition sets forth that in 1927 R. L. Fowler of Chicago purchased all of the capital stock of the company except that owned by Barron, and to swing this deal Fowler used funds of the company in excess of $100,000. Fowler could not be reached yesterday but, according to Barron's attorney Robert E. Moloney, he has denied that any of the company's money was used to buy stock.

Barron, who is president of the Utal Gilsonite Co., also alleged in the suit that Fowler actually represented the Barber Asphalt Co. in buying the defendant company. The sales, he avers, was a subterranean arrangement in violation of the anti-trust laws against combinations in restraint of trade. Besides a receiver the suit asks for an accounting.

Miss Crowell Resigns Post.

Miss Beulah Crowell, junior chairman of the Missouri Federated Music Clubs in the Eighth District, resigned from that position last week and will not have charge of the junior program to be presented Saturday at Hotel Chase during the annual conference of music clubs of the district.

THE SEDAN

The above illustration of an untrimmed Mono-piece Body emphasizes the double-wall construction, to combine strength and rigidity with lightness of weight. The moulding effect on the doors is added insurance of solidity.

© 1929 Dodge Brothers Corporation

1 STABILITY—The exclusive Mono-piece Body, built inflexibly onto the chassis, has unusual riding steadiness. The passenger load rides close to the ground—preventing sidesway.

2 STURDINESS—Single-piece construction has an invariable and inherent rigidity, the body being built onto the frame by a new method of "horizontal-vertical" bolting.

3 SILENCE—There is not a seam or joint from front to rear to squeak, rattle or develop structural noises, even with tens of thousands of miles of hardest usage. For the Mono-piece Body is literally one-piece.

SAFETY—The low center of gravity insures perfect balance and a road-hugging quality that means greater safety and sureness under every driving circumstance. 4

SPACIOUSNESS—No space is wasted within the body. Exceptional roominess is achieved with a new degree of grace. Leg-room, head-room and elbow-room are liberal. Doors and windows are unusually wide. 5

STYLE—Mono-piece construction adapts itself admirably to the fine art of modern body styling. Dodge Brothers Six bodies are noted for their symmetry, their grace and their charm. 6

✓Authorities predict for the Future what DODGE BROTHERS OFFER TODAY

✓"The all-metal seamless body is the auto body of the future," George J. Mercer, consulting body engineer and former chairman of the Committee on Standards, Body Division, Society of Automotive Engineers, predicted at a meeting of the Cleveland Section of the S. A. E.—Automotive Daily News, Feb. 12, 1929.

In the exclusive Mono-piece Body—available in all eight body styles of the new Dodge Brothers Six—you find the design to which leading engineers point as "the body of the future." It is one of the host of epoch-making advancements which instantly identify the Dodge Brothers Six as the greatest more-for-the-money car in Dodge Brothers history.

The Mono-piece Body is an original and exclusive Dodge Brothers Six feature, presented by Walter P. Chrysler, who inspired this record-breaking new car. Literally one-piece, the Mono-piece Body is proof against squeaks and rattles. Even after thousands of miles of hardest usage it remains as tight, as firm and as noiseless as when new.

Providing an abundance of room with a new degree of grace, the Mono-piece Body is stylishly trim. Doors and windows are wide. In fact, the Mono-piece Body, in every way, stamps the new Dodge Brothers Six as the herald of a new era of greater beauty, greater comfort and even greater dependability in motor car design.

Your Dodge Brothers dealer will be delighted to explain in detail every one of the many interesting and important features of Mono-piece Body construction, as well as the many other unduplicated betterments which this marvelous car has introduced.

Balsam-Wool Blanket

A Balsam-Wool Blanket in the attic will make the whole house cool and livable

Think back to the sizzling days last summer when the house was "like a bake oven." Will you go through it again this summer—and in all the summers to come? You need not—there is an easy way to avoid it.

A blanket of Balsam-Wool in the attic will put an end to discomfort—prevent the sun's heat from penetrating—make even the upstairs bedrooms cool and comfortable—bring nights of comfort after the hottest days.

Balsam-Wool is TRUE Insulation

Balsam-Wool is a thick, flexible blanket which tucks snugly into crevices and corners, fits closely between studding, joists and rafters. It is the identical material used in the most modern refrigerators to keep the outside heat from penetrating.

The service of Balsam-Wool to you does not cease with the summer's end. Just as it keeps the sun's heat out in summer, so in winter it keeps the furnace heat in—stops the costly leakage of heat through the roof—saves you so large a part of your fuel bills that it soon pays for itself.

Easy to Apply

Any good carpenter can put a Balsam-Wool Blanket in your attic—quickly and without muss. The full inch thickness is recommended. Now is the time to have it done—before hot weather comes. Ask your carpenter to call and tell you how little it costs, or 'phone your lumber dealer today.

PURCHASING BILL LIKELY TO PASS SENATE TUESDAY

Gov. Caulfield Takes Hand and Lines Up Enough Republican Votes to Get Measure Through.

By CURTIS A. BETTS,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, May 4.—Passage of the Casey bill creating a State purchasing agent, which is expected in the Senate Tuesday, will shift the responsibility for the governmental reform legislative program directly to the Republican House of Representatives, first to Speaker Parker and after that to the membership of the House.

Gov. Caulfield, surprised at the developments of Republican opposition to the central purchasing bill in the Senate, yesterday took a hand in negotiations looking to the lining up of enough Republican votes to pass the bill. As a result there now is virtually no doubt of the success of the bill when it is called up.

Senators Curfman of Maryville, Harlin of Gainesville, Rehkop of Cleveland, and Warner, Depelheuer and Mogler of St. Louis are Republicans counted upon to support the Governor in his desire for the passage of the bill, and it is probable all Republican opposition will be withdrawn when it is realized it cannot defeat the legislation.

16 Democrats for Bill.

Democratic leaders are confident there will be 16 Democratic votes for it, though if Republican strength had held solidly against central purchasing, there would have been enough Democratic opposition to defeat it. Senator Buford of Ellington could be counted against it, and Senators Searcy of Eminence and Gunn of Otterville could be expected to continue their policy of absenting themselves from the Senate chamber on practically all roll calls on budget and central purchasing bills. McCawley of Carthage has not been friendly to the purchasing measure. Wammack of Bloomfield, who voted with the Republicans on several roll calls, has indicated an intention of voting for the purchasing bill.

As the required number of aye votes to pass a bill is only 18, the Democratic loss will be more than met by gain of Republicans.

Aside from the merits of the proposals, the element of practical politics has entered the situation, and, for that reason, frequently a much more compelling influence in legislation than is the merit in the proposals under consideration, the outlook for the chief part of the Governor's program is better than it has been at any time since the Legislature convened.

Two Important Bills.

With the passage of the central purchasing bill, the Democratic Senate will have acted on two of the bills introduced at the instance of the Governor, the other being the budget bill. The Democratic branch of the Legislature will have carried out the pledge of the Democratic platform, and will have acceded to the request of the Republican Governor.

The responsibility will then have been transferred to the Republican House, and if the bills ultimately should fail, public criticism would attach to the House.

While it is not likely that the Republicans will permit themselves to get into that situation, Charles U. Becker, the Republican Secretary of State, has not relaxed the least bit in his opposition to the whole program of reforming the financial end of the State Government, and his influence in the House is considerable. It at least is enough to make the passage of the bills uncertain unless the Governor exerts an influence. That he will do so is not to be doubted. He has a keen interest in the legislation.

One Committee Friendly.

Speaker Parker has the first duty in the House in connection with the bills. He has not been considered friendly to them, but after a conference with the Governor this morning, he referred the budget bill to the Committee on Taxation and Revenue, of which Represenetative Everett R. Meyer of Kansas City is chairman. This committee has been considered one of the better committee of the House. If the central purchasing bill also is sent there, the two measures will be in a committee in which they may be expected to receive proper consideration.

It is not expected the House will pass the purchasing bill in the form it left the Senate. Amendments to exclude the State University and the Highway Department from submitting their purchases to supervision of the State Purchasing Agent undoubtedly will be offered and probably will be adopted. Becker most certainly will try there to have the bill amended to permit him to continue supervision of printing. If Becker's amendment is adopted, there is danger of defeat of the whole plan, as the sentiment among Democrats in the Senate appears to be firmly against the farce of having central purchasing and not including in it the one classification in which there has been the greatest waste. The Senate hardly will accede to a House amendment saving to Becker his printing perquisites, though it very likely would agree to the University and Highway Department amendments.

WEBSTER GROVES POLICEMAN PLAYS COWBOY FOR EVENING

Rounds Up 24 Mules That Break Corral for Second Time in Two Weeks.

Twenty-four mules from a railroad construction camp broke corral last night for the second time in two weeks and roamed at will over streets, alleys and lawns in Webster Groves until Police Sergeant Yadon, single-handed, drove them back into their barbed-wire enclosure again.

Yadon, as night chief, was alone when the mules-at-large alarm came in. Leaving headquarters in charge of a day policaman who happened in, he set out on a mule hunt which lasted three hours.

With several yards of rope, he rode his first capture bareback and ranged over residential Webster Groves, lassoing right and left. At 10:15 o'clock the last mule was safely back in the corral on the Missouri Pacific's right-of-way.

SAYS LAKE SHIP'S CREW FOUGHT FOR LIFE BELTS

Passenger, One of 25 Landed Safely, Praises Work of Officers, However.

By the Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, O., May 4.—That the desperate fight of the steamer City of Buffalo to avoid disaster on Lake Erie during the terrific storm of Thursday, yesterday and last night, was handicapped at one time by sailors who fought for life-preservers, was the story told by William Gibney of Buffalo, N. Y., one of the 25 passengers who were landed here safely today.

Girney, vice president of the Bingham Taylor Corporation said. "A narrow escape from death by drowning was made worse by an unruly crew. At one time three of the crew fought among themselves for possession of a life preserver when passengers were still waiting for theirs."

Gibney said, however, that the officers "showed remarkable calm and forcefulness in dealing with the crowd of inexperienced youngsters who made up the crew."

Officers Are Praised.

Other passengers were almost unanimous in praise of the splendid control of the situation by the ship's officers under command of Capt. Allan Strachan.

"It was a terrible experience and all efforts of officers of the ship to restore order were frustrated by the crew. The crew was inefficient and unruly, and only through excellent work by the officers was a panic prevented," D. L. Cheney, Buffalo representative of the Marion Steam Shovel Co., of Marion O., said.

The City of Buffalo tonight was awaiting repairs at a dock in harbor at Conneaut, O., where it was towed by three tugs after the passengers had been transferred today to the City of Erie.

The steamers' fight against the storm began shortly after it left Buffalo for Cleveland Thursday night. Almost at the height of the storm, yesterday morning, it burst a cylinder head on one of its engines, and then, drifting without power, lost its rudder.

Tow Line Broke.

Distress signals were sent out and the freighter Franz, two tugs and a Coast Guard vessel answered. The Franz got a cable aboard the passenger boat, but after towing it a short distance the cable broke. Other attempts to give succor failed, and the City of Buffalo drifted mile after mile toward shore.

Finally Capt. Strachan put his last hopes of saving the vessel into the chance that an anchor would hold. He won.

The City of Erie arrived this morning and took off the exhausted and nervous passengers. Then the City of Buffalo was towed into the harbor.

E. C. Wollaeger of Cleveland Heights, O., another passenger, said that "remarkable seamanship was shown by the crew." "I was frightened when we lost our rudder, but my confidence was restored by the ship's officers," he said.

There were only three women pasasengers aboard. Two of them became hysterical for a while.

Some of the passengers tried dancing yesterday morning to keep up their spirits, but it wasn't successful, Mrs. Martha Prince of Buffalo said.

BUS TO REPLACE STREET CAR SERVICE ON PAGE IN COUNTY

Tracks From City Limits to Creve Coeur Line Ordered to Be Torn Up.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., May 4.—An order authorizing the St. Louis Public Service Co. to remove the street car tracks on Page avenue between the city limits and the Creve Coeur line in St. Louis County, was issued today by the Missouri Public Service Commission conditional upon the company's furnishing adequate motor bus service as a substitute for the street car service to be abandoned.

The Commission's order provides that the fare on the busses shall be the same as the street car fare, and no charge shall be made for transfers to intersecting or connecting street car lines.

Property owners residing along the Page line carried the case before the Commission complaining that the Page line tracks, between the city limits and the Creve Coeur line, did not conform to the street grade, obstructed traffic, and formed a hazard to traffic. The company in its reply said it had no objection to removing the tracks and substituting bus service.

The Commission ruled that it had no authority to compel the removal of the tracks because the franchise for the line was in force, but did have power to authorize removal of the tracks and substitution of another mode of transportation.

Lead and Zinc Prices Unchanged.

Lead held at $90 a ton. Purchase of zinc dropped to 6520 tons, less than half of the week's productions, and the smallest for several months. A sharp reduction in output will be accomplished in the coming week. A large number of mills began observing a five-day week today by closing at noon.

U. S. Army Band Sails for Seville.

NEW YORK, May 4.—The United States Army band of 93 pieces sailed on the Leviathan today to play at the International exposition to be held in Seville, Spain. John Philip Sousa who, with the Mayor's Committee, saw the band off, has written a new piece, "The Flower of Spain," which it will play at Seville. Capt. W. J. Stannard is leader of the band.

FIRING BREAKS OUT ANEW IN BERLIN RED STRONGHOLD

Residents of Neukoelln Suburb Appear on Roofs Despite Orders — Shooting Follows.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, May 5 (Sunday).—Desultory firing broke out again early this morning in the Communist stronghold in the Neukoelln suburb. It was the fifth day of shootings growing out of the demonstrations of May day.

Police searchlights had revealed persons on roofs along Handjerystrasse in defiance of the police order for all residents to remain within their homes after 8 p. m. These persons were driven from their posts by the firing, but reappeared after a while.

A police lieutenant was fired on from a nearby cafe where Red front fighters had assembled. The police forced their way in and cleared the cafe of customers. All were searched and arms were seized. It was almost 24 hours since the last outbreak had occurred.

A demonstrator who on May day attempted to shoot Police Colonel Heimannsberg yesterday was sentenced to two months' imprisonment, the first of the rioters to be brought to book. When threatened with a revolver, the Colonel seized the Communist and drove him to the police station in his own car. The authorities withheld the name of the prisoner.

Police charged with their sticks yesterday afternoon to break up an attempted protest demonstration against the Berlin police in Soloseum Hall despite the police ban on meetings. The gathering of 300 men and women, including 50 members of "The Red Front," refused to disperse.

Sympathizers replied to the police charge by throwing stones. Police arrested 40.

The communist disorders have caused 27 deaths. Several hundred have been injured in varying degrees.

The shooting of a New Zealand newspaper man, Charles Erau Mackay, who was killed early yesterday morning in Neukoelln, may prove the starting point for an investigation of police conduct during the riots. Part of the Berlin press already has demanded an inquiry to determine whether police used justifiable methods to quell the disorders or whether they overstepped the bounds in their zeal and made innocent victims of their shooting.

Criticises Conduct of Police.

D. S. Demer, correspondent of the London Daily Express, whom Mackay assisted in covering the Neukoelln riot, was especially critical of police conduct, charging that it was negligence on the part of police and a disregard for human life that was responsible for Mackay's death. Demer said that inadequate police guards made it impossible to tell where the danger zone in Neukoelln began while police in armored cars patrolled the area firing shots at random.

"Mackay had no intention of entering the danger area," he said, "and if he did so it was by a accident for which police are responsible."

Police assert on the contrary that Mackay disregarded urgent warnings at the police district headquarters and insisted on entering the danger area and was thus responsible himself for his death.

However this may be, police were under heavy criticism from various quarters. The Communists represent the police as "bloodhounds." On the other hand, the parties of the right wing have raised the cry that police were inefficient, asserting that the Socialist Municipal Government, by always dismissing the Communists as "political infants," deceived themselves and were now caught unprepared. Even the Liberal press does not spare the police, declaring that they lost their heads and shot when there was no need, as shown by the death of Mackay and by the killing of a middle-aged man who merely crossed the street.

Demand Chief Be Suspended.

Communist deputies in the Reichstag have introduced an interpellation demanding immediate suspension of Police Chief Zoergiebel, the punishment of police officers who repressed the disorders and the removal of the ban on demonstrations. The Bourgeois press described their action as "impudence."

TRYING TO GET RID OF ONE WIFE, HE ACQUIRES TWO

KANSAS CITY, Kan., May 4.—William Melvin Nail, 42 years old, today found himself with two wives but was hopeful of obtaining an annulment from wife No. 2, so he may legally divorce wife No. 1 and remarry wife No. 2.

Yesterday after attending a hearing for divorce from Mrs. Lena Nail he left the courtroom, obtained a license and was married immediately to Mrs. Carrie Kliesen.

He did not understand the divorce had been denied, he said today. He also professed ignorance of a Kansas law which forbids remarriage until six months following the granting of a divorce. Nail's lawyer said today he would ask that an emergency be declared and annulment proceedings started immediately.

DETECTIVES ORDERED TO IDENTIFY SELVES PROMPTLY

Gerk Tells Plain Clothes Men They Must Be Courteous When Stopping Citizens.

City detectives must identify themselves as police officers immediately when stopping citizens on the street to question them, Chief of Police Gerk told district commanders in a general order issued yesterday.

"There have been several complaints of late," the order said, "that auto-riding crews have run their cars to the curb opposite some unsuspecting man, who is immediately surrounded by officers demanding to know who and what he is, where going and what his business is. All this without the interrogators identifying themselves. Such conduct on the part of police officers is reprehensible in the extreme and will not be tolerated.

"The assumption that persons stopped are thugs and crooks is not in line with the policy of the department, which is to treat all citizens with courtesy and consideration."

CHAMPION OARSMAN FOR TWENTY-FIVE YEARS COMES OUT FOR WELDONA

John L. Joachim of North Vandeventer Ave. Tells How Weldona Tablets Conquered His Rheumatism

Mr. John L. Joachim, the well-known oarsman and building superintendent of Nugents uptown store, who resides at 420A North Vandeventer avenue, is enthusiastic about Weldona tablets and what they have accomplished in his case. Mr. Joachim said: "I suffered with rheumatic arthritis for seven years in almost every joint in my body. My arms, shoulders, legs, knees and ankles were sore, stiff and painful. My hands were sore and stiff and my knees so stiff that it was difficult for me to go up or down stairs. After sitting down my knees would become so stiff that I would have to pull myself up.

At night the pain would often keep me awake and it was hard to find a comfortable position. My hands were weak and I could not hold a cup or comb my hair. My joints creaked and snapped and made day and night a continued misery. I had tried about everything recommended for rheumatism but nothing seemed to reach my case until I obtained Weldona tablets, even serum failed to help me. I read about the good work Weldona tablets were doing, and after taking it a short time the results have been remarkable. I can get a good night's rest, have no trouble in going up or down stairs and feel like a new man. I am deeply and sincerely grateful for all Weldona has done for me and cannot say enough in praise for it. Any one may investigate my case further by calling on me in person or by writing me. I want others to be benefited as I have."

$1000 reward to anyone proving that testimonials are not genuine.

Weldona tablets are always put up in a box—never in a bottle. Weldona tablets are recommended for rheumatism and rheumatic conditions only. Weldona tablets are absolutely harmless and will not upset the stomach, affect the heart or any other organ.

The Weldona representative, who now meets the public every day at Walgreen's Drug Store, 514 Washington Ave., St. Louis, gladly explains more about this remedy and gives out the 24-page fully illustrated and interesting books, entitled "Germs of Rheumatism," which are absolutely free of charge to all who call or write for them.

PETITION TO WIDEN WASHINGTON BLVD.

57 Property Owners Ask That Roadway Be Increased by 10 Feet.

A petition from 57 property owners, asking that Washington boulevard's roadway be widened from 40 to 50 feet, between Vandeventer avenue and Kingshighway, by taking five feet from the sidewalk on each side, has been filed with the Board of Public Service, which will conduct a hearing on the proposal. City engineers estimate the cost, to be charged to abutting property, will be about $4 per front foot, but total cost has not been calculated.

Widening to the same extent and in the same way was done with Washington boulevard between Grand boulevard and Vandeventer last year.

Property owners recently petitioned for widening the Delmar boulevard roadway between Grand and Taylor avenue by cutting down the sidewalks, and that scheme also is pending. It is proposed to cut four feet from each sidewalk between Grand and Vandeventer, at an expense of $32,120, making the roadway 55 instead of 47 feet wide, and to cut six feet from each sidewalk between Vandeventer and Taylor, at a cost of $59,150, making the roadway 56 instead of 44 feet wide.

A hearing is to be conducted by the board on the plan for Delmar. There has been some criticism of the Delmar project because none of the expense would be met with bond money, but city officials maintain that such improvements are not of city-wide benefit and should be charged only to the abutting property. Major street paving projects are paid in part with bond money.

Delmar residents have been comparing the plan for West Belle place, which is to be paved between Vandeventer and Taylor, at an estimated cost of $136,210, of which 25 per cent will be paid from bond funds and the remainder by special taxes on the abutting property. West Belle's improvement is regarded by the city officials as a major aid to traffic.

MISSOURI HOUSE HOLDS PERFUNCTORY SESSION

Up With Its Work, It Meets Briefly to Comply With Constitutional Requirements.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, May 4.—The brief vacation being taken by the Missouri House of Representatives, while waiting for the Senate to pass some of the hundreds of bills crowding its calendar and send them to the House for concurrence, was interrupted today long enough to go through the motions of a session, to keep the record straight and to comply with the constitutional requirements. The Constitution provides that an adjournment or recess of more than three days shall have the effect of adjourning the Legislature sine die.

When Speaker Parker convened the House only 29 of the 150 members were present. The order of business was read hastily by the Speaker, a resolution adopted lamenting the death of a former member, and a record made of the reference of a few Senate bills to House committees for consideration. The House then adjourned to Tuesday.

The House suspended business Wednesday night, after virtually clearing its calendar of House bills. This move was intended to prod the Senate into action on passage of bills, and particularly on consideration of bills passed by the House.

JOHN WILLIAMS DIES AT 85

He is survived by five daughters, the Misses Ethel and Marcia Williams, Mrs. Bessie Ellis, Mrs. Catherine Bolling and Mrs. Daisy Johnson, and a sister, Mrs. Sally Boyd. Funeral services will be held Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock from the Methodist Church at O'Fallon, with burial in Oak Grove Cemetery at St. Charles.

LAWYER HELD FOR BAD CHECK

Walter W. Schick, County Judicial Candidate, Arrested.

Walter W. Schick, an attorney of Glendale, has been arrested on a charge of cashing a worthless $15 check at a Maplewood grocery, under a warrant issued yesterday by Justice of the Peace Werremeyer.

According to Werremeyer, Schick cashed the check Jan. 9 and failed in a promise to make it good. He was an unopposed Democratic candidate for Circuit Judge last November.

Millions of Families Depend on Dr. Caldwell's Prescription

When Dr. Caldwell started to practice medicine, back in 1875, the needs for a laxative were not as great as they are today. People lived normal, quiet lives, ate plain, wholesome food, and got plenty of fresh air and sunshine. But even that early there were drastic physics and purges for the relief of constipation which Dr. Caldwell did not believe were good for human beings to put into their systems. So he wrote a prescription for a laxative to be used by his patients.

The prescription for constipation that he used early in his practice, and which he put in drug stores in 1892 under the name of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is a liquid vegetable remedy, intended for women, children and elderly people, and they need just such a mild, safe, gentle bowel stimulant as Syrup Pepsin.

Under successful management this prescription has proven its worth and is now the largest selling liquid laxative in the world. The fact that millions of bottles are used a year proves that it has won the confidence of people who needed it to get relief from headaches, biliousness, flatulence, indigestion, loss of appetite and sleep, bad breath, dyspepsia, colds and fevers.

Millions of families are now never without Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and if you will once start using it you will also always have a bottle handy for emergencies.

It is particularly pleasing to know that the most of it is bought by mothers for themselves and the children, though Syrup Pepsin is just as valuable for elderly people. All drug stores have the generous bottles. A trial is sure to convince any household of the merits of this famous prescription.

ACCIDENTS FATAL TO 451 IN CITY LAST YEAR

Motor Vehicles Involved in Almost Half of Deaths, Falls in Home Second.

Motor vehicles were involved in almost half of the 451 accident fatalities which occurred in St. Louis in 1928, according to a statistical analysis issued yesterday by the St. Louis Safety Council.

Motor vehicle deaths numbered 215; falls in the home ranked second, with 65 deaths; fatal injuries in line of duty in business establishments were third, with 39 deaths, and falls in streets or public buildings, fourth, with 32 deaths.

Of the 451 fatalities, 276 occurred in public places, 116 in homes and 59 in industrial plants.

The public accidents are divided: Motor vehicles, 215; steam railways, 11; electric railways, 12; falls, 32, and burns, drownings, elevators, runaways and miscellaneous, one each.

Tabulation of Home Fatalities.

The home fatalities: Burns, 21; asphyxiation, 9; falls, 65; firearms, 5; infection, 4; poison, 5, and miscellaneous, 7.

"The traffic accident record was the worst in seven years," said Girard C. Varnum, manager of the Council. "Besides the 215 fatalities, 5375 serious injuries occurred and property damage ran upwards of $2,500,000. Analysis shows that 154 traffic accidents took the lives of 156 pedestrians, and 53 fatal collisions between motor vehicles, street cars, buildings, trains, poles and trees occurred, in which 59 lives were lost.

"The fact that Coroner's juries rendered verdicts of criminal carelessness or homicide in 46 fatal pedestrian accidents draws attention to a very serious condition. In 16 of these 46 cases drivers fled the scene, leaving their dead in the street behind them and making no effort to render assistance which might in some cases have saved the lives of the injured.

Urges Punishment of Drivers.

"This is a disgraceful condition for any civilized community. The fact that in only five of the cases in which the drivers fled were these drivers apprehended, shows the need for a greater concentrated police effort in apprehending these drivers and a severe policy of law enforcement so to punish this class of drivers that the fear of the law and its consequences will act as a deterrent against this type of offense in the future. There is no greater living coward than the driver who will flee the scene of an automobile accident, leaving that unfortunate person who has been hurt, perhaps dying, in the street behind him.

"The St. Louis Safety Council in its campaign for accident reduction, is now laying plans for a safety organizations of those who operate passenger cars. It already has started a non-accident competition among nearly 2000 drivers of commercial vehicles. In addition to this educational campaign, the council will continue to encourage strict law enforcement by the police and the courts in the hope of securing convictions in the cases of motor car drivers operating their cars without regard for the life, limb or property of others."

LOU HARLOW'S BROTHER MADE FOREMAN AT NEW WATERWORKS

Replaces Raymond Arrow, Who Gets Logan Harlow's Old Job in City.

Raymond Arrow, a city Water Division foreman, is being transferred from the new Missouri River waterworks to the distribution section in the city, and his old place is being given to Logan Harlow, a brother of Lon W. Harlow, who is a close personal and political friend of Mayor Miller. Logan Harlow has been in the employ of the department for about two years in the position to which Arrow is being sent.

Since the first of the year Arrow and his family have had the privilege of using a house owned by the city on the waterworks property. He will vacate this and Harlow will occupy it. The pay of both positions is $190 a month. The job which Arrow is leaving involves direction of maintenance laborers. Water Commissioner Day declared yesterday that Harlow was more efficient and experienced than Arrow. The right to use the house was a "windfall" for Arrow, Day said.

Two years ago, while employed at Chain of Rocks, Arrow failed to make necessary preparations for fighting river ice, according to Day, whereupon he was demoted from a salary of $215 a month and sent to the Missouri River plant. Arrow has worked for the city for about 20 years.

60,000 STRAWBERRY PICKERS NEEDED, FRISCO ESTIMATES

Railway Expects to Handle 2550 Carloads from Arkansas, Oklahoma and Missouri.

An estimate that 2550 carloads of strawberries will be carried over its lines this year was made yesterday by the traffic department of the Frisco Railroad. They will come from Missouri, Arkansas and Oklahoma. Last year the road carried 2313 carloads from the same region.

The Frisco estimates that more than 60,000 pickers will be needed to harvest the crop.

The first carload of strawberries from the Ozarks over the Frisco this season moved from Van Buren, Ark., May 1. The Frisco expects heavy loading this week in the vicinity of Van Buren and Mansfield, Ark. The movement of Missouri strawberries is expected to begin about May 20.

STOCK SALES BRING MONEY TO BUSINESS

High Fund Rates Have Not H[illegible] American Industries Since Security Market Has Provided Vehicle for Corporations to Raise Ample Funds Review Says.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, May 4.—The Evening Post in copyrighted weekly financial review, says:

"With the passage of time the situation, if anything, becomes more rather than less difficult to unravel and surprisingly few men today profess to understand where the year will bring us. The advent of May introduces no fundamental change in the credit situation but it finds a prosperity in still fuller bloom than before. So if the second quarter to date is disappointing in its failure to lead the market to definitely cheap money the news is encouraging for the record pace in industry revealed. Consequently the market weighs the distinctly bearish aspects of the credit situation and the distinctly bullish aspects of the business situation and advances or recedes according as the emphasis for the moment directs. Lately the market has crept forward repeatedly to the old peak levels but it has not yet been able to push through for a new high without meeting more stock than it could readily absorb.

Quarter Reveals Big Gains.

"Not many quarters in all history exhibit a more brilliant earnings record for American corporations than the first three months of 1929 for which reports now are coming in. Net profits of the 226 leading industrial concerns that have issued their quarterly statements rose 32.1 per cent above the same period in 1928, and, if General Motors be deducted from the computation, the composite gain for the remaining 225 concerns is 46.2 per cent. Such amazing results cannot fail to impress a market that is by nature bullish and that is quick to note the high rate at which industry still is running.

These surprising gains represent improvement not in one or two leading indusrties but in a wide variety of enterprises. Even the railroads that have so far reported show a net income for the first quarter 47.6 per cent greater than that a year ago whereas the utilities earned 12.9 per cent more than in the first three months of 1928.

Business at High Level.

"That the credit stress has not yet greatly injured American business is plain to anyone who examines the first quarter earnings reports and who follows the industrial statements on current operations. With the steel industry running at capacity, the motor industry making more cars than even the optimists had predicted, and the building industry maintaining a high level of activity it is difficult to become apprehensive over business. High money rates have not hurt American business since the stock market has provided a convenient vehicle through which corporations by the sale of stock might raise ample funds. Yet the last four months have revealed the possibility of trouble in the next six months or year, if money continues hard, through an adverse effect on foreign trade. Seven European central banks have been compelled to raise their rediscount rates since the year's turn to check a serious depletion in their reserves that was in process.

Gold Lost by Foreign Banks.

"High money on this side of the water largely is responsible for a $410,000,000 loss in gold and foreign exchange reserve holdings by 18 European central banks since the beginning of the year. That the condition is alarming yet nobody contends but at this time of the year Europe normally expects to build up her reserves in anticipation of the fall demands. There is thus significance in the loss for Germany since the begining of the year of $158,000,000, Holland $75,000,000, France $67,000,000, Italy $32,000,000, Czecho Slovakia $21,000,000, Switzerland $17,000,000, Sweden $10,000,000 and Austria $10,000,000. No small part of America's prosperity is contributed through benefits from a large and exceedingly profitable export trade and it would be most unfortunate if through a failure to corect the credit position this country later on should find its export demands falling off as a result of depletion in Europe's purchasing power.

CORPORATION REPORTS

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 4.—Universal Pictures Co., Inc., reports net loss of $98,023 in the quarter ended Feb. 2. This contrasts with net profit of $265,497 in the same period of the previous year.

Yale & Towne Manufacturing Co. had first quarter net profit of $573,854 against $373,089 in the first quarter of 1928. Net income equaled $1.30 a share on the common compared with 93 cents in the first three months of 1928.

Rediscount Rate Unchanged.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 4.—The Board of Directors of the Federal Reserve Bank at San Francisco announced today that the rediscount rate remained unchanged at 4½ per cent.

The Frisco Lines estimate that 2550 carloads of strawberries will move this season from points on the line in the Ozarks of Missouri, Arkansas and Oklahoma. This would compare with 2312 carloads moved last year. The Frisco estimates that more than 60,000 pickers will be needed to harvest the crop. Heavy loadings are expected next week in the vicinity of Van Buren and Ansfield, Ark. The movement of Missouri strawberries is estimated to begin about May 20.

An oil painting of the late George H. Plant, former president of the Merchants' Exchange and head of the George P. Plant Milling Co., has been hung on the east wall of the Merchants' Exchange trading hall, which has just been repainted. The painting, 42 by 60 inches, was given to the exchange by Samuel Plant, a son.

Foreign Exchange

NEW YORK, May 4.—The Evening Post in copyrighted weekly foreign exchange market review, says:

"The foreign exchange market during the week was of far more importance than was indicated by the open transactions. At times there was renewed uncertainty over the German situation resulting from the failure to reach an agreement on reparations and the mark was again under pressure, falling back from 23.72 to 23.68. The renewed prospect for a settlement, however, had an influence in steadying German exchange again, although there was continued evidence of heavy buying of guilders and Swiss francs for German account.

"This buying of Swiss and Dutch brought the rates of both currencies up to new high levels for the year and the tone was well maintained up to the end of the week, although yesterday absence of urgent demand was reflected in slight recession from the high range. Swedish exchange also reflected buying for German account, cables on Stockholm moving up to 26.73, and there was a special demand also for exchange on Norway.

"French and Italian moved within a narrow range, both exchanges being held in close control by Government agents. Italian was held close to 5.24 and for a time French ranged close to 3.91.

"The market for Far Easterns showed a heavy tone, there being little demand for either Hongkong dollars or taels, and transactions here could only be effected at concessions. Indian exchange was also heavy, making a new low for the year during the week.

"Sterling held close to $4.85⅜ for cables all through the week, having only a range of 1-16 of a cent. Canadian exchange also showed little variation, ruling at 99.25. Havana exchange moved up 1-16 of a cent to 1-16 cent premium. Uruguay developed a better tone, rallying from 96.50 to 97.50.

LEAD STOCK FEATURE OF WEEK'S TRADE

Consolidated Sells Up to 17 on Turnover of 7710 Shares — Stix, Baer & Fuller Records Gain.

Consolidated Lead featured the larger market on the St. Louis Stock Exchange last week, selling up to a new high for the year at 17, on turnover of 7710 shares. The final price of 17 represented a net gain of 2¼ points for the period.

Stix, Baer & Fuller, National Candy, Wagner Electric, Landis Machine, Moloney Electric and International Shoe were other issues prominent in the week's trade.

Opening the week at 35, Stix, Baer & Fuller recorded a high for the period of 38⅝, from which level it reacted to 38 for net gain of 3 points. National Candy sold at unchanged to lower level during the week on turnover of 4942 shares. Wagner Electric, transactions in which ran above 5000 shares, also was off during the week.

Moloney Electric was irregular, making a new high for the year at 63 and then reacting to 59⅞ for a net loss of 1⅞ points. Landis Machine, on the other hand, opened at 59¼, sold down to 55½ and rebounded 5 points in one day to 60½; closing the week at 60, for net gain of fraction.

International Shoe started out unchanged, sold off, recovered and recorded net gain of 1½ points. Coca-Cola Bottling Securities rose fractionally.

Huttig sold 17 and 17½. Ely-Walker closed higher and Rice-Stix lower.

At the closing session of the week Nicholas Beazley recorded a gain of a fraction on turnover of 1150 shares. National Candy, Wagner Electric and Bently also closed higher. A lot of 750 shares of Scruggs common changed hands at 17, fractionally off. International Shoe was down. Bank of Commerce gained 5 points.

The Frisco Lines estimate that 2550 carloads of strawberries will move this season from points on the line in the Ozarks of Missouri, Arkansas and Oklahoma. This would compare with 2313 carloads moved last year. The Frisco estimates that more than 60,000 pickers will be needed to harvest the crop. Heavy loadings are expected next week in the vicinity of Van Buren and Ansfield, Ark. The movement of Missouri strawberries is estimated to begin about May 20.

An oil painting of the late George H. Plant, former president of the Merchants' Exchange and head of the George P. Plant Milling Co., has been hung on the east wall of the Merchants' Exchange trading hall, which has just been repainted. The painting, 42 by 60 inches, was given to the exchange by Samuel Plant, a son.

Foreign Exchange

NEW YORK, May 4.—The Evening Post in copyrighted weekly foreign exchange market review, says:

"The foreign exchange market during the week was of far more importance than was indicated by the open transactions. At times there was renewed uncertainty over the German situation resulting from the failure to reach an agreement on reparations and the mark was again under pressure, falling back from 23.72 to 23.68. The renewed prospect for a settlement, however, had an influence in steadying German exchange again, although there was continued evidence of heavy buying of guilders and Swiss francs for German account.

"This buying of Swiss and Dutch brought the rates of both currencies up to new high levels for the year and the tone was well maintained up to the end of the week, although yesterday absence of urgent demand was reflected in slight recession from the high range. Swedish exchange also reflected buying for German account, cables on Stockholm moving up to 26.73, and there was a special demand also for exchange on Norway.

"French and Italian moved within a narrow range, both exchanges being held in close control by Government agents. Italian was held close to 5.24 and for a time French ranged close to 3.91.

"The market for Far Easterns showed a heavy tone, there being little demand for either Hongkong dollars or taels, and transactions here could only be effected at concessions. Indian exchange was also heavy, making a new low for the year during the week.

"Sterling held close to $4.85¾ for cables all through the week, having only a range of 1-16 of a cent. Canadian exchange also showed little variation, ruling at 99.25. Havana exchange moved up 1-16 of a cent to 1-16 cent premium. Uruguay developed a better tone, rallying from 96.50 to 97.50.

ALLEGHENY ISSUE LEADS BOND TRADE

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 4.—With the attention of traders still focused on a few highly active convertibles, the bond market was characterized today by the same uncertain price movements that attended it all week, resulting from diversion of interest to stocks and quietness of demand for the standard investment issues.

Influenced by the movement of stocks, Allegheny Corporation 5s, the convertible issue of the Van Sweringen Investment Co., and Pan-American Petroleum 6s returned to the trading limelight. The Pan-Americans closed with a gain of a point and a half. Allegheny Corporation 5s were the most active on the list and recorded a fractional gain. Public Service of New Jersey 4½s, continuing their rapid climb of the last few days, ran up 7 points to 200.

The recent favorites, American I. G. Chemical 5½s, American Telephone 4½s and American International 4½s, still were active, but week-end profit-taking caused them to slip downward fractionally toward the close.

Aside from the convertibles, the only very active issue was Frisco 4½s, which have been in demand since the New York State banking law was amended to broaden the list of railroads legal for savings banks.

News of an agreement between German and American representatives on reparations payments influenced continued firmness in German bonds. The Republic 7s, Central Agricultural Bank issues and industrials improved despite quiet trading in the foreign list. Other foreign issues were mostly firm, with Sweden Kingdom 5½s moving up more than a point to within a fraction of their year's high.

With the week-end absence of demand, United States Government obligations became soft. Most of them, however, finished with net gains for the week.

WIDE ASSORTMENT OF STOCKS ARE PUSHED TO PEAKS

Flood of Profit-Taking Checked—Advance Rumely Drops Sharply, Unsettling List for Time—Rebounds Some.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 4.—A flood of week-end profit taking was checked before the close of today's short session of the stock market, and a wide assortment of issues were pushed into new high ground, although a sprinkling of net losses remained at the close.

The selling was swelled early in the session by a rather unnerving break in the advance Rumely issues, which have been subject to violent pool activity in recent sessions, news of improved prospects of a settlement of the reparations tangle and heavy buying of the oil shares strengthened the market later.

The Associated Press price indices of 50 industrials and 20 utilities, which broke through their record highs of mid-March yesterday, were sent still further into virgin high territory. The days transactions fell but a little short of 2,000,000 shares, a substantial turnover for Saturday.

Look for Easier Credit.

The upturn of the call money rate yesterday, interrupting the gradual improvement from the acute money situation which developed a week ago, was rather discouraging to traders who had been looking for substantial improvement in credit with the passing of the month end requirements and inspired profit taking. Friday's rates carry over the week-end.

Banking quarters, however, held out some hope of easier credit next week, much depending upon the demands of the stock market cables from Paris indicating that German, British and American delegates had reached an understanding on the reparations settlement was the outstanding development in the days quota of news, which continued generally favorable. Some of the chain store systems reported further marked increases in sales, and formal announcement was made of Mariand-Continental Oil merger.

Advance Rumely common and preferred, which on Wednesday reached record prices of 104⅞ and 119, respectively, broke to 60 and 78, but rebounded to 69¼ and 84 at the close, off 13¼ and 5½ from last night. Wild trading in the stock has been influenced by conflicting reports emanating from various circles as to plans for refinancing and settling accumulated dividends of more than $30 due on the preferred. The company has earned nothing on the common stock for more than a decade.

A noteworthy strong point was Goodyear Tire, which rose more than 7 points partly apparently, on short covering. Chesapeake & Ohio was sent up 8 points to a new high price at 230, and the Van Sweringen issues generally were firm in sympathy with the movement.

Peaks in Oils.

In the oils Atlantic Refining and the Pan American issues were sent to new high levels, and Standard of New Jersey rose 2 points to within a fraction of its peak. A few of the motors were well bought on reports of April sales. Hudson and Packard advanced 3 and 4 points, and Marmon again went to a new high.

American Can, Columbian Carbon, Michigan Steel, Sparks Whittington and Wright Aero were among other issues reaching new top prices, Wright moving up 6 points to 138. Sears-Roebuck, U. S. Rubber, American Tobacco issues Du Pont, Eastman Kodak, and International Harvester made substantial headway. United Aircraft rallied 5 points.

Commodities Irregular.

Conspicuous soft spots were Allis Chalmers, American and Foreign Power, Electric Auto Lite, General Electric, and National Biscuit, which lost from 2 to 3 points. Radio sold off about 2 points, but regained most of its loss. General Motors closed steady after an early tendency to heaviness.

Commodity markets were irregular, wheat breaking about 1½ cents a bushel to new low levels for the year on predictions of a bearish Government report next week, and corn losing 1 cent or so on small cash demand and good weather. Cotton, on the other hand, sold up more than 50 cents a bale on unsettled weather over the belt.

COTTON CLOSES STEADY WITH WEATHER FACTOR

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 4.—Predictions of further showers in the cotton belt states over Sunday were apparently responsible for a continuation of the covering movement in cotton today. Prices advanced further with some buying believed to have been promoted by a show of stability in the Liverpool market. More or less profit taking appeared on the advances and there was also some selling for Western account which may have been inspired by weakness in wheat, but offers were well taken and after selling down to 18.78c, July advanced to 18.96c and closed at 18.91c. The general market closed very steady at 11 to 16 points net advance.

The opening was steady at 4 to 12 points higher on steadier Liverpool cables than had been anticipated and on further private reports indicating crop deterioration as a result of the recent unfavorable weather over the eastern belt and in the Far West. Shorts were disposed to cover for over Sunday and when the official weather forecast was published there was more general buying on the prospect of renewed showery conditions and somewhat lower temperatures in the Western belt. In some quarters there was a disposition to await more definite information before arriving at conclusions regarding the extent of crop damage and the necessity of replanting. So many complaints have been received during the past day or two that the opinion was expressed in some quarters that the favorable condition of the crop had been somewhat changed and it was generally admitted that dry warm weather was desired over the entire belt with the exception of Western Texas where rains are needed.

Realizing sales carried May down to 19.53c and December to 19.05c, but buying developed on the declines and these positions rallied to 19.70c and 19.15c respectively. Private cable from Liverpool reported local and Continental buying as well as covering and trade calling. Also said that a better cloth inquiry had developed from Egypt and the Near East. The amount of cotton on shipboard awaiting clearance at the end of the week was estimated at 89,781 bales against 96,335 last year.

Spot steady, middling 19.90c.

A STOCK Which Should Double in Value

The stocks of certain sound expanding companies have been doubling in value. Electric Bond & Share, selected by American Securities Service and advertised by our associate service, Investors Supervisory Service, December 9, 1927, under the heading, "A Stock Which Should Double in Value," has since advanced, been split three for one received rights which brings the old stock, then 75, to the equivalent of $286 a share.

Does anyone believe this country will now cease to grow and strategically situated companies expand?

Thorough investigation by our Staff now reveals another stock which we are willing to term, the same as we did in December, 1927, "A Stock Which Should Double in Value." Not a temporary speculation, but a sound, growing stock of real interest to investors.

Send name and address and our latest selection of a stock which should double in value will be sent you free.

LARGE WEEK-END TRADE ON CURB EXCHANGE

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 4.—A strong upward surge of prices on the Curb Market today, under impetus of heavy buying of some of the utilities, encountered the heavy week-end realizing. Offerings, however, were well absorbed and the market closed irregularly higher. Trading in the utilities again swelled sales to abnormally large proportions, the volume for the 2-hour session totaling 1,176,000 shares. The ticker ran for 43 minutes after the close.

Interest in the utilities was focused on United Corporation, the new-Morgan utility holding company. With no let-up in buying, the price quickly ran up 4 points to a new high at 66, despite the reputed large floating supply of shares. It was reported that United had become the largest single stockholder in the United Gas Improvement Company of Philadelphia. An initial block of 40,000 shares came out on the tape at 65⅞s and sales aggregated 189,000 shares. The preferred also was strong, advancing nearly 2 points on turnover of 36,600 shares.

United Gas Dips.

United Gas Improvement, reflecting the shift in interest to United Corporation and realizing, slumped 13 points. Southeastern Power & Light advanced more than 3 points following publication of a strong earnings report. Empire Power ran up 7 points following announcement that Rochester Central Power, a controlled subsidiary, had become affiliated with Associated Gas & Electric. The American Super-Power stocks shot up 9 points to new high at 146. Another strong spot was Allied Power & Light affiliated with United Corporation; the Electric Bond & Share group yielded to profit-taking.

Aviation issues also finished a little higher. Aviation Corporation of the Americas, Bendix Aviation, in which General Motors has an interest, Fokker, Irving Air Chute, National Aviation, North American Aviation, and Trans-Continental Air Transport closed fractionally to 4 points higher.

Auburn Up Slightly.

Auburn Auto, which is slated to move to the big board, was given a good send-off with a rise of 8¼ points. Other high-priced specialties and industrial were uneven. Aluminum dropped more than 3 points while Aluminum Limited made a new high at 138½. Perryman Electric also advanced to a new high at 28⅝ in connection with announcement that it has unfilled orders for 1,500,000 radio tubes.

Continental Oil was firm on disclosure of terms for merger with Maryland Oil but most of the oil and mine shares made little headway against the week-end liquidation.

WHEAT PRICE FOLLOWS LIVERPOOL DOWNWARD

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, May 4.—A substantial decline in wheat prices today followed a lower Liverpool market, prices abroad, according to comment, being influenced by planned cut in export rate on grain. There was report too of a bearish crop bulletin being out next week. Weather also was called factor. Corn futures were down.

In the cash grain market Saturday offerings of soft wheat were light and prices were 1 and 2c higher. Needs of mills were more or less pressing. Bright starchy kinds were wanted, but there was not much call for dark, damaged wheat, or ordinary qualities. Hard wheat was 1 and 2c off. At the end of the day No. 2 hard was offered at $1.15 with $1.14 bid. There were shipping orders for low protein types and local mills wanted some wheat, but there was only a car or so and a few low grades offered. Corn was steady to 1c lower. Depression was due to selling in future contracts and larger cash offerings. Elevators and industries were fair buyers when prices ranged off. Oats were ½c to 1c down. The decline was in sympathy with other cash grains and the future oat trade. There was a fair local demand.

Opening 1⅛c lower. July wheat early declined to 2½c below previous close, September being down 2 cents. Liverpool closed 1d lower on May, 1¼d on July and 1½d on September, the downturn abroad affecting domestic prices. Winnipeg was off 1⅝c early. Corn here showed fractional decline early.

July wheat opened at $1.14⅝. September wheat $1.18. July corn 94½c.

JULY AND SEPTEMBER WHEAT DROP TO LOWEST OF SEASON

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, May 4.—All Chicago deliveries of wheat except December collapsed today to a new low price record for the season. Lowering of railroad freight rates on United States export wheat shipments appeared to be having exactly a reverse effect from what they were intended to bring about. The rail rate reduction was put forward as a reason for downturns today in wheat prices at Liverpool, a sequel to which was the decided drop in wheat values here.

Wheat closed unsettled, 1¼c to 2¼c net lower, corn ¼c to 1⅝c down, Oats, ⅝c to 1c off. Provisions unchanged to a setback of 30 cents.

General selling that broke out in the Chicago wheat pit today found the market minus any adequate support. Price downturns that ensued were quickly given added momentum by execution of numerous standing orders which had been issued that wheat future delivery holdings be disposed of promptly at various set limits in order to stop losses. In addition to unlooked for setbacks in Liverpool wheat values today, the market here was bearishly affected by continued favorable domestic crop reports and by word that weather in Europe was more seasonable.

Besides, persistent good sized deliveries of wheat on Chicago May contracts did much to handicap friends of higher prices. A significant feature was that the deliveries were being made largely to commission houses rather than to export interests, a circumstance which indicated further re-deliveries. As many as 16 separate commission firms were reported as having taken in wheat today on May contracts.

Much bearish significance was attached to the fact that deliveries of wheat on May contracts here were remaining of large volume, today's total being upward of 800,000 bushels.

News was also at hand that May deliveries of wheat today at Winnipeg were heavy, amounting to 1,010,000 bushels.

Simpson Sets World Record of 9.5 Seconds for 100 Yards

14 NEW MARKS HUNG UP IN OHIO RELAYS; CHICAGO WINS THE MILE

By the Associated Press.

OHIO STADIUM, Columbus, O., May 4.—Beckoning with his flying spikes, George Simpson, the sprinting darling of Ohio State's track team, showed athletes from 60 colleges the way to glory today by breaking the accepted world record for the 100-yard dash in the feature event of the sixth annual Ohio relays.

Two weeks ago Simpson dashed off the century in :09.5 in a dual meet with Pittsburg, and today he did it again, winning by two yards from a fleet field on a cold day beneath a leaden sky. Officials of the meet said his mark would probably be recognized, as the three-mile wind had not aided him materially. It bettered by one-tenth second the time established by Dan Kelly in 1906.

Other Records Go.

Apparently inspired by the slender black-haired Columbus youth, the 2000 students in the university college and high school events lent themselves to the shattering of another world record in the 480-yard shuttle hurdle relay, the national collegiate record in the 440-yard relay and 14 records of past Ohio relays. In addition, marks were established for future meets in four new events, the university shuttle hurdle, 440-yard and four-mile relays and the preparatory school one mile relay.

A drizzling rain fell during the last half of the program.

The second world record to fall was in the university shuttle hurdle relay. Ohio State's quartet of ancis Pierce, Albert Petersilge, n Crooks and Dick Rockaway scored their way over the sticks in 1:01.8, breaking the record of 2.3 set by Illinois at the Drake relays last week. The Illini were second today.

Illinois' fleet squad of sprinters, d Timm, Jim Cave, Jim Patterson and George Burkhardt, conquerors at the Texas, Kansas and Drake relays, vindicated their claims to superiority over Ohio State by whipping the Buckeyes in 1.5, a new collegiate record, clipping one-tenth second off the mark set by Notre Dame and Pennsylvania in 1927.

Simpson's victory in the invitation dash was a thing of beauty. Facing the starter with Jack Elder of Notre Dame, Reginald Bowen of Pittsburg, and Don Bennett, Toledo Libbey School boy, he got off to slow start and was behind at [illegible] yards. Then he jumped his field, bounced into a two-yard lead and held it to the tape. The others came in almost together but the judges gave Bowen second, Elder third and Bennet fourth.

Ohio State, Chicago and Illinois each won two of the seven university relays, while Purdue took the odd number, the Distance medley event. Records fell in four of them while the other three were new events on the program.

Simpson Again Helps.

Ohio State's sprinters, anchored by Simpson, avenged themselves for Illinois' victory in the quarter

COLUMBIA CREW WINS BLACKWELL CUP; SETS RECORD

By the Associated Press.

DERBY, Conn., May 4.—Columbia's hour of Derby rowing glory came at last today in a hair-raising varsity victory over Yale and Pennsylvania and a totally unexpected sweep of all four races in the annual Blackwell cup regatta on the Housatonic River.

Pulling away from Yale in the final quarter, a big and smooth Columbia varsity beat the Eli's by a half a length, to set an all-time record, 10 minutes, 12½ seconds, for the race. Wilting under the furious pace, Penn trailed the winners by five lengths.

Coming on the heels of successive triumphs in the 150-pound varsity, junior varsity and freshman tests, the varsity victory crowned the husky pupils of young Richard Glendon undisputed king of the river.

First Cleanup.

It not only was Columbia's first clean sweep of all four races, but also was the first time in the seven-year history of this competition that any other eight than Yale had won the great three-cornered test.

In the final drive that sent them over the finish line first by the narrow but safe margin of half a length, the Columbians knocked a tenth of a second off the regatta record of 10 minutes, 12 3-5 seconds, set by Yale in 1926. Yale's time was 10.14½ and Penn had 10.34½.

Fast times were registered in the earlier races, in all of which Columbia was pressed, but invariably had the necessary power in the last few strokes to win.

In the 150-pound varsity curtain raiser Columbia sprang a minor surprise by beating out Penn and Yale in that order with a length separating both second and third places. With Ed Kilroe of New York stroking a heady race and Yale fading after a flying start, Columbia won in 7 minutes and 7 seconds over the Henley distance of a mile and five-sixteenths. Penn's time was 7.12½ and Yale's 7.17 3-5.

Junior Varsity.

In the junior varsity rush, the first of the full two-mile events, the Columbia entry won by three-quarters of a length from Yale, with Penn six and three-quarter lengths back of the winner. The times were 10:55, 10.58 3-5 and 11.21 1-5.

The Columbia freshman led all down the course to win from Yale by a half length, with Penn two lengths farther back. The times were 10.58½, 11.00 and 11.09.

HARVARD TRACK MEN OUTCLASS HOLY CROSS AND BROWN IN MEET

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., May 4.—The Harvard track team swamped Holy Cross and Brown here today in the first outdoor intercollegiate meet of the season. The Crimson ran up a total of 83 2-5 points, while Brown was second with 26 3-5 and Holy Cross last with 25.

OKLAHOMA LOSES IN DUAL TRACK MEET FIRST TIME IN SIX YEARS

By the Associated Press.

LINCOLN, Neb., May 4.—The Oklahoma Sooners, stellar tracksters of the "Big Six" conference, today lost their first dual track meet in six years, succumbing to the University of Nebraska, proteges of Henry "Indian" Schulte, by a score of 78 1-3 points to 52 2-3 points.

23 Strikeouts in 11 Innings.

CHILLICOTHE, Mo., May 4.—Chillicothe Business College took an 11-inning game from Wentworth Military Academy here this afternoon, 4 to 3. Bryant, on the slab for Chillicothe, had 23 strikeouts and allowed but four hits.

Dr. Freeland broke fast, was taken in hand for the first five furlongs, closed with good speed when put to a drive, wore Hermitage down and just lasted to stall off The Nut. Latter was allowed to trail far out of it for six furlongs, came to outside and closing with a belated rush, just failed to get up. Hermitage was hurried to the first turn and went into a good lead, saved ground all the way and held on gamely. Folking was unable to reach the leaders. Friar Cliff with speed early could not keep up, when the race test came.

$2 Mutuels Paid: Dr. Freeland, win $8.20, place $3.50, show $2.80; The Nut, place $2.70, show $2.20; Hermitage, show $2.90.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PIMLICO, Md., May 4.—Not more than the length of a head separated first, second and third horses at the finish of the Hilltop Handicap, trial for Preakness and Derby eligibles here this afternoon. Dr. Freeland was the winner.

The Nut, which finished second, beaten a short nose, might have reversed the order had he not been so dull, in the early portion of the race. He was coming with fine speed at the finish, making up two full lengths in the stretch in spite of the fact that he had the outside course. Earl Sande made a great effort to force Hermitage to maintain his early lead, but the horse appeared just short of the demands made upon him, although he stuck it out gamely and was beaten only a foot or two for all the money.

Folking, Friar Cliff and Host were apparently outclassed.

Dr. Freeland was the second choice in the betting. The fans made The Nut the choice. Dr. Freeland paid $8.20 for $2.

Altitude, racing in the colors of the Audley Farm, was winner of the Pimlico Oaks when she beat Mrs. F. Ambrose Clark's Aquastella by two and one-half lengths. March Hare, carrying the colors of the Wheatley Stable, was third. Eleven started. My Sis, Irish Morn and Eterne made the early pace but rounding the far turn Altitude went to the front and for the remainder of the trip held command. She paid a mutuel of $5.30.

The stake was worth $4760 to the winner.

The Green Spring Valley Steeplechase Handicap, a $5000 added stake, was an added attraction and it furnished a rousing contest. E. R. Bradley's Beelzebub, in a severe drive, managed to last long enough to stall of Red Bridge's rush at the end to wn by a nose. The Dorwood Stable's pair, Rubigny and Eider, followed heads apart, beaten a length and a half. There were 13 fences and Beelzebub was a forward contender the entire trip.

Jockeys P. Walls and E. Ambrose were suspended for three days by Starter James Milton for disobedience at the post in the fourth race, in which they were astride Aquestella and My Sis, respectively.

Wray's COLUMN

A Real Chance.

DANIEL PHILIP HOWLEY discreetly refuses to confirm an interview in a Detroit paper which quoted him as follows:

"I haven't made any prediction to date, but I'll make one now: St. Louis will win the American League pennant.

'The reasons are: We have the best pitching in the American League, we have a very smart baseball club and we have real fielding ability. There are other reasons, but I won't go into them."

Daniel denies the interview and invites fans to consider what a sucker he would be to pick his team to win the flag on 15 games' showing.

"The fact is, I said exactly what I told you before the season opened: 'I think we have a fine chance to beat out four other clubs that also have a real chance to capture the flag. That's as far as any sane manager would ever go,'" Daniel comments.

We Like the Sample.

DANIEL is right. The race is not to the man who gets off the mark first. A fast breaker gets the edge, but in a marathon it's the steady trudge that counts.

Accidents, bad breaks, the loss of an important cog for a few weeks—any little thing might throw a club off its stride long enough to cost it first place.

Besides, we note that the Athletics are thundering right with us and that New York is in close range. When that Yanks' artillery begins to popping, it will be time enough to put the question to the Browns.

In the meantime, a good start

Of the Post-Dispatch Sports Staff.

NEW YORK, May 4.—Jesse Joseph Haines did not have much except a hot temper this afternoon. The Giants slapped him for 14 hits and he gave five bases on balls and said a lot of impolite word-phrases to Umpire William Klem. To make it harder for Big Jess, his comrades played a rather dizzy game in the field.

But the Giants insisted on being dizzier and when the last mistake was made Billy Southworth's men were ahead, winning 10 to 7 in ten innings.

Taylor Douthit dropped a fly ball, Frankie Frisch made a wild throw to first base, another to second base and missed an easy grounder.

Chick Hafey fumbled a single and followed with a poor throw to the plate.

Every inning, it seemed, the Cardinals blundered, but the Giants finally out-blundered them.

Terry Out-Clowns 'Em All.

Bill Terry, the Giants' hard-hitting first baseman, made the big boob play of a silly afternoon.

In the ninth inning, after Melvin Ott had tied the score with a home run in the right field seats with one out, Terry hit a tremendous fly to left center. Taylor Douthit set sail for the ball and should have made the catch. Perhaps that is the only good explanation Terry could make. He fully expected Douthit to capture the fly. At any rate, Terry ran nonchalantly to first base and was so absorbed in watching the flying Douthit that he overlooked the formality of stepping on first base.

Urged on by Coach Ray Schalk, Terry increased his speed after rounding first and when the ball popped out of Douthit's hands Bill raced all the way to third. It looked dark for Haines and the Cardinals, with a man on third and only one out and the stands were in an uproar.

Jimmy Wilson on the Job.

But Jimmy Wilson was wide awake. He had been watching Terry and noticed that he had rounded first rather sharply. So when Gelbert took Douthit's throw-in and tossed to High, Wilson called for the ball, tossed to Bottomley and told him to touch first base and see what Umpire Magerkurth had to say. Bottomley went through the formality. That's all it usually is.

But this time the gesture was not in vain. Bottomley spoke to Magerkurth and the umpire flipped his right arm and pointed to Terry who was sitting on third base, catching his breath.

Jackson followed with a slow grounder to High. Andy managed to throw him out at first, but Terry could have scored from third if he had been there and the game would have ended with the box score stating "Two out when winning run was scored."

Nine Innings of Blundering Not Enough, So Giants Blunder Some More in Tenth

But the Giants had just begun to blunder. Bottomley led off in the tenth with a liner to right. Ott ran in for the ball, but not fast enough, and the ball popped out of his hand. Hafey slammed a double against the left field wall and Bottomley pulled up at third. Holm was purposely passed, filling the bases.

Gelbert hit off Dutch Henry's glove to Jackson and the shortstop's throw had Bottomley at the plate. But Jim slid for it, collided gently with Bob O'Farrell and that great catcher, the best in the business on plays at the plate, let the ball pop out of his glove. Bottomley was safe and the Cardinals were one run to the good and the bases were still filled.

Haney Bats in Two Runs.

Wilson sent a short fly to Leach and then Fred Haney was called on to bat for Haines. Haney was benched recently because he had failed to do his share of the hitting, but he came through in this pinch with a sharp ground single between short and second and Hafey and Holm scored.

The three-run margin was sufficient. Harold Haid pitched the tenth for the Cards and added to the excitement by hitting O'Farrell with a pitched ball and walking Pinch-Hitter Roush, but Welsh sent a long fly to left center that Douthit did not drop and Haid then struck out Andy Reese.

McGraw's men got after Haines right at the start. One out, Reese singled and after Lindstrom flied out, Ott walked and Terry made the first of his three straight hits, scoring Reese.

Douthit and High got their combination to working in the third. Taylor singled through the box and then Andy pumped one into the right-field stand for his first home run. They liked the idea of putting the Red Birds in the lead, and so in the fifth, did it again in much the same way. Douthit drew a pass in the second two-man rally, but High didn't change his plan any, hitting another four-bagger into the same stand.

Two singles in the second produced nothing, but in the third there was a pass between singles

BROWNS AND ATHLETICS ARE READY TO RESUME INTERRUPTED SCHEDUL

TEAMS BATTLE FOR THE LEAD; GRAY TO FACE RUBE WALBERG

By James M. Gould.

With their schedule somewhat water-logged by three successive days of rain, the Browns, anxious to show the home-folks what a league-leading team looks like, are beginning to wonder what kind of propaganda that was in the song which insisted that "it ain't gonna rain no more." If there is the slightest sign of weather-decency today, the teams led by Daniel Philip Howley and Connie Mack will wheel into action with Sam Gray, a winner of every one of his four 1929 starts and Rube Walberg, a southpaw nemesis of the Browns, as the opposing pitchers. With Saturday's wash-out, only two games remain of a series which opens the Eastern invasion and upon which the league-leadership depends.

Reports from the East indicate that the Athletics are behaving like a ball-club and if there is any doubt that the Browns are in the same class, Messrs. Bucky Harris of Detroit, Lena Blackburne of Chicago and Roger Peckinpaugh of Cleveland might be called to testify in their behalf. The proof of the baseball pudding is in the "games won" column and a glance at the standings shows that the Browns have won 11 and lost four while the opponents for today and tomorrow—always assuming that the weather permits action—have won nine and lost four.

Likes Bad Weather.

Gray, who will open hostilities for Howley, won't mind if the day is cold and wet. His two road-victories, one in Chicago and one in Detroit, were earned in the saddest kind of weather and the former Mackman declares he will have to train all over again to learn how to pitch when it gets warm.

The same battle-front that proved efficient on the recent trip will be continued in action by the Browns. Wallie Schang will do the catching indefinitely for the veteran never was better and the pitchers like to work with him. His cleverness and quick-thinking outweigh the weakness at the bat that Schang has shown this year.

The only other Brownie who has been consistently baffled by opposing pitching thus far is Oscar Melillo and, as in the case of Schang, the player's defensive play has been so superb there is no present possibility of his being supplanted.

There is a possibility that Howley may use against the Athletics the same pitching strategy he employed in Detroit—that is, feed them a left-hander in the person of Walter Stewart in the second game of the series. The Athletics, like the Tigers, are supposed to be "poison" to southpaws, but Stewart's feat in holding the Detroiters to two hits in eight innings may win him the starting honor tomorrow. As the Athletics have been idle two days, Mack's pitching staff is again ready to work in order and this series—if any—may disclose some real hurling workmanship.

McGowan Stars.

Frank McGowan's work since the season has been of highest caliber on defense and offense and the Manush-Schulte-McGowan outfield combination is functioning brilliantly.

The series scheduled with the four Eastern clubs gives the Browns their first real test for, truth to tell, outside of the possibility that Detroit will get some pitching, the three other Western clubs seem fitted only to make up the eight teams needed for a well rounded league.

If George Blaeholder works against the A's or against the Yanks, who follow them into St. Louis, Manion will be his catcher. The former Tulsan believes Manion is lucky for him. Ferrell, for the present, will be inactive, but is due to get plenty of work before the season is well along.

It will be interesting to note whether or not Jack Quinn works against the Browns. Quinn, dating from the time he was with the Yankees, has believed he cannot win at Sportsman's Park, and seldom is called upon.

Wonder what became of the 1929 edition of the balk rule?

Coff, District's Longest Driver, Hits Ball 300 Yards From the Tee

CLARENCE COFF, Westborough professional, who hits a golf ball farther from a tee than any other player in the St. Louis district.

Westborough "Pro" Neglected His Short Game to Get Distance but Horton Smith Showed Him How to Use His Irons.

By W. J. McGOOGAN.

Dub golfers who turn in scores higher than a hundred strokes for 18 holes but glory in the length of their drives from the tees have real cause to be jealous of Clarence Coff, professional at the Westborough Country Club, who is generally regarded as the longest driver in the St. Louis district.

Although Coff has never won a driving contest in the district, some of his feats seem to stamp him as the outstanding tee shot artist of the district beyond dispute. However, if there is anyone who would like to challenge his claims there is no doubt that Coff would be glad to try conclusions.

Began Playing at 14.

Clarence is 28 years of age, 5 feet 11¼ inches tall, and weighs 180 pounds. He began playing golf 14 years ago while he caddied at Triple A. He didn't take any lessons but learned the game from watching good players.

The longest drive Coff has ever made, that he recalls, was 410 yards long. This he did at West Frankfort, Ill., last year. He was playing a 621-yard hole. His second shot reached the green and he was down in four for a birdie on the par five hole.

At Westborough, Clarence drives most of the greens up to 331 yards with ease and he has even driven No. 2 green in one. This is the famous water hole at Westborough which is such a nightmare for the hundred shooters. It is 351 yards long. The water is a lake about 75 yards wide, 275 yards from the tee, and the green is on the far bank. Coff drove this green from the tee and of necessity the whole flight of the ball was in the air.

He ascribes his ability to get such tremendous distance out of his tee shots to exceptionally strong forearms and wrists and to a fast twist of the body as he swings into the ball.

Shines Up His Irons.

With all the advantage which his fine driving gives him there has always been a weakness in his game which has kept Coff from the top rank of golfers. That is his short game. He says he neglected this important feature of golf up to the past winter but now he is "red hot" with his irons and points to a 67 at Westborough and a 72 at Algonquin as proof.

Coff says he overcame his short game weakness this winter during a 12,000 mile trip through the Far West which he made with Ben Richter, Triple A professional. They played in many of the California tournaments in which the stars of the country played and Coff again got his lessons watching the good ones.

Horton Smith, Coff states, showed him how to stroke a ball smoothly with an iron and how to keep his head down long after the shot is made.

In a recent match at Algonquin Coff and Walter Pfeffer, president of Westborough, defeated Roger Lord and Art Goble. This was the match in which Coff made a 72. The teams are scheduled to play a return engagement at Westborough today.

Illinois Golfers Lose.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

URBANA, Ill., May 4.—In a Big Ten Conference golf match here today, Michigan defeated Illinois, 10½ to 7½, by scoring heavily in the doubles matches. In the singles the score stood 6-all, but in the doubles Michigan annexed 3½ points against 1½ for the Illini.

mile event by winning and breaking their record of 1928 in the half mile relay. The time was 1:27.1.

Chicago, anchored to victories in the one and two mile relays, broke the record in each, running the first in 3:22.4 and the second in 7:56.6. Ohio State's middle distance men were second in both events.

Illinois' four-mile team, holders of the intercollegiate record of 17:40.2, could do no better than 17:53.4 today, defeating Indiana, their only rival by 40 yards.

De Pauw College of Green Castle, Ind., won two of the five college relays as well as a second and a fourth. They chased home ahead in the one mile and 400-yard relays. Ohio Wesleyan won the 880-yard event, Western State Teachers' College of Kalamazoo, Mich., the two-mile event and Michigan State Normal the distance medley. Records in all college relays fell except the distance medley.

Records in four individual events for university and college athletes fell during the day. In addition to Simpson's record-breaking dash, Vic Pickard of Pittsburg cleared 13 feet 7½ inches in the pole vault; John Anderson of Cornell, another Olympic athlete, tossed his discus 157 feet 5¾ inches, within half a foot of the accepted world record, and Portmess of Northwestern broadjumped 23 feet 7⅞ inches.

Joe Sivak, former Illinois Athletic Club star, led the way in the one mile team race, helping Butler Colege win the event. Sivak's time of 4:26.3 was one-tenth second above the record.

STRONG WIND IS FATAL TO THIS 100-YARD RECORD

By the Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 4.—The world record mark for the 100-yard dash was bettered by one-fifth of a second here today in the Pacific Association track and field championships at Kezar Stadium when Russell Sweet of the Olympic Club, San Francisco, ran the distance in 9 2-5 seconds. The mark probably will not be allowed as a new record, however, as Sweet had a strong wind at his back.

Another world's mark was broken by Gloria Russell of the Northern California Athletic Club in the girls' baseball throw with a toss of 262 feet, 11 inches. The former record was 252 feet, 4 inches, held by Vivian Hartwick of the same club. Miss Hartwick took second today with a toss of 254 feet, 3 inches. This also bettered the old record but it is doubtful if either will be accepted, as they were aided by the wind.

Athletes from the Olympic Club won team honors in the championships with a total of 80 points. Stanford University placed second with 72 points, while the University of California was third with 19.

RAIN INSURANCE ON ONE OF 43 POSTPONED TILTS

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 4.—The business of writing rain insurance for major league baseball teams isn't what it used to be even though the rainy season this spring has been far more potent than the average.

Of the 43 games washed into summer double-headers and open dates because of excessive moisture about the big league diamonds, only one was insured. The Boston Braves took out a $6000 policy against rain for the opener with Brooklyn in Boston and started the season with a financial success when the first of a series of steady rains swept the Eastern seaboard.

As a whole, however, the business dwindled from a $5,000,000 affair in 1924 to a bare $800,000 worth of policies last season, with the prospect of a still greater drop this year. Stress of indemnity principles, rather than the possibilities of gambling with the weather and the increased cost of insurance, seems to have discouraged the customers.

Premiums Are Too High.

"The added gate attraction of double-headers later in the season and the possibility of playing off postponed games on open dates gives major league teams a chance to regain most of the cash lost during early rains," Leonard Peterson, an official of one of the largest companies handling this type of insurance, explained today. "Premiums are high on rain insurance and therefore it is not considered good business policy to insure games from day to day. Single events offer more attractive possibilities."

Cost of insurance against the weather varies according to type. Where a contest is prevented by rain falling during a period three hours before starting time and one hour after, the premium charged approximates 20 per cent of the insurance taken. If specification is made that one-tenth of an inch of rain must fall, the premium averages 10 per cent.

BRAVES BEAT PIRATES, 5 TO 3, AS SEIBOLD KEEPS HITS SCATTERED

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, May 4.—The league-leading Boston Braves opened a long home stand today by defeating the Pittsburg Pirates, 5 to 3, in the first game of their series.

Two of the Pirates' eight hits were home runs by Paul Waner and Grantham. The Braves gathered four of their five runs in the sixth inning, when they hammered Petty for three singles and a double. Maranville went through the game errorless, keeping his fielding record flawless. The box score:

GOLF
by W. J. McGOOGAN

On July 8 the qualifying round for candidates to represent St. Louis in the National Public links Tournament will be held over the Municipal links in Forest Park, Ben Lahrman, president of the Municipal Athletic Association, announced yesterday.

The city will be entitled to six representatives in the tournament, four for the team and two alternates. It is the plan at present to permit all entrants, expected to number about 60, to shoot 18 holes and then hold another tournament for the 32 low scorers.

Among those who are looked upon as leading candidates for the St. Louis team are Bob Isherwood, who won the District Junior title last year; Dr. I. R. Davis, Joe Fedor, Togo Hamamoto and Eddie Donohue.

Only those golfers who confine their activities to public links throughout the country are eligible to play in the tournament and officials handling the event here anticipate a record-breaking entry, numbering up to 150.

Lahrman has written to the United States Golf Association requesting permission for those golfers who play over public fee courses, such as Creve Coeur and on courses with a daily fee such as Westborough and Hillcrest, to enter the tournament, but he is not at all confident that this permission will be granted.

The prize for the winning team is the Warren G. Harding Cup, donated by the late President of the United States.

At a recent meeting of the members of the Hillcrest Club it was decided to conduct a membership campaign. There are now 410 members in the organization, and it is desired to secure 800 additional. Edward W. Foristel has been named chairman of the membership campaign.

The initiation fee to the club is $25 and dues are $30 per year.

G. F. Wood-Smith is president of the organization.

Women's Tourney Friday.

The first bi-monthly tournament of the Women's District Golf Association of the season which was twice postponed last week will be held at Bellerive Friday morning. There will be three classes of competition in all flights, low gross, low net and fewest putts.

Tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock committees representing the Missouri Professional Golfers' Association and the St. Louis District Golf Association will meet at the Missouri Athletic Association with a view to adjusting differences which have arisen between the two bodies over the conduct of the monthly pro-amateur tournament and the amateur handicap tournament.

The professionals have said that the handicap tournament was instituted without regard to the pro-amateur event while the amateurs claim their tournament should in no wise conflict with the pro-amateur tourney.

But the first handicap tournament was held on Friday while the first pro-amateur was held the following Monday which made it necessary for those who wanted to play in both to remain away from their business for two afternoons, practically in succession.

It is possible that a way will be found to hold the tournaments two weeks apart and reduce the inconvenience for those who wish to play in them.

"Pro" Event Tomorrow.

Tomorrow the St. Louis members of the Missouri Professional Golfers' Association will play their regular weekly tournament at the St. Louis Country Club with Art Longworth, Country Club professional, acting as host.

German railroads, through their information office at New York, send out dates of the championship tournament of the German Golf Association.

For the benefit of any St. Louisans who care to enter, the dates are:

May 25-26—Open championship of Germany, Berlin Golf and Country Club, at Wannsee-Berlin.

May 28—International women's amateur championship, Berlin Golf and Country Club, at Wamsee-Berlin.

Aug. 28—German men's amateur championship in Frankfurt-on-Main.

Chicago Municipal Golfers are in an uproar over the proposal of the South Side park commissioners to raise the greens fees from 20 cents to 40 cents for nine holes to play in Jackson and Marquette parks. Park commissioners in other districts of Chicago say that the charge in the parks under their supervision will remain the same, 15 cents for nine holes.

Newspapers in Chicago are publishing comments from those who play the public courses and these comments indicate that the golfers are not so excited over the payment of the fees as over the poor condition in which the courses are kept. They say they are willing to pay provided the money is used to improve the links.

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBIA, Mo., May 4.—The laurels for Missouri Inter-scholastic track and field prowess rest tonight on the sprinters, jumpers, and hurlers of two St. Joseph high schools, Central and Benton.

Those schools presented unbeatable proficiency, not even to be denied by a cold wet day, and soggy track and field, carrying away two team championships in the twenty-sixth annual interscholastic carnival of the University of Missouri here today.

To make their victories more impressive, Benton established a meet record and central hung up two new marks for future class B competitors.

Central is the champion of class A, which includes the Missouri schools having more than 500 enrollment; Benton now carries the Gonfalon denoting supremacy among class B schools, those of 150 to 499 students. And both defeated the defending champion schools by narrow margins.

Roosevelt High Fourth.

Central High of Kansas City, defending the class A title it held for three years, trailed by 25 to 27 at the end of the meet. Roosevelt of St. Louis was third; Independence, fourth, and Webster Groves fifth.

Coach Jack Mathews, late star of the Tiger track team had an easier time defeating Fulton, the 1928 class B champion school, by 24 to 27½ points. Missouri Military Academy, Cameron and St. Charles were far behind in the point totals.

Senath captured the Class C title in competition among the schools having a maximum of 149 students, and Archie, the champion defendant, finished in fourth place, after Adrian in second and Pacific in third.

St. Joseph's Central was a team victory, its highest individual showing having been by Nelson, who gathered first place in the 200-yard dash and second in the century for a point total of eight. Benton had an individual star in Spring, who took a first, second, third and fourth place.

St. Louisan's Record Broken.

Despite the heavy track, Hardman, St. Joseph Central, stepped the half mile in 1 minute, 58 seconds, for a new record in Missouri interscholastic competition. He nosed out Broe of Roosevelt High, St. Louis, who established the old mark at 2 minutes, 5.1 seconds in 1928.

Four new class records were established in Class B. Cox of Fulton clipped four-tenths of a second off the old Class B high hurdle record, covering the 120 yards in 16.2. Kimes of Cameron tossed the discus 116 feet, 10 inches, bettering the former mark by more than two feet. Sandusky of St. Joseph Benton bettered the Class B half mile mark by running the distance in 2 minutes, 3 seconds, paring off six-tenths of a second. Goodwin of West Plains pushed the shot 47 feet, 3 inches, breaking his own record, 46 feet, 4 inches, made last year.

FINAL SUMMARIES.

When from under the bed they

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBIA, Mo., May 4.—The laurels for Missouri Inter-scholastic track and field prowess rest tonight on the sprinters, jumpers, and hurlers of two St. Joseph high schools, Central and Benton.

Those schools presented unbeatable proficiency, not even to be denied by a cold wet day, and soggy track and field, carrying away two team championships in the twenty-sixth annual interscholastic carnival of the University of Missouri here today.

To make their victories more impressive, Benton established a meet record and central hung up two new marks for future class B competitors.

Central is the champion of class A, which includes the Missouri schools having more than 500 enrollment; Benton now carries the Gonfalon denoting supremacy among class B schools, those of 150 to 499 students. And both defeated the defending champion schools by narrow margins.

Roosevelt High Fourth.

Central High of Kansas City, defending the class A title it held for three years, trailed by 25 to 27 at the end of the meet. Roosevelt of St. Louis was third; Independence, fourth, and Webster Groves fifth.

Coach Jack Mathews, late star of the Tiger track team had an easier time defeating Fulton, the 1928 class B champion school, by 34 to 27½ points. Missouri Military Academy, Cameron and St. Charles were far behind in the point totals.

Senath captured the Class C title in competition among the schools having a maximum of 149 students, and Archie, the champion defendant, finished in fourth place, after Adrian in second and Pacific in third.

St. Joseph's Central was a team victory, its highest individual showing having been by Nelson, who gathered first place in the 200-yard dash and second in the century for a point total of eight. Benton had an individual star in Spring, who took a first, second, third and fourth place.

St. Louisan's Record Broken.

Despite the heavy track, Hardman, St. Joseph Central, stepped the half mile in 1 minute, 58 seconds, for a new record in Missouri interscholastic competition. He nosed out Broe of Roosevelt High, St. Louis, who established the old mark at 2 minutes, 5.1 seconds in 1928.

Four new class records were established in Class B. Cox of Fulton clipped four-tenths of a second off the old Class B high hurdle record, covering the 120 yards in 16.2. Kimes of Cameron tossed the discus 116 feet, 10 inches, bettering the former mark by more than two feet. Sandusky of St. Joseph Benton bettered the Class B half mile mark by running the distance in 2 minutes, 3 seconds, paring off sixtenths of a second. Goodwin of West Plains pushed the shot 47 feet, 3 inches, breaking his own record, 46 feet, 4 inches, made last year.

FOUR REASONS FOR PICKING THE CUBS

—By Burris Jenkins Jr.

High Hits Two Home Runs As Cards Beat Giants, 10-7

by Lindstrom and Terry and the result was a run.

High Goes Into Lead.

In the fourth Haines held the enemy to one single and so when the Giants went to bat in the fifth the score was Andy High 4, Giants 2. Then things happened. Reese singled too hot for High and Lindstrom singled to center. Ott singled to right, filling the bases, and Terry scratched a single off Haines' glove, scoring Reese.

Haines struck out Jackson and thought he had Leach struck out. But Umpire Klem called a ball on the pitch Haines thought was a third strike and with Jess much enraged, Leach socked a single to right, scoring Lindstrom and Ott and putting the Giants one up.

A double play ended that rally and Haines breezed through the sixth, seventh and eighth without further damage.

Hubbell Batted Out.

Meantime the Cardinals finally solved the delivery of Karl Hubbell, the Scandinavian southpaw. Karl held the Red Birds to four hits in seven innings, but Douthit led off in the eighth with a home run that tied the count. High singled to left and Frisch doubled him to third. High scored while Terry was deflecting Bottomley's grounder to Reese and taking the return throw, and Frisch scored on a passed ball.

Hafey doubled to knock Hubbell out of the box, but Carl Mays stopped that Cardinal attack.

Haines didn't hold the two-run lead long. He walked Reese and after Lindstrom had sent Holm into the next county for a long fly, Ott hit his home run to right. Then along came Bill Terry with his triple that wasn't a triple. No, it didn't even go for a hit in the box score.

Red Bird Notes.

Grover Cleveland Alexander or Clarence Mitchell will pitch for the Cardinals tomorrow in the second game of the series with the Giants. And the one who doesn't work the Sunday game will do duty Monday.

Larry Benton or Fred Fitzsimmons will throw for the Giants.

Today's game gave the Giants a .500 percentage in the schedule. They have played nine and nine have been postponed because of bad weather.

A fine play by Jimmy Wilson prevented the Giants from scoring a second run in the first inning. Ott tried to score from first when Hafey fumbled Terry's single and Chick, recovering the ball, made a wild throw. Wilson ran wide for the ball and then dived for Ott, nailing him inches before he touched the plate.

Double Play Stops Giants.

A double play stopped the Giants in the second. With Jackson on third and Hogan on first, High grabbed Hubbell's grounder and ignored Jackson racing for home. Frisch pivoted at second on the play.

The stands boohed Umpire Magerkurth in the third inning when he called Haines out on a grounder which bounced off third base to Lindstrom. The decision cost the Cards a run, as High hit his homer in the same frame.

Hogan popped a single to center in the fourth inning. Frisch and Gelbert both pursued the ball, leaving second unprotected. Frisch picked up the ball and his hurried throw to the returning Gelbert was bad. Haines and Wilson had been drawn to first base to back up any play there and the ball rolled to the plate, with nobody there to head it off. Hogan took second on the oversight and Frisch drew an error.

Thank You, Mr. Fan.

A fan in the right field stand reached out and helped Andy High's second homer over the wall. It might have cleared the paling without interference.

The Cards had good luck and bad in the eighth. Frisch's high throw prevented a double play on Hogan's grounder, but when Gelbert dropped Frisch's throw on the next grounder, Umpire Jorda ruled Charley had held the ball momentarily.

Andy High and Charley Gelbert each started two double plays.

Some Real Slugging.

High drew a pass, hit two home runs and two singles. He had a perfect day at bat until the tenth, when he popped to Jackson.

Hafey hit two doubles, both against the left field wall.

The Giants made 12 of their 14 hits in the first five innings.

The sun was shining through most of the afternoon but it was chilly. However, there have been so few ball games here that there was a demand for entertainment and about 18,000 persons attended.

Runs 100 Yards In 9 2-5 Seconds With Aid of Wind

LEWISTON, Me., May 4.

BILLIE KNOX of Bates, with strong wind behind him, won the 100-yard dash, opening event of the New Hampshire-Bates dual track meet, here today in 9 2-5s, one-fifth of a second under the world's record.

Two of the three timers clocked him in 9 2-5, and the third caught him in 9 1-5.

The record will probably not be accepted because of the wind, which has a clear sweep of a half-mile and literally pushed the Bates sprinter down the stretch.

INDIAN BREAKS MARK SET IN 1904 BY SHRUBB

LOS ANGELES, Cal., May 4.—Harry Chauca, Litttle Mission Indian, running under the colors of the Los Angeles Athletic Club, toppled the 25-year-old world's record for the six-mile run at the Southern Pacific A. A. C. track and field championships here today, running the distance in 29m. 44s.

His mark bettered by 15 4-5 seconds the record established in 1904 by A. Shrubb of England.

GEHRIG TIES MODERN MARK WITH 3 HOMERS

CHICAGO, May 4.—Three home runs by Lou Gehrig enabled the Yankees to outlast the White Sox and win a wild game here today by a score of 10 to 9.

Gehrig's three big blows ran his total for the season to six. Lou's second blow in the seventh was sandwiched in between Ruth's third of the season and Meusel's first, giving the Yanks three homers in succession. Both Hoyt and Faber, starting pitchers, were unsteady and both were relieved.

The all-time record for home runs in a game is four, shared by Bobby Lowe and Ed Delehanty, who did their heavy sticking in the mid-nineties.

WRAY'S COLUMN

is better than a bad one; and victories at the start count just as much as victories at the end of the race.

We like the sample the Browns have shown us.

So hop to it, Daniel. Step on it some more.

He's "in" Again.

SONNY SONNENBERG is following in the footsteps of the other great wrestlers before him. He is defending his title as often as towns can be found willing to pay him a guarantee, just as those famous gladiators Ed Lewis, Joe Stecher and Stanley Zbyszko have done before him.

Ed Lewis defended his title so often against Dick Daviscourt, in the days when Dick was one of the Sandow circus, that the old adding machine broke under the strain of keeping track of them. Although Dick steadily lost, Lewis gamely continued to defend his title against Daviscourt.

And so, Sonny, we find today, has again defended his title against Howard Cantonwine. True, it's only the FOURTH time since he won the championship that Sonnenberg has risked his title against this foe; but there were one or two other occasions on which Sonny beat Howard before he had won the crown from Lewis; they might be thrown in for good measure.

One peculiarity about wrestling is that it appears impossible to prove definitely, to the satisfaction of all, that a champion is master of another man.

Thus we look forward confidently to the fifth, six and tenth installments of Mr. Sonnenberg's daredevil defense of his laurels against Cantonwine. Probably the serial will end some day; but in the meantime would Mr. Sonnenberg please announce his progress by chapters, to help us keep the run of things?

In the Boxing Game.

BOXING also has had its "serials" of this sort, the most notable being the continued-in-ouar next affair between Jack Britton, the "grand old man of the ring," and Ted Lewis, imported. These men fought some 19 times and the wrestlers may indeed complain that they themselves are not the only ones who defeat their foes on the installment plan. The fact remains, however, that in the Britton series, victory and defeat shifted about and EACH took the title from the other. And in the final chapter, Britton finally knocked Ted clear out of the picture.

But in wrestling an opponent seldom becomes so decrepit that a champion will not "defend his title" against him.

Breaks for Bradley.

E. R. BRADLEY, who operates palatial casinos in which captains of industry can woo the ivories or other devices for frisking the pocketbook known as "games of chance," and who also breeds and races some of the finest thoroughbreds this country has known, is certainly getting the breaks, this time.

In his drive toward achieving the record of winning a Kentucky Derby for the third time, everything is "jake" with the millionaire from Idle Hour Farm.

His candidate, Blue Larkspur, has come through his training period splendidly. He has won his only start from his greatest rival, Clyde Van Dusen.

High Strung and Roguish Eye, two great horses which defeated Blue Larkspur soundly in the Futurity last year, are declared out of the race and several of the horses considered strong possibilities have since showed they are not yet ready for a hard race.

AT this writing the favorite's price, even in liberal books, is only 2½ to 1 and it is nearly two weeks until the derby is to be decided.

Unless developments bring to light an outstanding contender, Blue Larkspur will be as short a favorite as the sturdy Morvich proved about a decade ago, when he went to the post at about even money and justify the plunge of his owner by winning.

There is only one fly in the ointment—it is the fact that from out of the West two racers are being shipped at the last minute—Naishapur, winner of the Tijuana Derby and second in the Coffroth Handicap, and Ervast, a "wonder horse," out on the coast, until a slight injury put him out of the running.

On the basis of time alone these horses should cut a stout figure in the Kentucky Derby. But it is probable that, like other Far West favorites, they will prove to be bloomers when they race in the Mid-West.

Track conditions at Tijuana are different than at our tracks and in the adjustment many great coast performers have required many weeks.

Bradley's greatest menace will probably come from some "sleeper" which, like Flying Ebony, may come out of the ruck to astonish the world.

In the meantime, the stable connections think Blue Larkspur is "in"—he's "greater than Bubbling Over," is the report from the feed box.

CHICAGO CUBS TAKE 2 GAMES FROM PHILLIES

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, May 4.—Chicago slapped a double defeat on the Philadelphia Nationals today, winning 16 to 0 and 9 to 7.

The first game was simply a rout of three Phillie curvers, Alex Ferguson, Ray Benge and Ace Elliott, while Pat Malone pitching for Chicago, distributed the 10 hits he allowed in widely separated places.

Doc Collins held the Cubs in the second game but the fray had already been lost by Willoughby, who was driven from the mound.

Hornsby, Cubs, drove a homer in the first game, and Grace and Cuyler, Chicago, and O'Doul and Klein, Philadelphia, made one each in the second.

BARGELLO, DERBY ELIGIBLE, WINS JAMAICA RACE BY FOUR LENGTHS

WHITNEY'S COLT PAYS 20 TO 1; MEI FOO, THE FAVORITE QUITS

By the Associated Press.

JAMAICA, N. Y., May 4.—Over a fast track, Harry Payne Whitney's Bargello, quoted at 20 to 1 in the betting, scored an impressive victory in the King's County Handicap, which featured a well-balanced card here today. It was the second victory for the Whitney Stable, as Beacon Hill scored in the third event. The Fair Stable's Byrd, well played, was second and T. M. Cassidy's Mi Vida third.

Mei Foo, the Rancocas Stable entry and favorite in the betting, finished away back. He stopped to a walk in the final quarter mile. The race carried a net value of $7250, and the mile and one-sixteenth was run in the fast time of 1:44 3-5.

The start was good. Byrd ran right to the front, followed by Bargello and Mei Foo. In the run down the back stretch Byrd drew out, but Mei Foo moved into the place, with Bargello third.

Robertson, who had the mount, kept Bargello under restraint, preferring to make his run on the turn. The boy timed his move to the second. At the three-furlong pole he rushed Bargello up on the inside and then came around Byrd in the stretch. Bargello took the lead and, drawing away, won by four lengths. Byrd beat Mi Vida half a length for the place.

Bargello has been named for both the Preakness and Kentucky Derby.

NO. 15—DERBY CANDIDATES.

Almost anyone can become enthused over Naishapur's chances in the Kentucky Derby and other 3-year-old events in which he is entered during the season in view of his last two performances.

Naishapur has just gotten through running second, beaten a neck, in the $100,000 Coffroth Handicap. Two weeks before that Naishapur whipped a field of smart 3-year-olds in the Tijuana Derby.

As a juvenile, Naishapur wasn't so bad. He didn't go around over the country winning stakes, but he had the confidence of his owner, Edward Cebrian at that time, and gave battle in many of them. His 2-year-old racing was confined in the West where he alternated between Kentucky and Illinois. He was close in a number of rich events for youngsters, but didn't quite make the winner's circle, although he was successful in three overnight races.

Naishapur was taken to New Orleans for winter racing and started twice at Fair Grounds, being close up both times. After that John B. McKee arrived in the Crescent City from Tijuana for the purpose of selecting a candidate for both the Tijuana Derby and the Coffroth. He picked out Naishapur and purchased him from Cebrian for the Wilshire Stable, which is owned by a Los Angeles newcomer to racing, Earl Chaffee.

Won First Start at Tijuana.

He was loaded on the train and in exactly two weeks after his last start at the Fair Grounds, he made his first excursion under silks at Tijuana. Naishapur must have taken kindly to McKee's training methods as he won at the first asking, beating Infinity, Taddywawa, Yam Toy, Voltear and a few others from among the best of his age at the border course.

Then came his Tijuana Derby race, in which he came from behind to beat Voltear by half a length, with Xylophone, Riff Raff, Healy, Ervast and others behind him. He ran the mile and a furlong in 1:51, which, while not breaking any records, is very creditable.

Runs Well in Coffroth.

With two weeks' rest, Naishapur came back to force Golden Prince to a neck in the Coffroth and was gaining ground on the winner at the end of that mile and a quarter, which was covered in the brilliant time of 2:02 3-5.

Naishapur is now en route to Churchill Downs, to be prepared for the Kentucky Derby. If he is brought back to his Tijuana form, he may cause some of the crack colts expected to go in that race plenty of trouble.

Naishapur is by the imported Omar Khayyam, winner of the Kentucky Derby of 1918. Omar Khayyam is a representative of a staying family and won a number of distance events in this country and also has sired many good horses that could go a route, among them Aga Khan, Marconi, Bonnie Omar, Quatrain and Percussion.

Dam Comes of Good Stock.

The dam of Naishapur is imp. Scramble, whose grandsire is Ajax, one of the best horses the French turf ever knew. Naishapur's fourth dam is Spinaway, the best filly of her time in this country and from which many winners descend.

Naishapur apparently is living up to his breeding. It seems he came to his best form slowly and it is very possible he may show further improvement. If he does, there is no telling how good he may become.

He is well named, as Naishapur is believed to be the place where Omar Khayyam (the poet) was born.

Wisconsin Wins From Illini in Pitchers' Battle

By the Associated Press.

URBANA, Ill., May 4.—Wisconsin continued its victorious march in the Big Ten baseball championship race by edging out Illinois, 2 to 1, after a great pitchers' battle between Maury Farber and Bower of the Illini.

Farber was invincible, allowing the heavy-hitting Illini only three hits, which were scattered over the first, sixth and eighth innings. Bower allowed but five, one of which was coupled with errors and bases on balls, to give Wisconsin its runs.

It was the second straight Big Ten victory for Farber and the second time he has pitched a three-hit game.

Errors Beat Ohio State.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, May 4.—Kermode, Ohio State pitcher, held Chicago to six hits today, but errors and ragged baserunning by his teammates boosted the Maroons to a 4-to-3 victory.

The Buckeyes hammered Urban, Maroon hurler, for 12 safeties, but tossed scoring chances away by careless work on the paths. Ohio State had the bases filled three times, but could not shove a run across, runners who might have scored being flagged down by coachers on two occasions. The three Buckeye tallies were the result of straightaway hitting. Eighteen Ohio baserunners were left stranded during the game.

CLYDE VAN DUSEN SHOWS TOP FORM IN DERBY TRIAL

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 4.—Clyde Van Dusen, second choice for Derby honors, turned in the best Derby trial this morning, considering the miserable track conditions. The course was deep in mud. The Man O'War gelding worked with Torch Boy, Clyde Van Dusen was "clocked" the first quarter in :25 3-5, half in :53 3-5, three-quarters in 1:20 2-5, mile in 1:48 4-5 and up the mile and one-eighth in 2:02 4-5.

Expert work-watchers who never overlook anything, saw the gelding sulk a bit when turning the corners and show a tendency to run out. He came fast when straightened out and ran true, passing out his work mate, Torch Boy, easily at the end of the mile, where Torch Boy was pulled up in 1:50 2-5.

Clyde Van Dusen, at times last year had fits of sulking or sourness, but he snapped out of them when sent for the real contests. Clyde Van Dusen appears really fit and no doubt will turn in his best race at the first asking.

The Choctaw and Easter Stocking were breezed the full Derby route in slow time, finishing out the mile and one-quarter in 2:20, the first mile in 1:49 4-5. The Choctaw does not like the soft going and he was not encouraged by Jake Heupel to go faster than quarter in :27.

Other Derby Colts Workout.

The Harned Brothers' Derby candidate, Boris, worked a good mile in company of Congo II the two went together the first half in :55 2-5, three-quarters in 1:23, and mile in 1:50 4-5. .....

Tommy Taylor sent Chip a good mile. He breezed the first quarter in :25, half in :52, three-quarters in 1:19 2-5 and mile in 1:50 3-5. Virado showed his liking for the mud when he breezed five-eighths in 1:05, the first half in :51 4-5.

C. M. Severson's Derby colt Paul Bunyan went three-eighths in :37 3-5.

The Tattler, Jack McPherson's maiden 3-year-old, displayed much foot in the going when he turned in five-eighths in 1:05.

Flat Iron and Martie Flynn, the Peabody candidate for the Clark Handicap, breezed a good mile in 1:49 3-5. These two racers are ready for the question.

Boots Durnell, who is training the largest stable of high-class racers ever stabled at the Downs, worked his derby colts Friday afternoon. He breezed most of them halves in :51. All of the 3-year-olds in their barn look fit and ready to run at the first asking.

Royal Ford in American Derby.

The big gray colt, Royal Ford, has caught the fancy of the work watchers. He is a good one, no doubt. He likely will be reserved for the American Derby at Washington Park. Double Heart and Prince Pat are the two Durnell is pointing for the derby. If the course looks as if it is going to be muddy Durnell probably will add Calf Roper, winner of the Louisiana Derby to the three D.'s Stable entry.

"Daggie Smith," trainer of St. Ignatius and Hiram Kelly sent the former a mile an one-quarter at a two-minute clip. The latter did a mile and an eighth at the same rate of speed. Highway, the Midway colt, breezed a half in :53 3-5.

Trainer Charles N. Lewis galloped his two derby charges, Pebony and Bonoby, separately. Bonoby is going to be a starter in the derby according to Mr. Lewis and D. Froggate will have the mount.

The Feurst Brothers' derby colt, Uptime, worked a mile in 1:52, the first half in :51 4-5, three-quarters in 1:21 2-5. Lehmann Brothers' derby colt, Suitor, was given an opener at three-eighths in :40 2-5.

Karl Eitel in Good Workout.

Karl Eitel, the big red colt in Alderman Coughlin's barn, was out for a long gallop, but Roguish Eye recently declared out of the derby did not appear on the track.

Springfield Fans Get $250,000 If Horton Smith Wins

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., May 4.

HORTON SMITH boosters in Springfield are so confident the young golf sensation will add the British open title to his long string of victories that they have laid exactly $4400 "on the line" to be bet at the prevailing odds on him.

This means that if Springfield's native son "gets over the hill" in the historic open tournament, which starts Monday at Muirfield, Scotland, he will win, in addition to world-wide golf fame and riches untold, the sum of approximately $250,000 for his home-town boosters.

British bookmakers have quoted Horton as a 50-to-1 shot in the open.

Claude Woodruff, local sportsman, assembled the money here and cabled it last night to Heath & Co., brokers, London, England. A cable was received today acknowledging receipt of the money.

By the Associated Press.

GULLANE, Scotland, May 4.—Between heavy showers of rain a score of American golfers and more than 200 others of the cosmopolitan entry for the British open championship today had their last heavy practice over the Muirfield and Gullane courses, where qualifying rounds will be played Monday and Tuesday.

Sunday golf is not permitted on the course of the honorable company of Edinburgh golfers whose aristocratic history goes back to 1744.

Never within the memory of the old guard of British professionalism, Harry Vardon, James Braid and J. H. Taylor, has there been such an open championship as next week's event.

World's Best Entered.

With the pick of the world's best exponents of the game here representing North America, South America, Australia, South Africa, India and Continental countries, it is difficult to get the veterans even to hazard a guess as to who is most likely to carry from Muirfield the title Hagen holds.

Any of a dozen Americans and Anglo-Americans are good enough to win, while the new fighting spirit which characterized the play of British stars since their victory over the Americans in the Ryder Cup play is expected to prove an important element. There are formidable challenges from other countries, particularly that of Jose Jurado of Argentina.

Muirfield, where the four rounds of the championship proper will be played, is one of the most difficult golfing tests in the world and a tricky wind usually blowing from the Scottish shore augments the natural problems of the course. Players who score 160 for the 36-hole qualifying tests probably will be safe among the 100 who qualify, while a figure around 295 for 72 holes medal play is generally quoted as likely to win the title.

Tonight the championship committee announced a change in conditions of play for the championship, instead of the low 80 and ties qualifying, 100 and ties for the hundredth place will be permitted to qualify. Thursday night after 36 holes of the championship proper, all players 14 strokes behind the leader will be automatically eliminated, but a minimum of 60 will compete in the final 36 holes Friday.

Every Man for Himself.

While the American Ryder cup team loses its identity as a team in the open and every one of the 10 professionals must fight his own battle, nevertheless Captain Walter Hagen has made himself a coach for some of the younger members. "The Haig" has given them many hints from his store of experience at playing under Birtish conditions during seven previous golfing invasions of Britain. He has spent hours with the youngsters at practice.

That the champion's own game is in good order was indicated today when he went around the Gullane course in 71. He was out in 33 and his 71 was compiled in spite of four four-foot putts missed.

Missing short putts has been one of the weaknesses of the American players, but Hotor Smith missed none in a round of 70 on the Muirfield course. The Missourian had the lowest score of the day's practice. At the ninth hole his card showed a seven, caused by sending his second shot over a low stone wall, out of bounds, with a penalty of stroke and distance.

Jurado's best practice round at Muirfield has been 71, although he has scored several 73s and 74s. He is not satisfied with his game, and today was in dificulties several times.

Rain, interrupted a four-ball match in which Miss Glenna Collett and George Duncan were playing Abe Mitchell and Horton Smith in the afternoon. "Miss Collett's long game was powerful and she hit nearly everyone of her shots beautifully," was the tribute of the British Ryder cup captain to the American girl. The American

A $58.80 return for a $2 win ticket on Hardmore in the sixth race at the Madison Kennel Club track at Collinsville, and the defeat of the favorite Hawk's Gold in the feature eighth event, marked the opening of the dog-racing season last night.

Hardmore won "by a whisker" over Ballyknockin, the choice, in the sixth, when Ballyknockin got off poorly.

In the "Inaugural Stake," Hawk's Gold finished in fourth place behind Hillcourt's Wonder, Squeers and Swift and Sure. Hillcourt's Wonder paid $15.40.

It was estimated that 8000 persons were on the grounds during the evening. Track officials declared that bad driving conditions, due to the recent heavy rains, held down the attendance.

Milwaukee East won first place in the National public school division with 27 1-3 points after fighting off the gallant challenge of Deerfield-Shields High School, Highland Park, Ill., which finished second with 26 points.

Diegel's New Putter.

Leo Diegel spent most of the day practicing with a new putter. The professional champion of the United States has been somewhat dismayed at the loss of his putting touch since he reached Muirfield. He tried half a dozen putters and finally found one which he thinks will do the trick.

An impression persists among British golfers that there will be five Americans among the first 10 in the championship. The five most frequently mentioned are: Walter Hagen, Horton Smith, Gene Sarazen, Leo Diegel and MacDonald Smith. British leaders, elected in advance of the play, are: George Duncan, Charles Whitcombe, Archie Compston, Henry Cotton and Abe Mitchell.

St. Louis Will Have 18 Teams in Legion's 1929 Baseball Competition

By Gerald Holland.

St. Louis will be represented by three leagues and eighteen teams in the American Legion's national junior baseball program this summer. The local unit will be directed and sponsored exclusively by the legion posts without the assistance of commercial backing, according to Edward A. Warren, co-chairman of the St. Louis committee.

The American Legion's baseball organization last year provided 122,000 boys throughout the country with the opportunity of playing in local, state, and regional competition that was climaxed by a "junior world series" at Chicago in which the champions of Oakland, Cal., met and defeated a team representing Worcester, Mass.

In Two Sections.

The national organization of teams throughout the country is divided into eastern and western sections, subdivided into regional, state and local competition. To advance to the final a team must progress through all of the those stages of competition. For instance, a winner in one of the three St. Louis leagues would have to defeat the two other local champions in a round robin series, then meet the St. Louis County titleholders, then the three district winners of Missouri, then participate in a regional tournament including champions of Illinois, Iowa and Kansas, for the right to play for the Western sectional title. Winners in the Eastern and Western sections play for the national championship.

The three St. Louis groups will be designated the North, South, and West Leagues. The North League will play its games in Fairground Park and the other two on Forest Park diamonds. There will be six teams in each league.

No team may carry more than 14 players on its roster and no boy who has reached his seventeenth birthday is eligible. In local squads, not more than one high school may be represented but players from any number of grade schools may be signed. The restriction on high school students is so designed to prevent the organization of "all star" teams.

Strict Eligibility.

The Legion enforces stringent eligibility rules and requires documentary evidence of every boys' age. In some cases of eligibility protests, entire teams have been disqualified for using a player who has violated a rule. The Legion also forbids teams carrying names of backers other than legion posts but permits a monogram of commercial sponsors to appear on the sleeves of uniforms.

At a meeting of the local committee held during the week, a tentative schedule opening tho season on June 7 was adopted. It is the present plan to play the games on June 7, 14, 17, 20, 24, 27, and July 1, 4, 8, and 11. The date for the playoff series will be set later.

CRUICKSHANK, ARMOUR WIN IN MATCH ABROAD

By the Associated Press.

EDINBURGH, Scotland, May 4.—Tommy Armour and Bobby Cruickshank, Scots, transplanted to America, today won a professional golf match for their nation by defeating Henry Cotton and Charles Whitecombe, English pros, four up and three to play, at 36 holes.

Armour and Cruickshank started the final 18 holes, four up. The English pros cut the lead of the Wandering Scotsmen by one hole between the 18th and 27th.

Rive thousand Scotch golfing enthusiasts flocked to the Dalmahoy golf course for the match, which created greater interest than any contest of its kind in the Edinburgh district in recent years.

It was the first appearance of Armour and Cruickshank in competition here since their amateur days at the Braid Hills Club and the "Scotch-Americans" were easily favorites with the big gallery.

Pittsburg Team Opposes Germans In Soccer Final

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, May 4.—The grand final of the National Amateur Challenge Cup Competition, the winner of which will be declared amateur soccer champions of the United States, will be played at Olympic Park, Irvington, N. J., Sunday afternoon, where the Heidelberg Soccer Club of Pittsburg, representing the cream of the simon pures in the division west of the Allegheny Mountains, will clash with the First German Soccer Club of Newark, N. J., standard bearer of the amateurs in the East.

This will be the first time in the history of the amateur soccer championships that the deciding game has been awarded to an Eastern city. Heretofore Chicago, Cleveland and Pittsburg have been honored with the final games.

ST. LOUIS STARS OPEN 5-GAME SERIES WITH CHICAGO HERE TODAY

The St. Louis Stars, Negro National League baseball champions, are scheduled to open a five-game series with the Chicago American Giants this afternoon at 3 o'clock at the Stars' park, Market street and Compton avenue. Rain and a soggy field caused the postponement of the opening game of the series yesterday.

The locals won their series with the Detroit Stars last week, taking four games out of five, while the Chicago team in a series last week lost to the Kansas City Monarchs, who captured four of five contests.

Muirfield, Scene of British Open, Is Made to Order for U. S. Golfers, Farrell Says

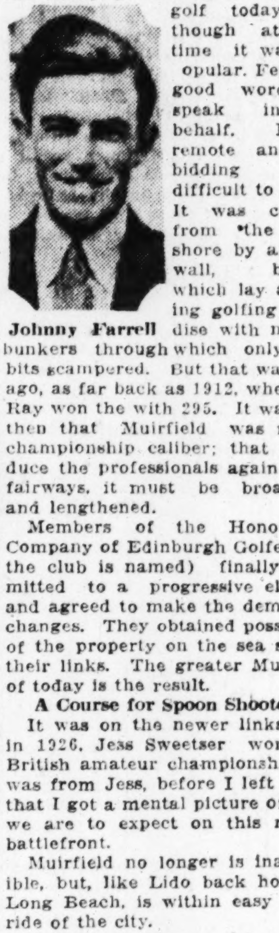
By Johnny Farrell.

American Open Golf Champion.

Twelve miles from Edinburgh, the capital of Scotland, in quaint little East Lothian sprawls Muirfield, a land of golfing delight where the British open championship is to be played for the sixth time since 1892, when it was accepted in the cycle of championship courses.



Johnny Farrell

Muirfield is considered among the really great tests of skill at golf today, although at one time it was not opular. Few had good words to speak in its behalf. It was remote and forbidding and difficult to reach. It was cut off from the seashore by a stone wall, beyond which lay a rolling golfing paradise with natural bunkers through which only rabbits scampered. But that was long ago, as far back as 1912, when Ted Ray won the with 295. It was said then that Muirfield was not of championship caliber; that to induce the professionals again to its fairways, it must be broadened and lengthened.

Members of the Honourable Company of Edinburgh Golfers (as the club is named) finally summitted to a progressive element and agreed to make the demanded changes. They obtained possession of the property on the sea side of their links. The greater Muirfield of today is the result.

A Course for Spoon Shooters.

It was on the newer links that, in 1926, Jess Sweetser won the British amateur championship. It was from Jess, before I left home, that I got a mental picture of what we are to expect on this rugged battlefront.

Muirfield no longer is inaccessible, but, like Lido back home at Long Beach, is within easy motor ride of the city.

Sweetser paid me the compliment of saying that, of all the Americans who were to play at Muirfield, he thought I had the best chance to victory because he believes that I am particularly strong with spoon and putter.

"Muirfield," Jess told me, "is a spoon and putting course. Eight of its holes are 450 yards and over, and the eighteenth, although 425 yards long, really plays at 450 because of its elbowed conformation. All these holes require long spoon seconds and you should be right in your element. The greens are big but narrow at the mouth, and beautifully smooth and true, which details are characteristic, it seems, of most seashore links."

So you see I am prepared for the greatness of Muirfield. Its lengths of 6800 yards is no longer than some of our big courses in America. It appears enormous, however, because of its wide open spaces.

There are no tricks at Muirfield such as we discovered at Moortown. Everything is in front of you, an open target to shoot at. There isn't a blind green on the layout and this is something to be appreciated by strangers.

As yet Muirfield has professional course record. The first player to finish in the championship will establish a mark, if only for a few minutes. The player to return the lowest single round in the tournament, will, of course, be the record holder.

I cannot help visualizing an American producing that record. Muirfield seems to be "made to order for us." The winds at times comes in pretty stro[illegible] fr[illegible] over the Forth, but I do not believe that they will be a determining factor.

Athletes of City and County Schools to Meet Wednesday

By Harold Tuthill

The preliminary trials to the second annual St. Louis High School District Track and Field Meet will be held Wednesday and Thursday at the Public Schools Stadium. The events will begin at 3:30 p. m. with the finals scheduled to be run off Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock. A field of 35[illegible] athletes will participate in the qualifying tests.

The total number of entries is 819 as most of the athletes run in several events. This number is considerably larger than that which participated in the inaugural carnival last year.

The 14 schools represented in the meet are Beaumont, Central, Christian Brothers College, Clayton, Cleveland, Maplewood, McBride, Normandy, Roosevelt, St. Charles, St. Louis University High School, Soldan, University City and Webster Groves.

Beaumont has the largest number of men entered with 40. Roosevelt has 36 and Webster 33.

The program for Wednesday includes the Junior 50, and the Senior and Junior 440, 100, 220-yard low hurdles, high jump, shot and discus. The eliminations Wednesday are in the Junior 120-yard low hurdles and the Senior and Junior 220, 120-yard high hurdles, broad jump, javelin and pole vault. There will be no preliminary trials of the 880-yard runs in either division.

E. A. Hecker of Country Day is in charge of the meet.

High Schools to Play Postponed Games This Week

The City High School League baseball double-header which was washed out yesterday, will be played off in a series of single games tomorrow and Tuesday. The leading Soldan nine will meet Central tomorrow and Roosevelt battles Beaumont on Tuesday afternoon. Both games which begin at 3:30 p. m. will be played at the Public Schools Stadium.

Central has to win from Soldan to remain in the race since every other school in the circuit has won at least one game. If Central loses it will be dropped from further competition as it will have finished its season.

A victory for either Beaumont or Roosevelt will assure the winner of a place in the tournament which begins on May 25 and which is concluded with a doubleheader June 1.

ST. LOUIS U. VARSITY FOOTBALL TEAM IN SCORELESS TIE WITH FROSH

LINEMEN OF YEARLING TEAM STAR IN ANNUAL SPRING GAME

By Glen McDonald.

St. Louis University's heavy freshmen football team held the Billiken varsity to a scoreless tie in a full-time football game played yesterday afternoon at the St. Louis University High School Field. The game between the freshmen and varsity football squads is an annual event and marks the end of the spring training sessions of each squad.

The game was played in a driving rain and the field, which had been soaked by two days of rain, made good football practically impossible. The playing for the most part of the game took place within the area of the 30-yard lines of each team. Line plays proved to be the best ground gainers. The water-soaked ball made forward passes go everywhere but the right place. Joe Lintzenich, Billiken captain, got off several good punts, as did Sylvester McIntosh, who played right end and did the kicking for the yearlings. "Firpo" Joseph, a tackle; Dave Ennis and Joe Maxwell, halfbacks, were the varsity men to miss the game on account of injuries, while "Fido" Murphy and Bob Eyenatten were the frosh cripples.

Several of the freshman linemen played good football and are likely to make the varsity men hustle next fall to keep their positions. Cecil Muelerliele, 190-pound center from Madison Lake, Minn., played the whole game and gave promise of giving Davidson and Corcoran plenty of competition next season. Max Newton, 185-pound guard, and Fred Fox, 190-pound tackle, are both from California and are slated for varsity berths next fall if they keep up playing the brand of football they have shown during the past six weeks of spring practice. McKinney and Abrahams were the best looking frosh backs.

Daubner Injured.

The varsity opened the first quarter of the game with a rush by taking the kickoff and marching over the yearlings for three successive first downs. The freshmen then settled down and held, taking the ball on their own 30-yard line when Lintzenich kicked. During this period Vic Daubner, veteran varsity end, suffered a broken shoulder and was assisted from the field. He was replaced by Ford Brown.

Early in the second quarter the freshmen threatened to score when Charley McKinney intercepted a varsity forward pass at midfield and ran to the varsity 35-yard line before being downed. Three line plays failed to gain, and McIntosh kicked outside on the varsity 2-yard line. A line play gained four yards and Lintzenich punted on the next play. Fox blocked the kick and Ben Barrett recovered for the freshmen on the varsity 6-yard line. Three line plays lost four yards for the freshmen and the varsity took the ball on the next play when a long pass, McKinney to Abrahams, was knocked down.

The last period was monotonous enough, with neither team getting within the 30-yard line of the other. Coach Anderson used all his men and took this period for making numerous substitutions.

The varsity's chance to score came in the third period. Joyce passed 20 yards to Gazelle shortly after the opening whistle. Line plays were stopped and Lintzenich punted to Kern of the Frosh, who was downed on his 1-yard mark. Schumaker of the freshmen then punted from behind his goal line to his 25-yard line. The freshmen gos possession of the ball again when the varsity fumbled on the 20-yard line, and Schumaker kicked out of danger.

The lineups:

| VARSITY. | | FRESHMEN. |
|---|---|---|
| Drury | L. E. | Barrett |

McCarty Meeting Success as Coach at St. Louis U. High, Where He Starred as Student

By Robert Herr.

Returning as a coach to the school at which he had starred as an athlete more than six years previously, Ed McCarty, football and baseball mentor at St. Louis U. High, is achieving a marked degree of success in producing winning teams for his Alma Mater. McCarty is now in his third season as coach at the U. High and in that period his football squad has captured one Prep League championship, his baseball team has tied for the league title and the school, largely as a result of the work of theses two squads, has been given a leg on the Lane trophy, official three-time award of the Prep League for athletic excellence.

ED McCARTY.

While it is probable that, under the tutelage of McCarty, St. Louis U. High elevens will continue to win more games than they lose, it is not likely that the Blue and White teams of the future will be the equal of those developed in 1917, 1918 and 1919. In those years the Junior Billiken eleven, directed by Dan Savage, was one of the most powerful high school aggregations ever seen locally, and in those years Ed Mc Carty was regular halfback. He played in every contest during those three seasons. The team hung up a record of victories that has seldom been surpassed, losing but two games in three years.

In baseball, also, McCarty was a regular, doing the greater part of the slab duty for the Blue and White in 1918 and 1919. Although he played no baseball in college, various teams of the Muny leagues were given his services during 1922 and 1923.

Entering St. Louis University in 1921, McCarty won a freshman numeral in football and then was kept on the sidelines for a season with injuries. However, coming out of his involuntary retirement in the fall of 1923, he played that season and the next as regular fullback for the Blue and White, having as running mates such stars as Frank Ramaciotti, of All-American mention, and Jack O'Reilly, now head coach at C. B. C.

Started as Coach in 1926.

Taking over the coaching duties at St. Louis U. High during the 1926 football campaign, McCarty did not have great success with his gridders the first year, although the baseball squad, which he handled, came through with a tie with C. B. C., for the league title. In the fall of 1927, however, with the material developed the previous year, McCarty produced a powerful eleven which swept through to a Prep League championship and suffered its only defeat at the hands of Roosevelt, City League titleholders, in a post season contest for the city championship. Of the stars of that team, Tierney and Frank Kennedy are now considered among the best prospects for the St. Louis University varsity of next year, while "Red" Hemp starred at Mercersburg during the past season.

At present, with his baseball squad up among the leaders of the league and conceded an excellent chance of taking the title from the defending C. B. C. nine, McCarty looks to the coming football season. While the Blue and White did not figure prominently in the standing in 1928, a large number of regulars will be back from last year's eleven, and if football titles run in cycles, St. Louis U. High is about due for another championship team.

Ames Defeats Tigers in Meet

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

COLUMBIA, Mo., May 4.—Coach Bob Simpson's Iowa State track team defeated the University of Missouri athletes here this afternoon by a score of 75 to 56. It was Missouri's first defeat in track by the Cyclones in five years. In the first 10 events the Ames team piled up enough points to win the meet.

In nine of the 15 events Iowa State captured firsts, in six both firsts and seconds and in one all of the places. The Tigers scored slams in two events.

Meier, Iowa State sprinter, with firsts in the 100 and 220 yard dashes, and Hager, Cyclone hurdler, with firsts in both hurdle events, tied for individual scoring honors with 10 points each.

Meier's performance in stepping the century sprint in 9.8 seconds was the fastest race of the meet and particularly good because it was run on a track soaked by two days' rain. Rockwell Swartz, Tiger half-miler, was also undaunted by the soggy track, running his race in 1m. 58.9s., within two seconds of the M. U. record.

Hursley, Kosgy and Dills, Missouri's quarter-milers, had things all their own way in their event, the three winning in a dead heat.

With the time of 20.9 seconds in the 220-yard dash, officials of the meet at first thought Meier had neared shattering the world's record, but a check-up of the distance showed the Ames sprinter had run only 210 yards.

With victory assured, Coach Simpson forfeited the mile relay to Missouri.

RAIN SPOILS MEET IN EAST ST. LOUIS

Rain caused the postponement yesterday of the dual meet between the Collinsville and East St. Louis High School teams at Jones Park.

It is hardly likely this will be contested this season as the teams compete in the district meet, which is the qualifying step for the State finals at the University of Illinois on May 18th, next Saturday and those not successful will enter the Washington University meet here.

J. B. Campbell to Succeed Murphy As Race Steward

The decision of Joseph A. Murphy to withdraw as presiding steward at the Fairmount Race Track in order to devote his entire attention to his own track, Hawthorne, in Chicago, has brought an expression of regret from C. Bruce Head, general manager of the local track.

"I have long considered Judge Murphy as one of the most able men serving as racing officials," Head was quoted as saying, "and I am sure that his many friends in St. Louis and the patrons of Fairmount Park will join me in my expression of regret that he cannot continue a connection that has proved so satisfactory to the management and patrons alike."

While no announcement has been made as to the revised personnel of the racing officials at Fairmount Park, it is known that J. B. Campbell, in addition to his duties as racing secretary, will serve as presiding steward. A. T. Spivey, East St. Louis publisher, will again serve as an associate steward. The judges' stand will again be manned by Brownell Berryman, Robert Shelly and Pat C. Galliger. William Snyder continues as the starter and it is expected that the third member of the board of stewards will be named by Head upon his return to his office this coming week.

EAST ST. LOUIS MUNY GAMES LIKELY TO BE CALLED OFF TODAY

Virginia Brauer Weds S. B. Morse In Webster Groves

Color Scheme of Pink and Blue Carried Out in Floral Decorations and Gowns of Bride and Attendants.

A CANDLE-LIT church, its exterior walls grown thick with ivy and its interior fragrant with the odor of lilies and hydrangeas, was the setting for the wedding last night of Miss Virginia May Brauer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur J. Brauer of "Brauerhurst," Webster Groves, and Southwood Bell Morse, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Boardman Morse, 6219 Westminster place. The ceremony was performed at the Emmanuel Episcopal Church in Webster Groves, its altar ablaze with lighted tapers interspersed with vases of lilies. The chancel rail was covered with hydrangeas in pink and blue tones, the predominating colors of the wedding appointments. The bridal party walked through a candle-lit aisle.

The bride was preceded to the altar by Mrs. Robert Endres Meyer as matron of honor, and by Miss Isabelle Bond, Miss Helen Brod, Miss Mary Eugenia Gowans and her sister, Miss Gloria Brauer, as bridesmaids. The matron of honor wore delicate turquoise blue lace with pink accessories, and in the bridesmaids' costumes the colors were reversed. Mrs. Meyer's gown was fashioned with a deep lace bertha and a full skirt having an uneven hem following the line of the bertha. The only adornment was a pink velvet bow, attached to one side, with a streamer forming a semi-train. Her hat was of turquoise hairbraid, turned smartly away from the face and adorned with pink velvet. Her flowers were Briarcliffe roses and gypsophelium.

The bridesmaids' gowns were of melon pink lace fashioned alike after the manner of Mrs. Meyer's and adorned with turquoise velvet sashes. Pink hairbraid hats with blue bows completed the costumes and they all wore slippers of silk kid to correspond. They carried butterfly roses and blue delphinium. Immediately preceding the bride walked Mary Louise Fritsche wearing a point d'esprit frock veiling pink taffeta, scattering rose petals.

Mrs. Morse wore ivory bridal satin made en princesse, with a long pointed bodice, fashioned along slender lines and a full circular skirt which crossed in front and was attached to the low waist line, while the back dipped into a short round train. A graceful silver lined court train, edged with orange blossoms, attached to the gown beneath the bodice points and swept several yards on the floor. The round neck was outlined by a bertha of rose point lace, and more of the lace bordered the long close fitting sleeves. Clouds of filmy tulle were arranged to her hair with a broad band of rose point lace outlined in pearls fastened at the back with a half wreath of orange blossoms. A tendril of orange blossoms fell over the skirt at one side, and on one wrist she wore a bracelet of pearls and orange blossoms. Her flowers were lilies of the valley.

Edward Carroll Sibley attended Mr. Morse as best man, and the groomsmen were Wills Engle, Robert Endres Meyer, Samuel Bland and Forest Seay.

The bride's gifts to her attendants were wedding band chokers by Patou of pink pearls and alternating rhinestone rondelles, which they wore at the ceremony. To her flower girl she gave a string of pink pearls. Mr. Morse presented his attendants with cigarette lighters, and to his best man a leather wallet.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at "Brauerhurst." The receiving line stood before the large mantel in the living room, banked with roses and delphinium and lighted by graduating candles which were reflected in a mirrored background. The fireplace was filled with palms and greenery, and about the house were numerous baskets of spring flowers. A dinner for the bridal party was served in the sunroom at a table embellished in white roses and lilies of the valley and silver candelabra filled with lighted candles. A great wedding cake formed the centerpiece, and light from the chandelier was diffused through a cloud of white tulle.

Mrs. Brauer was gowned in lavendar tulle with a lace jacket and hat to match, and Mrs. Morse wore flowered chiffon trimmed with black lace.

Mr. and Mrs. Morse have departed on their honeymoon, the destination of which has not been made known, and will be at home after June 1 at 7560 Byron place.

Cornelia Green Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, held its monthly meeting at the Parkview Hotel Wednesday. The hostesses were Mrs. Hannah O'Bannon, Mrs. J. Lowis Jr., Mrs. O. G. Schalk and Mrs. W. S. Jencks. Reports of the Thirty-eighth Continental Congress in Washington were given by the seven members who represented the chapter. This was the largest representation from any chapter in Missouri. Reports also were given on the dedication of the twelfth and last monument, the Madonna of the Trail, at Bethesda, Md., April 19, by Mrs. John Trigg Moss, who is official reader for the congress.

While at congress the chapter regent, Mrs. Joseph Jamison, pledged the first $100 towards a $1500 pair of bronze doors for Constitution Hall taken by the State of Missouri. There also was pledged $100 in honor of Mrs. Hannah O'Bannon and the chapter's charter members, for a specific object in the library of Constitution Hall. One of the gifts to Constitutional Hall was a set of nine pieces of gold leaf and ivory furniture with draperies to match given by Mrs. Frank Ruf of the Cornelia Greene Chapter, this furniture having been the property of Madame DuBarry.

The chapter is making elaborate preparations for its twentieth birthday party to be held June 14, at the Midland Valley Country Club with a luncheon honoring the organizing regent, Mrs. L. M. Ottofy, and the retiring regent, Mrs. F. W. Green.

The business meeting was followed with a group of songs by Margaret Jane Lowis, accompanied by Miss Lillian Kaufmann. Motion pictures taken of the dedication of Constitution Hall and the Madonna of the Trail Monument were shown.

Leyden White, introduced Madame Thomas, who accompanied two pupils, Miss Agnes Vogler and Jack Coleman, in a group of vocal duets from opera selections.

Mrs. Edward Thurman Smith, just returned from the Authors' congress held in Washington, D. C., April 12 and 13, reported on the meeting.

The next meeting is planned for Friday, May 24, at 2:15 p. m.

Harmony Literary Club, M. F. W. C., completed its scholarship loan of $100 to the State fund at their last meeting at the home of Mrs. Charles W. Parker, 6830 Waterman avenue, Friday, April 26. To Rid Arms and Legs of Hair
Without Fostering Bristly Re-Growth

A New Discovery That Not Only Removes Hair Instantly But Delays Its Reappearance Remarkably

Reappearance of hair is slowed amazingly without fostering coarsened re-growth

Even by running one's hand across the skin; absolutely no stubble can be felt this new way

A new way of removing arm and leg hair has been found that not only removes every vestige of hair instantly, but that banishes the stimulated hair growth thousands of women are charging to less modern ways. A way that not only removes hair, but delays its reappearance remarkably!

It is changing previous conceptions of cosmeticians about hair removing. Women are flocking to its use. The discovery of R. C. Lawry, noted beauty scientist, it is different from any other hair remover known.

WHAT IT IS
It is an exquisite toilet creme resembling a superior beauty clay in texture. You simply spread it on where hair is to be removed. Then rinse off with water.

That is all. Every vestige of hair is gone; so completely that even by running your hand across the skin not the slightest trace of stubble can be felt. And—the reappearance of that hair is delayed surprisingly!

When re-growth finally does come, it is utterly unlike the re-growth following old ways. You can feel the difference. No sharp stubble. No coarsened growth.

The skin, too, is left soft as a child's. No skin roughness, no enlarged pores. You feel freer than probably ever before in your life of annoying hair growth.

WHERE TO OBTAIN
It is called NEET—a preparation long on the market, but recently changed in compounding to embody the new Lawry discovery.

It is on sale at practically all drug and department stores and in beauty parlors. In both $1 and 60c sizes. The $1 size contains 3 times the quantity of the 60c size.

LUTHERAN ALTENHEIM CORNER STONE SERVICE

Ceremony to Take Place at New Building at 8721 McLaran Avenue.

The cornerstone of the new Lutheran Altenheim, under construction at 8721 McLaran avenue, will be laid at 3 o'clock this afternoon. The main address will be made by the Rev. Richard Kretchmar, pastor of Emmaus Lutheran Church and president of the Western District of the Missouri Synod.

The cornerstone will be laid by the Rev. A. P. Fedderson, pastor of St. Peter's Lutheran Church, assisted by other pastors. The Rev. F. S. Buenger, chaplain of the Altenheim, will speak in German. The ceremonies will be conducted on the first floor of the new building, construction having progressed to a point which makes this possible.

The new building, when it is completed in November, will supplant the structure at 1906 Lafayette avenue which has been the home of the society since 1906, but which has been outgrown in recent years. The new home is a two-story fireproof structure, which will cost about $140,000.

It will have private room for 80 residents. One wing of the building is devoted to the chapel. The kitchen and dining room are in the center wing. Assembly rooms for large gatherings and storage and laundry facilities are provided in the basement.

The Evangelical Lutheran Society of Missouri for Homeless Children and Aged Persons, which conducts the Altenheim, was founded in 1903 to care for homeless children. Three years later its activities were expanded to provide for the care of aged homeless Lutherans.

Two officers of the society have retained their present posts since its inception. L. H. Waltke has been president and the Rev. A. P. Fedderson, secretary of the society throughout its existence.

CONFEDERATE VETERAN DIES

John Williams, 85, Succumbs to Heart Attack While Walking.

TUBERCULOSIS SOCIETY BENEFIT JUNE 12

Athletic Entertainment Will Precede Cardinals' Baseball Game.

The fifteenth annual Tuberculosis day celebration and benefit ball game, sponsored by the Tuberculosis and Health Society of St. Louis, will be held at Sportsman's Park on Wednesday, June 12, when the St. Louis Cardinals and the Boston Braves will play.

As in past years, the four hours preceding the ball game will be taken up with an entertainment program, including drills, gymnastics, band concerts, races and other features, in which various churches, schools and organizations will participate. Details of the program will be worked out this week.

As in past years, hundreds of young women, chaperoned by society matrons, will distribute educational souvenir programs containing the schedule of events, a summary of the society's activity and educational health messages. Proceeds from the event will be used to finance the society's program of health promotion and disease prevention in the city and county.

During the 15 years the dates of the benefit game have ranged from the first part of June to the latter part of August, with July the favored month. Last year the celebration was held on July 28.

George Bernard Shaw Thinks Literature Is "a Damnable Profession" for Most People

In His First Nine Years He Earned $27 at It—His Advice on Play Writing Including Judicious Borrowing.

THIS is the second and concluding installment of an interview with George Bernard Shaw begun last Sunday in the Post-Dispatch:, the author, Norman Clarke, is secretary and certified referee of the British Boxing Board of Control. In the first chapter Shaw discussed boxers and boxing. Here it is literature and litterateurs.

By NORMAN CLARKE

LONDON, May 4.

HAVING put me at my ease by keeping the conversation on my subject, Shaw next turned to literature.

"You ask me in your letter what sort of a profession literature is," he said "For most people a damnable one. In my first nine years' writing I made five pounds, nine shillings and fourpence (about $27), the five pounds being for an advertisement I wrote. If you can pass examinations, pass them; and be a lawyer or a doctor or an engineer or an architect or something definite. But many men cannot pass examinations. I am one of them (not that I even tried); and it may be that you are another." In that case I might do worse than make literature my profession, though as a rule he urged young men to get a means of livelihood at all hazards before they "ventured in the supervagabondage of art or literature."

"However," he added, with a shrug, "some of us are so clearly doomed to face the hardest work and most precarious earnings rather than earn an honest living, that good advice becomes a hollow affectation."

I asked Shaw what he considered the best way to develop one's literary powers.

How to Learn to Write.

"Write a thousand words a day for 10 years," he replied promptly. "For the rest there is nothing to be done but keep on trying to express yourself as accurately as possible and to give form to the feeling as well as convey the facts."

"If possible, try to combine flying and boxing with some sort of constant access to good music, pictures and company. Frankly, your difficulty about literature, to which you are evidently tending by nature, is that you are a native of—that is to say, a savage. Added to which you have been to a public school, which usually kills all artistic tendency. You must do some footwork on the planbla; turn over a thousand photographs of the best paintings; visit a lot of European towns every year; pick up a smattering of French and German, and try to find out why masters of style produce a different effect to the authors of Boxiana. I had one great advantage in having escaped the literary man's stuffy little coteries, where works of art breed in and in until the intellectual and spiritual product becomes hopelessly degenerate. But I must not fail to find a substitute for this. Apparently I was now turning quite naturally to the art galleries, to Shakspeare and even Kant and Schopenhauer—most of whom I probably hated like poison at school, and if I continued on these lines without becoming an academic pedant—well, what could be better?"

He was about to say more, but people invited to lunch now entered, and the interview here ceased

Not a Bit Cynical.

Since then I have talked with Shaw many times and not infrequently have been more than an ordinary nuisance to him. But I have always found him just as when I met him first. Far from being in any way cynical toward inferiors, as is commonly supposed, there are few men with such a talent for wit and repartee who use it so sparingly, or with such a kindly humor. On meeting Shaw in private life, it is really his pleasant charm and convivial bubbling spirits that impress one more than anything else. With his white hair and beard, his dancing blue eyes and quizzical commically cocked eyebrows, he appears the fluffiest old creature imaginable, and however much he may chaff the company or draw their fire with monstrous exaggeration, anything in any way nasty seems out of the question with him.

As one of his friends once said: "Shaw is just a great big boy, who enjoys life and the world and himself to the fullest extent." Though he works hard, he is never borne down by his labors, and fun and innocence seem the dominant notes of the satirical old sage. Even the housemaid at his country house once told me he was the most agreeable man she knew (imagine your housemaid saying this to you, dear reader); and I remember that, when I went out there myself once and had to wait several hours for a train back (Shaw working in the next room meanwhile), every now and again he put his head round the door to enliven my stay with some humorous remark that occurred to him; after which he motored me back to the station, driving the car himself and waving gayly to the children who ran out to shout at him. He seemed well liked by the people in the village, so far as they were aware of his presence; and that morning had lunched with his neighbor—which I thought did them both particular credit.

"Never Have a Quarrel."

Shaw does not hold with quarrels or grievances, in the sense of making personal luxuries of them; and I remember that, when I once wrote him full of a grievance of my own, he very appropriately referred me to Pickwick. "Go on with your work," his letter ran; "and don't worry about Mr. —— and the injustices and miseries of other people's business. Read Dickens, and observe that the mottled-faced. man in Pickwick never got anywhere because he always stopped to fight someone on the way, and that the man from Shropshire was a nuisance and a failure and died miserably because he had a just grievance. Never have a grievance, and never have a quarrel. They are the feints of the adversary. You have lost one fight by letting yourself get rattled. Don't let Mr. —— knock you out that way."

Often he will take great trouble to give novices his best advice if they seem worth it. I remember some 10 years ago writing him with respect to a play I had written and asking him to give me a letter of recommendation to a certain actor-manager. As I see now it was a silly thing to do anyway, and, in the case of my play, little short of preposterous. But, strangely enough, Shaw replied most considerately. "The letter you suggest would not help you at all," he wrote, "and might put a spoke in your wheel that would upset your apple cart altogether.

Goldfish Vie With Clams and Bananas In Scramble for Tariff Protection

President Hoover's View of Tariff

PRESIDENT HOOVER, in his message to the special session of the Seventy-first Congress, in discussing the tariff question, offered the following suggestions:

No discrimination against any foreign industry is involved in equalizing the difference in costs of production at home and abroad—and thus taking from foreign producers the advantages they derive from paying lower wages to labor.

We must not fail to take into account the broad interests of the country as a whole, and such interests include our trade relations with other countries. It is obviously unwise protection which sacrifices a greater amount of employment from imports.

We also need important revision in some of the administrative phases of the tariff. The Tariff Commission should be reorganized and placed upon a basis of higher salaries.

Seven years of experience have proved the principle of flexible tariff to be practical and in the long view a most important principle to maintain.

The basis upon which the Tariff Commission makes its recommendations to the President for administrative changes in the rates of duty should be made more automatic and more comprehensive to the end that the time required for determinations by the Tariff Commission shall be greatly shortened.

I believe a formula can be found that will insure rapid and accurate determination of needed changes in rates.

If All Requests for Duties in One Schedule Were Granted, Free List Could Be Written on a Postage Stamp—Bible Publishers Fear English Competitors, They Assert.

By CHARLES G. ROSS,
Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, May 4.

ON gravel and goldfish; shingles, shoes and Swedish bread; bricks, bananas and Bibles; copra, clams, cod liver oil and cement—on these commodities and almost any other you can call to mind, American producers and manufacturers have petitioned Congress for a protective tariff.

So far as the parade of witnesses before the House Ways and Means Committee was concerned, the injunction of President Hoover that tariff revision be "limited" might just as well not have been uttered. They came by hundreds. The testimony makes a printed record of nearly 10,000 large pages. Gloomy is the picture of these United States; dire are the forecasts of disaster to the American workingman if the tariff wall is not made higher and stronger.

On the face of the record, it appears that virtually every industry in the country is tottering on the verge of ruin.

For a few samples of the testimony, let us dip into the volume devoted to Schedule 15—the present free list. This volume alone contains more than 1700 pages. If all the requests for protection here set out were granted, it would be possible to write the free list on a postage stamp, and in some cases a practical embargo upon imports would be created.

Goldfish Business Fearful of Japanese Competition.

E. C. Shireman of Martinsville, Ind., appeared before the committee on behalf of the goldfish industry. Some of the committee laughed when he said he was in the goldfish business, but the mission on which he came was no laughing matter to Mr. Shireman. He testified that more than $1,000,000 was invested in goldfish production, and that this investment was in grave danger of being wiped out by competition from Japan. The prices of labor and of food for the goldfish were so much cheaper in Japan, he said, that American producers were unable to compete.

They were unable to compete, said the witness, and yet, in a burst of pride, he told the committee that in the last 20 years "we have developed this business until today I think I can safely say that the goldfish business is a recognized business in this country; we have developed a market to the point where goldfish are a standard and recognized department in thousands of the very best stores."

Shireman asked for a duty of not less than 33 1-3 per cent ad valorem.

Publishers of Bibles informed the committee that they needed a 25 per cent duty. It appeared that prior to the Underwood (Democratic) tariff act, Bibles carried this duty, but they were then transferred to the free list.

"We wrote to President Wilson about it," naively explained some of the publishers in a brief, "and we wrote to Senator Boies Penrose. Senator Penrose promised to act when the matter came up before the committee, but he died before that day arrived."

So the publishers are now trying to repair the omission that Senator Penrose no doubt would have repaired for them if he had lived.

American Bible Business Cites Its Ancient Lineage.

"Is there no sentiment about the production of American-made Bibles, begun during the days of the American Revolution?" asked the publishers. "Should that industry be throttled?"

A representative of the industry told the committee that the American producers were at a serious disadvantage because of lower labor costs in Great Britain. The result was that in 1927, 1,500,000 Bibles were imported. He asked for a tariff "in the interest of the American workman and the American publisher."

"I notice," said Representative Henry T. Rainey (Dem.) of Illinois, "that the number of pounds of Bibles imported has been decreasing until it is only about one-half as much as it was in 1926. That is all."

The witness was pressed to tell how much the price of Bibles would be increased under the proposed tariff rate. He was not prepared to say. Many factors entered into the pricing of Bibles. One was the competition among American manufacturers, and another was what the witness called "competition with the consumer—the desire to increase the consumption of the Bible."

"If you do not get a higher price for it," asked Representative Charles R. Crisp (Dem.) of Georgia, "how would the duty help the American laborer?"

"By keeping out imported Bibles," replied the witness, "and allowing us to make additional Bibles that are now imported."

"You are not prepared to say whether the price of Bibles would be increased?"

"I am prepared to say that it would not be increased by the whole amount of the duty."

Further arguments for a Bible duty were given in a publisher's brief: "The Bible business is a restricted business. All the world is not our oyster by any means. We have to sell where and when we may. The same customers are not the same all of the time. The boot trade has constant, recurring, repeating customers. We all wear shoes. A man, when he buys a Bible, doesn't buy one every year. . . . We make a plea for relief."

Wants Tariff on Bananas to Popularize Other Fruit.

The appeal for a tariff on bananas was equally ardent, though the argument rested on entirely different grounds. The domestic production of Bibles is very large, but of bananas it is negligible. Why, then, a duty on bananas? A witness representing the National Horticultural Council, which speaks for a long list of fruit growers' organizations, undertook to explain.

"Bananas," he said, "compete with all American food products, but they compete particularly with American fruits. Our total consumption of American fruits has remained about the same for the last 20 or 30 years. Some of our fruits have decreased in consumption. Only oranges have shown any material increases. It thus appears that the banana trade has been built up largely at the expense of American fruits.

"There is no justification for the contention that bananas are a poor man's food. Calorie value, which is the basis of comparison most commonly used, can be purchased more cheaply in a large number of American products."

"Your theory," interposed Representative Rainey, "is that if we put the tariff high enough on bananas, when people think of eating bananas they will reach for an apple. Is that right?"

"Yes," replied the witness. "I think there is no doubt that a slightly increased price of bananas will encourage many people to use more American fruits."

In order to increase the price, he asked that bananas be taken off the free list and made subject to a tariff of 1 1-2 cents a pound of gross weight.

Costlier Cream Separators Urged to Help the Farmer.

We turn the pages of the record and come to cream separators. How can that be? Cream separators are a necessary part of the farmer's equipment, and this was to be a tariff bill primarily in the interest of the farmer. The record explains. Not only the farmer, it appears, but also the association of American Manufacturers of Centrifugal Separators is in need of relief.

Hand separators of less than $50 valuation are now on the free list. The spokesman of the industry asked that a duty of 45 per cent "at the very minimum" be placed on all kinds of separators. The idea, he said, was not to increase the price to the farmer but to drive off the market the cheap machines "that are coming to be a real source of competition." It was much more economical for the farmer, he asserted, to use the well-made American machines than the cheap foreign product. With a 45 per cent duty, he thought that the American manufacturers would barely be able to meet their foreign competition.

Typewriters and their parts are on the free list, and the Treasury Department has held that typewriter spools and ribbons come within the category of parts and must be admitted without duty. Makers of spools and ribbons, pointing out that their business is entirely separate from the manufacture of typewriters, told the committee they were in need of protection against a large volume of imports from Germany and other countries.

Former Congressman Cleveland A. Newton of St. Louis, representing the National Biscuit Co. and others, appeared before the committee to protest against the free admission of "Swedish bread." This bread, he said, was not bread in the usual sense of that word, but ought to come within the class of biscuits, wafers, cakes and the like, which carry a duty of 30 per cent ad valorem.

In order that the National Biscuit Co. of New York, the Ralston Purina Co. of St. Louis and other American baking concerns might be protected against the Swedish product, Newton asked the committee to exempt from duty only that kind of bread which 'contains yeast in such quantity as to create a light, raised loaf, such as is known as bread in the United States."

Representative John Garner (Dem.) of Texas had this comment to make on the proposal: "In 1925 there was a billion dollars worth of bread produced in the United States and there was imported less than $300,000 worth. It would seem to me that that is mighty little for the farmer to complain about."

Prosperous Cod Liver Oil Firms Want 45 Pct. Levy.

The producers of cod liver oil declared that they needed a duty of 45 per cent ad valorem. "Do you know," said Representative Rainey, addressing the spokesman of the industry, "how much your sales were in 1925 and 1927?"

"I could not answer that question," replied the witness.

"I will tell you," said Rainey. "Your sales amounted to $4,940,000 in 1925, and by 1927 they had increased to $6,211,592. Do you know how much you have increased your surplus during that period?"

"I am not able to answer exactly," said the witness.

"Four hundred per cent," said Rainey. "Do you know how much you have increased your earned surplus?"

"No, sir."

"From $299,000 to $652,000," said Rainey. "Do you know what your total surplus is now?"

"It is around $900,000 now," replied the witness.

"Are you aware," continued Rainey, "that you retired your entire bonded indebtedness on June 1, 1928, although it was not due until 1936?"

"By an exchange of stock for the bonds," explained the witness.

"That," said Rainey, "is all I want to ask."

The Portland cement industry, represented before the committee by G. S. Brown of Easton, Pa., asked for a duty of 22 cents per 100 pounds. Cement has been on the free list since 1914. Brown told the committee that protection was needed against shipments from Belgium.

"Do you believe in the prohibitory or embargo theory?" asked Representative Garner.

"I believe in a tariff which is sufficiently high to enable the American industry to sell its goods at a reasonable profit, but not a profiteering price," replied the witness.

"You would advocate an economic theory under which there would be no importations whatever, if the industry could produce that article in this country?"

"If that article could be produced in this country under the standard American competitive conditions, I would advocate what you have said."

"Then," pursued Garner, "what would be-

Presidents Live in Atmosphere Of Adulation Which Sooner or Later Impairs Their Judgment

—CALVIN COOLIDGE.

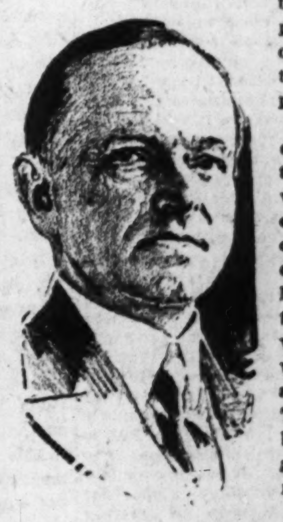
Former Executive Tells Why He Sent Secretary to Convention to Work Against His Renomination.

By CALVIN COOLIDGE
Former President of the United States

(Reprinted by special arrangement with Cosmopolitan Magazine.)

PERHAPS I have already indicated some of the reasons why I did not desire to be a candidate to succeed myself.

The Presidential office takes a heavy toll of those who occupy it and those who are dear to them. While we should not refuse to spend and be spent in the service of our country, it is hazardous to attempt what we feel is beyond our strength to accomplish.



I had never wished to run in 1928, and had determined to make a public announcement at a sufficiently early date so that the party would have ample time to choose someone else. An appropriate occasion for that announcement seemed to be the fourth anniversary of my taking office. The reasons I can give may not appear very convincing, but I am confident my decision was correct.

My personal and official relations have all been peculiarly pleasant. The Congress has not always done all that I wished, but they have done very little that I did not approve. So far as I can judge, I have been especially fortunate in having the approbation of the country.

Limit on Efficiency.

But irrespective of the third-term policy, the presidential office is of such a nature that it is difficult to conceive how one man can successfully serve the country for a term of more than eight years.

While I am in favor of continuing the long-established custom of the country in relation to a third term for a President, yet I do not think that the practice applies to one who has succeeded to part of a term as Vice President. Others might argue that it does, but I doubt if the country would so consider it.

Although my own health has been practically perfect, yet the duties are very great and 10 years would be a very heavy strain. It would be especially long for the mistress of the White House. Mrs. Coolidge has been in more than usual good health, but I doubt if she could have stayed there for 10 years without some danger of impairment of her strength.

A President should not only not be selfish, but he ought to avoid the appearance of selfishness. The people would not have confidence in a man that appeared to be grasping for office.

It is difficult for men in high office to avoid the malady of self-delusion. They are always surrounded by worshipers. They are constantly, and for the most part sincerely, assured of their greatness.

Dangers of Presidency.

They live in an artificial atmosphere of adulation and exaltation which sooner or later impairs their judgment. They are in grave danger of becoming careless and arrogant.

The chances of having wise and faithful public service are increased by a change in the presidential office after a moderate length of time.

It is necessary for the head of the Nation to differ with many people who are honest in their opinions. As his term progresses, the number who are disappointed accumulates. Finally, there is so large a body who have lost confidence in him that he meets a rising opposition, which makes his efforts less effective.

In the higher ranges of public service, men appear to come forward to perform a certain duty. When it is performed their work is done. They usually find it impossible to readjust themselves in the thought of the people so as to pass on successfully to the solution of new public problems.

An examination of the records of those Presidents who have served eight years will disclose that in almost every instance the latter part of their term has shown very little in the way of constructive accomplishment. They have often been clouded with grave disappointments.

While I had a desire to be relieved of the pretensions and delusions of public life, it was not because of any attraction of pleasure or idleness.

We draw our Presidents from the people. It is a wholesome thing for them to return to the people. I came from them. I wish to be one of them.

Although all our Presidents have had back of them a good heritage of blood, very few have been born to the purple. Fortunately, they are not supported at public expense after leaving office, so they are not expected to set an example encouraging to a leisure class.

They have only the same title to nobility that belongs to all our citizens, which is the one based on achievement and character, so they need not assume superiority. It is becoming for them to engage in some dignified employment where they can be of service as others are.

Our country does not believe in idleness. It honors hard work. I wanted to serve the country again as a private citizen.

In making my public statement I was careful in the use of words. There were some who reported that they were mystified as to my meaning when I said, "I do not choose to run."

Although I did not know it at the time, months later I found that Washington said practically the same thing. Certainly he said no more in his Farewell Address, where he announced that "choice and prudence" invited him to retire.

View of Fitting Action.

There were others who constantly demanded that I should state that if nominated I would refuse to accept. Such a statement would not be in accordance with my conception of the requirements of the presidential office. I never stated or formulated in my own mind what I should do under such circumstances, but I was determined not to have that contingency arise.

I therefore sent the secretary to the President, Everett Sanders, a man of great ability and discretion, to Kansas City with instructions to notify several of the leaders of State delegations not to vote for me. Had I not done so, I am told, I should have been nominated.

The report that he had talked with me on the telephone after his arrival, and I had told him I would not accept if nominated, was a pure fabrication. I had no communication with him of any kind after he left Washington and did not give him any such instruction or message at any time.

I thought if I could prevent being nominated, which I was able

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Newspapers and Public Utilities.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

SHOULD public utilities combines be permitted to own or control great newspapers? The International Paper and Power Co. has forced this question on Massachusetts by buying a half interest in the Boston Herald and Traveler. Perhaps those papers were sold as an act of survival, for if the International absorbs all newsprint paper manufacturers, as it plainly is bent on doing, how can independent newspapers exist if they make themselves objectionable to that company by criticising its power policies? All newspapers will have to shut up or close up.

It is a black outlook for the press, the people and the country. Papers cannot be published without paper. When the Power Company dominates the field of newsprint manufacture it will fix the selling rates of paper. Those news sheets which are in the ring with the Power-Paper-and-Press combine will live and flourish and proclaim the virtues of the Power Monopoly: while those that are out in the cold will be charged such prices for newsprint material that they will perish.

Huge monopoly trusts used to be feared. But until now there never was a monopoly with a fraction of the menace to the nation that this International Paper, Power and Press Company wields. The deadly new factor is that former trusts aimed only at monopoly of American wealth, while this Power Trust reaches out to monopolize the American mind also. It takes over the people's organs of public opinion. All "public opinion" will soon be merely Power Company opinion, manufactured in its shops by editorial stenographers.

The press is the public school of adults. A newspaper is essentially a public function. Having taken over the public school of the grown, the one remaining act of the power monopoly in order to mold the American mind, and then smoothly to absorb wealth as fast as the people produce it, is to purchase the American public schools, so that prior to the newspaper-reading age it can teach American children to revere the Paper and Power Company as the people's fatherly guardian and the trustee of their wealth.

Urges Tornado Precaution.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I AM surprised that while everything possible is being done to prevent loss of life and property by floods, little or nothing is being said as to preventing loss of life through tornadoes, although we have these every spring and often at other times.

In the recent destructive storms a few persons saved themselves by getting into so-called cyclone cellars, but the majority of the victims appear not to have had any such refuges. Is it not time to attempt to persuade everyone who dwells in the vast tornado regions to build a strong reinforced concrete room, or a cyclone cellar close to the house, in which to take refuge when a bad looking storm is approaching? Many cyclone cellars are built at a distance from the house, being used for storage or other purposes. I am sure any builder used to concrete work could construct a room or cellar, reinforced with old railroad iron or steel, which would stand even if the rest of the building were blown away. That would mean, quite often, the safety of the family, which is the main thing. Why do people neglect this simple and not costly precaution?

Favors Sex Education.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

MANY newspapers have published editorials recently criticising the New York jury which found a woman guilty of violating the law prohibiting sending obscene matter through the mails. These expressions of the press are most commendable from a viewpoint of common sense and real morality.

But if matter relating to sex is obscene according to a strictly legal interpretation, then every Sunday newspaper and a majority of the magazines in the country should be fined and the publishers sent to jail on the same kind of evidence that was used to convict this New York woman.

This woman had a high and worthy motive, and her name should be given a place in the hall of fame as a model wife and mother. She is one of America's heroines.

Instead of prudish laws tending to prohibit young people from learning the great truths of life in the right way, we should have laws compelling all who contemplate marriage to prove themselves competent to instruct prospective children on the subject of sex life. And any parents failing to give their children such instruction should be regarded as violaters of the law and dealt with accordingly.

Give us more mothers like this courageous, sensible, high-minded New York woman, and we would see a finer, stronger type of young manhood and young womanhood stepping forward in the next generation to assume control of the world's business; stronger morally, mentally and physically, with finer ideals and a better understanding of life's duties than has ever characterized the young people of any age in the world's history.

POLITICS AND BUSINESS.

The folly of making government and business the same thing has been recognized since the time of Plato. He said: "Where men are out of their natural places, where the business man subordinates the statesman, or the soldier usurps the condition of the King—there the co-ordination of the parts is destroyed, and society disintegrates."

Epitomizing the political philosophy of Plato, Will Durant says that as society evolves and "the wealth of the merchant overreaches that of the land owner, aristocracy gives way to a plutocratic oligarchy —wealthy traders and bankers rule the State. Then statesmanship, which is the co-ordination of social forces and the adjustment of policy to growth, is replaced by politics, which is the strategy of party and lust for the spoils of office. So perishes every form of government by excess of its basic principles. Aristocracy ruins itself by limiting too narrowly the circle within which power is confined; oligarchy ruins itself by the incautious scramble for immediate wealth; democracy ruins itself because people are not equipped by education to select the best rulers and the wisest courses."

Donald R. Richberg of Chicago, one of the country's leading experts in the field of economics, is the latest American to remind us of Plato's warning. Mr. Richberg says political parties in the United States are dead. We have only the Republican-Democratic combine for purely business purposes. The political and intellectual values once distinguishing the American experiment no longer count for anything as against the fortunes of business. He wonders if we are going to continue upon this course until we reach the political ideal of fascism or communism, which do not tolerate opposition. Those Democrats who have resisted the theory that tradesmen should run the government have paid dearly for their insistence upon that political ideal. They are now the accepted symbols of calamity. They do not deserve this, but it is the penalty they are paying for refusing to be more time-serving than philosophical.

In our opinion—and this is also the opinion of eminent philosophers who considered the plight of American politics for the Fiftieth Anniversary Number of the Post-Dispatch—the phenomenon which so dismays Mr. Richberg is nothing worse than a chapter in American history. It began with Mr. McKinley; reached its height under Mr. Coolidge, and is probably even now in its decline. It is quite true that Mr. Hoover is in the White House as the symbol of prosperity, but it is not true that he is taking himself very seriously as such. He is more interested in making the Government efficient than in making it meet the expectations of those who elevated him to the presidency. His pronouncement on the tariff and his farm relief plan, whether practicable or not, are all on the side of positive government along political lines, something the country has not known since Mr. Wilson's time. Mr. Coolidge represented the purely business theory of government. Except when our money lenders and business men needed the marines, his policy was negative. Constructive policies for the benefit of the whole people had no place in his philosophy.

The tradesman whom Plato feared gave us the oil scandals. He gave us the Ohio gang, and the Harding administration. He gave us the Insull-made United States Senator-reject from Illinois. He destroyed the usefulness of the Tariff Commission and made it an instrument of privilege. "The business of the country is business," said Mr. Coolidge at the height of that era, where the founders of the Government had said that the business of the Government was the well-being of the people. "The French political ideal," says Andre Siegfried, "is to make the individual free; the American ideal is to make him rich." Thus, to paraphrase Patrick Henry, "Give me riches or give me death!"

It has taken a long time for the significance of all this to sink into the public consciousness, but even the dullest mind at last perceives that to make business and politics the same thing is to drag government down to the level of trading. If the country does not conceive that to be folly then it will be as Plato said: "Ruin comes when the trader becomes ruler."

THE BROWNS ARE BACK.

Our Browns are back home with us after their first foreign invasion, and they are coming back like Alexander, Julius Caesar and Napoleon before he got old and fat. Disdaining further historical patter, let us say that the Browns return in first place, bright and confident, while Chicago, Detroit and Cleveland are wondering what kind of a St. Louis cyclone struck them.

To add to the drama of today's occasion the second-place Philadelphia Athletics are the enemy. Thus we shall see in action the two teams, one of which, the experts agree, will wrest the pennant from the Yankees, if that devoutly to be wished consummation is on the scroll. We bespeak such a welcome for the Browns as made St. Louis the banner baseball town of the country once upon a time. Forget the radio. Don't wait for the paper. Be right there, in the midst of the tumult and the shouting and the glorification.

The Browns deserve a crowd today, so rain, rain, go away.

BANK MERGERS.

The recent bank mergers in St. Louis are symptomatic of a nation-wide trend. In the first quarter of 1929 more than a hundred bank mergers took place, and 42 of these mergers involved total assets of $12,000,000,000, approximately one-sixth of the total banking resources in the country. By the joining of the National City Bank of New York with the Farmers Loan and Trust Co. and the merger of the Bank of Commerce with the Guaranty Trust Co. the United States now has two banks in the $2,000,000,000 class. If the rumored combination of the National City Bank with the Equitable Trust Co. and the Seaboard National Bank comes true, the United States will have the largest bank in the world, a distinction now held by the Midland Bank of London.

There are various reasons for these mergers. In the case of the National City Bank and the Farmers Loan and Trust Co., the motivating idea was to obtain a rounded organization. The National City Bank has engaged mainly in purchasing securities from issuing institutions and disposing of them to clients, while the Farmers Loan and Trust Co.'s principal function has been the investment of huge sums of money as the custodian of great estates. These two activities dovetail and explain the merger. Another reason for the consolidations is to enable banks to keep step with merged industries. Since the law limits to 10 per cent of its capital the sum any bank may lend to one investor, many banks have been unable, acting singly, to meet the needs of their large clients.

It is an interesting fact that the United States, despite its tremendous growth in the last 15 years, has fewer banks than it had in 1914. In 1914 there were 26,765 banks, with total resources of $27,000,000,000, while in 1928 there were 26,213 banks, with resources of $71,500,000,000. This trend toward concentration of wealth has aroused none of the criticism that attended the formation of huge industries. Nevertheless, there are seeds of danger in a movement which in time might place the control of credit in the hands of a comparatively few men, making them virtual rulers of the country.

THE REPARATIONS COMPROMISE.

It remains to be seen if Mr. Owen D. Young's proposal in behalf of the American experts to reduce the reparations claim against Germany from some $10,000,000,000 to about $6,000,000,000 will be acceptable to the French and Belgians.

Mr. Young thinks he can induce the French and the Belgians to accept such a reduction, and the world can only hope that he will be able to do so. Almost nobody outside of the French and Belgians believes it either possible or politic to insist upon an unreasonable claim against the Germans, and it is likely that if they persist in one they will be deserted by their allies. It is, of course, true that both those countries were terribly damaged by the war, and it was the Germans who did the damage; but that the Germans were any more responsible for the war than were some of the other Powers is denied by historians. There is, too, the consideration that Germany was herself impoverished by the war. She has had to borrow almost every dollar of reparations she has paid, and for her to resume her place in the international economy is always going to be difficult as long as she is under this terrible war debt. The allies, of course, hope to collect from Germany money with which to pay their war debts to the United States. Despite insistence by our own Government that the two things are entirely separate, they are in fact inseparable.

The American experts who are attending the reparations conference in Paris have sought to give this matter the benefit of the cooling interval since the war. They have apparently persuaded Germany to agree upon a reparations program spread over 58 years and totaling at length about $6,000,000,000. Their difficulty now is to get that compromise accepted. The allies will naturally feel that since this proposal comes from the United States, our country should grant them a corresponding cut in their war debts. Perhaps this is what we will have to do. Both the reparations and the war debts have become obstacles to international amity and trade, and as the war recedes they every day assume a more political and therefore more impolitic aspect.

It is at any rate encouraging to know that what seemed but a few days ago a hopeless matter now promises a solution. If Mr. Young's proposal can be agreed upon by the French and the Belgians the world will owe the Americans who have participated in this preliminary conference a not inconsiderable debt of gratitude. Happily, that is an obligation of a much mellower sort.

HIGHWAY COMMISSION ASKED TOO MUCH.

The Senate has defeated two bills, introduced at the instance of the State Highway Commission, to give that board authority to fix the salaries of its attorneys and engineers. In our opinion the Senate has acted wisely. As regards attorneys, the Commission will never have any trouble getting lawyers to serve at the present compensation. It does not need Elihu Roots to furnish legal guidance. A better case could be made for engineers. To lose an experienced and unusually able man of that profession, because of inadequate salary would, of course, be embarrassing and might prove costly to the State. Nevertheless, the Highway Commission has been vested with great power. It has been generously treated by the Legislature which, after a few old-time pork-barrel gestures, carried out the popular mandate. We doubt that public sentiment would approve a further grant of power which the Commission, in the fallibility of its mortal flesh, might be tempted to abuse.

MR. GANNETT SETS A RECORD.

We have no statistics on the subject, but we imagine Frank E. Gannett, newspaper publisher, has set a new record. We refer to his remarkable feat of raising the large sum of $2,700,000 between Tuesday and Saturday of last week. Tuesday was a fateful day for Mr. Gannett, because on that day Archibald C. Graustein, big paper and public utility magnate, testified the International Paper & Power Co. held investments of $10,000,000 in thirteen daily newspapers. Four of these newspapers—Brooklyn Eagle, Albany News, Albany Knickerbocker Press and Ithaca Journal News—are controlled by Mr. Gannett. And you have already guessed that the interest of Mr. Graustein's company in these newspapers amounted to $2,700,000. Early Saturday morning, Mr. Graustein received a check from Mr. Gannett for that sum.

Whatever else may be said for Mr. Gannett, he is an astute business man. He knew that his newspapers would suffer enormously from public knowledge of the fact that they were owned in part by paper and public utility interests. He didn't want his papers to suffer the odium that has fallen upon the Boston Herald and Boston Traveller, in which Mr. Graustein's company owns a half interest. He heard with a good deal of anguish the nation-wide protest which followed the revelation that private industry was threatening the freedom of the press.

It is said Heaven loves repentance, and perhaps Mr. Gannett's prompt repudiation of an unhappy alliance will gain for him the ground his papers have lost by Mr. Graustein's testimony. At any rate, the incident shows the value of hauling into the open the dark lantern transactions of the International Paper & Power Co. It is a great victory for public opinion.

HELL BREAKS OUT IN ANOTHER QUARTER.

Our Growing Knowledge of Man

While speculation as to the origin of man has always engaged the human mind, the scientific approach to the problem did not begin until the latter part of the 18th century; since then the theory of evolution has been worked out to the point that it now commands general acceptance; meanwhile, science continues its effort to solve the many by-problems of human evolution.

Ales Hrdlicka in The Outlook.

AN ENDEAVOR to account for man's origin has been universal. Study of the myths and beliefs of different peoples shows that there was no tribe, no ethnic group, no religious unit, that did not have some theory, however crude, as to how man came into existence. And before science came in, once an idea became set in any group, it constituted a dogma which effectively stopped or greatly retarded further thought in that direction. Religious dogmas, being directly associated with the deities (revelations), became particularly powerful. Had it not been for the Biblical account, especially, current thoughts about man's origin and his knowledge of himself as well as that of the rest of the living nature, would have developed much earlier.

An analysis of the conceptions reached on the subject before the advant of the scientific period, shows that the numerous forms group themselves into three main classes. They are: (1) wholly thaumaturgic, or (2) partly supernatural and partly natural, or (3) essentially natural.

The first class of theories regard man's origin as due to purely supernatural agencies and means, without speculating as to the details. Many of the anthropogenesis of primitive tribes of today, together with those of some of the earlier Greeks, earlier Romans, and one of the versions of the Genesis, are or were of this nature.

The second class of views is subdivisible into two series. In the first, common to the Egyptians, all the Semitic peoples of Asia Minor, some of the Greeks (the Hephaestus myths) and to the second version of the Genesis, man's body is made of earthly materials (clay, bone, blood, etc.), with the life and soul added supernaturally. In the second subclass of these beliefs, common to some of the American Indians and others, man originates supernaturally from subterranean or recently emerged mythical birds or other animal forms.

The third, naturalistic, or scientific category of theories may again be separated into two subclasses. The first, held by some of the early Greek and other philosophers, such as Aristotle, and and surviving largely to this day, teach a natural, evolutionary origin of the body, but believe in a distinct and higher origin of the "soul;" while the others claim an evolutionary origin of all man's attributes, physical and intellectual. The great difficulty in both these lines is the lack of a definition of the concept of "soul." Man has never known clearly and does not know yet just what is his "soul."

From the earliest time this third-class of views as to man's origin differed widely from both preceding ones in being based on actual observation. In the beginnings, in the time of Anaximander and his followers, th observations were limited, imperfect and empirical; but men were gradually recognizing the close analogies between man and the rest of the organisms which surrounded him in the world.

True scientific observations by learned men, however, and deductions on the problem of human origin began during the latter part of the Eighteenth Century, and hence long before Charles Darwin.

Buffon, Erasmus Darwin, Goethe, Treviranus, Gall, Geoffroy St. Hilaire, and a good number of others, headed eventually by Lamarck, and later Wallace, precede Charles Darwin; but it is the latter who, in 1871, in his "Descent of Man," gives the first comprehensive treatise on the subject.

Buffon, Erasmus Darwin (grandfather of Charles) and above all Lamarck, explained evolution by a gradual inheritance of "acquired characters" or structural adaptations, brought forth by environmental conditions. For Charles Darwin and his close followers, the essential factor in evolution, human or animal, was "natural selection" or, as Herbert Spencer termed it, the "survival of the fittest," working with the normal variation of every organism and of every part. Organisms vary; they also increase in numbers; the numerical increase leads to competition and struggle for existence; and in this struggle the most "fit" and best adapted to their environment survive and advance the group in their direction.

Since Lamarck and Darwin, the theory of human origin by evolution has been generally accepted by scientific men and enriched by a whole realm of observations and proofs, until what had originally been a theory has become one of the best documented pages of human knowledge.

At present, the essentials of man's origin through evolution are established facts. Still uncertain are many of the details of the highly complex process involved, the exact sources from which man developed and the causes and ways of his differentiation; but these do not affect the soundness of the main conclusion.

Meanwhile science is endeavoring to solve more definitely the many still more or less obscure by-problems of human evolution. The efforts are partly a patient intensive search for additional material evidence, partly speculation. It is the latter that is responsible for the various theories as to man's precise ancestry, the exact time of man's appearance, the true cradle-land of humanity and the actual modes of human evolution; theories that, because of their variance, are by many mistaken for uncertainties of the main subject. It is such differences that may be seen in the recent writings of Osborn, Gregory, Clark and others. They depend on the basis and angle from which the still imperfectly explored field is contemplated and on other individual conditions. Similar human gropings after truth, before it has been fully revealed in material facts, are common to all branches of science. They are the useful "working hypotheses" of science, lasting until they are shown to be erroneous, or until replaced by better conceptions. They help toward the eventual reaching and crystallization of human knowledge.

Already, however, the cultured man and woman are becoming less curious about their remote ancestors, less concerned about the past, and are directing their attention to the next problems, which are man's further differentiation in the present, with the promises and indications for the future.

WASHINGTON DAY BY DAY

WASHINGTON, May 5.

WHEN Madame Rosika Schwimmer, Hungarian pacifist, decided to seek American citizenship and got into a tangle with the Government that has taken the question of her eligibility before the Supreme Court for solution, it was quite natural that she should turn to a woman lawyer as counsel.

Her case was briefed and orally argued by Olive H. Rabe of Chicago. And no layman who reads that brief can doubt that it presents very ticklish aspects for the highest tribunal to consider.

There isn't any doubt about Madame Schwimmer's pacifism. She has a notable record here and abroad, covering many years as a writer and worker.

Her part in organization of the Ford peace ship pilgrimage in 1915 to "get the boys out of the trenches by Christmas" is well remembered in Washington.

But the specific reason for denial of citizenship by the Federal District Court in Chicago was that she had declared in her application that she would not bear arms in defense of any Government or cause.

BOTH the District Court, and now the executive branch of Government as represented by Attorney-General Mitchell, took the view that Madame Schwimmer, in the circumstances, could not take her oath of allegiance without a mental reservation. They contended that willingness to bear arms in defense of the Constitution and Government was one of the principles of that Constitution to which an applicant for naturalization must be "attached" before admission to the privileges of citizenship could be granted under existing statutes.

The Appellate Court held that "mere views" were not sufficient ground for denying naturalization and that questioning Madame Schwimmer as her willingness to bear arms was just talking in "conundrums" in view of her sex.

Madame Schwimmer herself was ready to take the oath on the ground that it did not require her to defend the Constitution by force of arms.

So, on Government motion, it is now up to the Supreme Court to say what that word defend in the oath of allegiance means and if an applicant for naturalization describing herself as "an uncompromising pacifist for whom even Jane Addams is not enough of a pacifist," is eligible to take it.

LAWYER RABE raises interesting points about that in her brief. She holds that if "defend" necessarily means by force of arms, Quakers and others of "religious conviction" against bearing arms could not even be granted passports.

Also, Lawyer Rabe touches on the presidential oath of office which includes the "defend" language. Should "defend" be held to mean by force of arms, the brief said, there was no sound reason why the same construction should not apply to the President's oath "so as to bar from the presidency a member of any religious sect whose principles forbid its members to bear arms."

Which, quite obviously, is a neat reference to President Hoover.

Scramble for More Tariff Protection

ome of the $5,000,000,000 worth of exports that we now send to the countries of the world?"

"Mr. Garner," replied the witness, "you are getting me beyond my depth a little, because I do not understand those things."

"You are a level-headed business man," said Garner, "You have demonstrated that."

The demand for a duty on cement did not go unchallenged. Representing a group of cement importers, W. M. Richardson of Philadelphia told the committee that the American industry, by its own figures, now controlled 98.5 per cent of the cement business in the United States, and that if the duty were granted, it would be given an absolute monopoly.

Brick and Shingles.

The manufacturers of building brick informed the committee that as protection against foreign imports, principally from Belgium, they should have a duty of $5.25 per 1000 on their product.

"I understood you to say," said Garner to one of the witnesses, "that if we gave you this tariff there would be no increase in the price of brick."

"I did not quite say that, Mr. Garner," was the reply. "At least, I did not mean to say that."

The United States cedar industry, a collection of cedar mills in Oregon, Washington and Idaho, requested a tariff of 25 per cent ad valorem on shingles. This, the committee was told, represented the exact difference in the cost of production here and in Canada. The American production of shingles was declared to be in imminent danger of being wiped out by Canadian competition.

Representatives of retail lumber dealers and of stained shingle manufacturers appeared in opposition to the proposed duty.

The National Sand and Gravel Association petitioned the committee for a duty of 5 cents per 100 pounds on prepared sand and gravel. Canada was again cited as the source of the principal competition.

A group of shoe manufacturers argued in oral testimony and through elaborate briefs for a 25 per cent duty on shoes. Protection was desired mainly against the importation of women's shoes from Czecho-Slovakia. J. Franklin McElwain of Boston, speaking for a section of the industry, said the request for a 25 per cent duty was predicated on the free admission of hides; if a duty were put on hides, the shoe men would want an additional compensatory duty on shoes.

St. Louisans and Shoes.

The International Shoe Co. and the Brown Shoe Co., both of St. Louis, did not join with their Eastern competitors in asking for the duty. They also opposed a duty on hides. In a letter to Representative L. C. Dyer (Rep.), St. Louis, which was cited to the committee, John A. Bush of the Brown company said that a tariff on hides would not benefit the farmer and would raise the national shoe bill by $150,000,000 to $200,000,000 a year.

The makers of religious statuary asked that their industry be encouraged by a duty of 75 per cent on the foreign output.

The Pacific coast clam broke its silence, as a witness put it, by rising up and demanding for the Clam Packers' Association an ad valorem duty of 35 per cent on the canned product. The native clam desired to be protected against the Japanese clam.

The broom corn growers of the United States called for a duty of $40 a ton on broom corn, broom straw and rice straw.

George D. Jacobsmeyer of Ferguson, Mo., representing the National Horse Radish Growers' Association, said that his industry, in order to meet foreign competiiton, required a duty of 5 cents a pound on the crude root and 50 per cent ad valorem on the manufactured product. About 10,000,000 pounds of horseradish is consumed annually in the United States. The importations in 1928 amounted to 10,000 pounds.

Most of the American growers of horseradish live in St. Louis County, Missouri, and St. Clair and Madison Counties, Illinois. It was contended that if the industry were protected by a tariff, more farmers would go into it.

Such is a fraction—an infinitesimal fraction—of the testimony that the House Ways and Means Committee heard in preparation for the drafting of the 1929 tariff act.

THREE SOLDAN BOYS WINNERS IN CHEMICAL ESSAY CONTEST

Among Six Missouri Students Whose Work Will Be Judged in National Competition.

Three St. Louis high school boys are among the Missouri winners in the annual contest of the American Chemical Society for four-year scholarships of $500 and tuition at any recognized American college, awarded for the best essay on each of six topics. The scholarships are given by Mr. and Mrs. Francis P. Garvan of New York, in memory of their daughter, Patricia.

Each of the six state winners receives $20 in gold and a certificate, and their essays will be judged with those which won in other states for the national awards.

The Missouri Winners were Samuel Schultz, Alexander Langsdorf Jr. and John Douglas Martin of Soldan High School; Virginia Spicer of Marshall and Eloise Call and Virginia Jones of Springfield. Runners-up included Herman Schultehenrich of St. Louis University High School, Herbert Harvey of Central High School and Melvin Hurni of Cleveland High School.

Advice From G. B. Shaw On Literature as Profession

The gentleman in question is of very uncertain temper, and whether at the moment of receiving your communication he regarded me as the noblest of men or as the common enemy of mankind would be a toss-up.

How the Beginner Breaks in.

"There is nothing to be done in that way. Suppose you were a manager and were civil to me because you wanted plays from me. How would you feel if I offered you a play by somebody else? You would turn it down with oaths, though you would, of course, give polite excuses.

"Besides, no recommendations are needed. All managers are badly in want of plays and have to produce the most impossible ones quite often merely to save closing the theater. Of course, they won't produce a play by you if they can get one by Barrie, and would not even if you offered them a thousand pounds along with the MS. But Barrie and other popular playwrights cannot produce plays in such heaps as to have one ready whenever a manager has a failure on, and must get a new play or shut up shop. That is where the beginner gets his chance. The manager takes his play, hating him and hating it all the time, because he can't get anything more promising, and must keep going at all costs. So, unexpected as this may be to you, the absolute novice is in as strong a position as the champion when he is in any position at all. The manager never considers him until he can't do without him.

On Borrowing Judiciously.

"I am afraid your quotations"—they were quotations from Shaw—"will be fatal: they are just the sort of things that you mustn't lift because they are unmistakably recognizable. Thus you may lift everything that is valuable in my plays if you can handle what you lift; but if you touch a catchword—Tarleton's 'Read so and so,' or Eliza's 'Not bloody likely'—you are lost. The larceny would be spotted at rehearsal. If it escaped that it would be detected and exposed with a great cackling by the critics. And you would be marked down as a literary crook for ever and ever.

"You may take the character of Tarleton, which is public property, just as you may take the character of King Lear, and treat it in your own way. But what you must not borrow is the treatment. I have often thought of writing a new Hamlet, but I should not think of wasting my time by doing what Shakspeare has done already as well as it can be done.

"Think it over. Ever,

"G. BERNARD SHAW."

Advice on Play Writing.

Another time—I was still 10 years younger, I hasten to repeat—I sent him a play I had written, an astounding instance of that folly there seems no end to. And he actually took the trouble to correct it all through, making appropriate pencil marks (I daren't reproduce them!) and finally writing a long and amusing critique that would have done justice to his best dramatic criticisms.

The letter ran:

"This stunt of yours is not at all ill written: if you can find matter you will be able to find words and manner. But it has no more dramatic quality than an official report of the morning's proceedings at an aerodrome or a newspaper account of an accident. Some of it has no sense, for instance, your elaborate descriptions of your characters have no relevance to anything that follows; you have put them in as an amateur actor might put on a heavy mustache because he has seen his pet tragedian do it, without considering whether it was appropriate to his part or not. You have tried to write a piece on an incident, not on a character or set of characters. There is not a person in your play who might not just as well be any one of a dozen quite different sorts of men; and under such circumstances no real workman would dream of going to the trouble of specifying a character as elaborate and particular as Hamlet or Falstaff. If you ask an actor to take the trouble to study and make up such descriptions, and he asks you why, all you can say is: 'Oh, there are long descriptions like that in Shaw's plays.' He will reply, if he has brains enough, that though in Shaw's plays of character, lasting three hours in performance, there is a good deal of introductory matter of the sort an actor needs to help him to a general notion of the character and its make-up, yet in short plays, or in those characters in the long plays which could be played by 10 different actors with a 'straight' make-up (that is, without disguising themselves in any way), there is not a word more than is necessary. He does not bother the actress who plays the parlor maid in 'You Never Can Tell' with an analysis of her character and a sketch of her history that would possibly be some use to her if she were playing Cleopatra. Any father, any son, any young man would do for your play; but any linen-draper would certainly not do for Tarleton in 'Misalliance': that is why I have to give a description of the particular kind of man and of linen-draper Tarleton is, and why your equally lengthy and elaborate description of your man is in the literal sense of the word an impertinence.

A Page From the Greeks.

"The main failure, however, is the one I mentioned first: the absence of any dramatic quality, or indeed any artistic quality of any sort, in the incident you relate. An accident is not a plot, nor is the discovery that it was a false alarm a denouement. If you want to write plays about accidents—about sheer senseless strokes of fate falling on innocent men—you had better study Sophocles, who shows you Oedipus, Ajax, Philoctetes, etc., etc., staggering under such blows He gives you a great man and a great sorrow: it is the magnitude of the two that enthralls us. Take away this magnitude and present a clerk run over by a motorbus in Kensington, and you get nothing but a police report; nobody cares about the clerk or (consequently) about what happens to him, except his wife. To her it may be a Sophoclean tragedy, but to no one else. And it is not a tragedy even to her, but only a ridiculous anticlimax, if the policeman who announces the accident is followed by the clerk himself trying to explain that it was some other clerk who was run over.

"But you could get a very good farce out of the complications that might follow if a man supposed to be dead were actually alive. The mistake, however, would not be the farce, but only the peg on which the farce was hung. If you go in for the drama that is founded on mistakes, you may get as high as Othello (which has a farce plot; for it all hangs on a mistake about a handkerchief; indeed that is why it is fundamentally an unsatisfying play); but you must exercise considerable invention and ingenuity in following up the mistake; there is, I repeat, nothing in the mistake itself.

Source of Best Drama.

"The best drama does not deal either with accidents or mistakes, it takes life out of the utterly unintelligible chaos of unrelated happenings that you see in the street and rearrange it in its logical and therefore intelligible order. However, I have written about this at great length and cannot go over it all again in a letter.

"I have written this letter in scraps at odd moments and forget whether I have said what I wanted to say. I must stop now, whether or no. I am not sure of your address. Never write a letter without putting your address, the date and some indication of the person you are writing to. Otherwise you will die unwept, unhonored and unsung. Ever.

"G. B. S."

"P. S.—I now find that you did give me your address when you sent the play. I withdraw and apologize."

Perhaps the commonest accusation leveled against Shaw is that of cynicism, but, unless the word be used in a superficial sense, I fail to find much foundation for it. Shaw, it is true, has riddled society with criticism; and scarcely any character coming under his examination retains a snowlike whiteness; but cynicism in the philosophic sense means something very diferent from pleasure in satirizing.

How, I ask, can this epithet be applied to Shaw—a communist, a creative evolutionist, and a believer in the life force and the superman? Surely the essence of communism is the idea that the evil of the world greatly results from environment, and that, with a change of the latter, human nature would change also; while the doctrine of the life force and the superman is the religious conception of evolution as a purposive and spiritual process, and as such the most optimistic of all philosophies.

"The Harder I Work the More I Live."

"I want to be thoroughly used up when I die," Shaw once wrote, "for the harder I work the more I live. I rejoice in life for its own sake. Life is no brief candle for me. It is a sort of splendid torch, which I have got hold of for a moment; and I want to make it burn as brightly as possible before handing it on to future generations."

Nevertheless, as Shaw once stated in a letter on the subject to me, his attitude toward human destiny must seem pessimistic to those who do not share his religious belief.

"I have declared again and again," he wrote, "that man as he exists at present is incapable of solving the social problems raised by his own civilization, and is therefore doomed to the poverty and slavery against which Socialism vainly protests. This does not cause me to give up my social work in despair; on the contrary, I take the view that the worse a job is the more reason for trying to make the best of it. But my creative evolution means in practice that man can change himself to meet every vital need, and that however long the trials and frequent the failures may be, we can put up a soul as an athlete puts up a muscle.

"Thus to men who are themselves cynical, I am a pessimist; but to genuinely religious men I am an optimist, and even a fantastic and extravagant one. I have often said that a writer of fiction is either a religious force or a mere liar; and I certainly do not consider myself a mere liar."

In short, the common chatter about Shaw the cynic and paradoxmonger means simply that the chatterers are out of their depth, as indeed anyone can guess from the style of their remarks.

Jewish Company to Give Play.

The "Power of Youth" will be presented by Leon Blank and his company of Jewish actors at the Odeon on Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock. Among those in the cast are the following prominent actors in the Jewish theater: G. Shapiro, Tillie Rabinowitz, Dora Weisman and Pola Kleida. The play was written by Siegel.

to do, it would never be necessary for me to decide the other question. But in order to be perfectly free, I sent this notice, so that if I declined no one could say I had misled him into supposing that I was willing to receive his vote.

I felt sure that the party and the country were in so strong a position that they could easily nominate and elect some other candidate. The events have confirmed my judgment.

Not for Any Candidate.

In the primary campaign I was careful to make it known that I was not presenting any candidate. The friends of several of them no doubt represented that their candidate was satisfactory to me, which was true as far as it went.

I can conceive a situation in which a President might be warranted in exercising the influence of his offce in selecting his successor. That condition did not exist in the last primary. The party had plenty of material, which was available, and the candidate really should be the choice of the people themselves. This is especially so now that so many of the States have laws for the direct expression of the choice of the voters.

A President in office can do very much about the nomination of his successor, because of his influence with the convention, but the feeling that he had forced a choice would place the nominee under a heavy handicap.

When the convention assembles it is almost certain that it will look about to see what candidate has made the largest popular showing, and unless some peculiar disqualification develops, it will nominate him. That was what happened in the last convention, although no one had a majority when the convention assembled.

Opposition to Hoover.

A strong group of the party in and outside of the Senate made the mistake of undertaking to oppose Mr. Hoover with a large number of local candidates, which finally resulted in their not developing enough strength for any particular candidate to make a showing sufficient to impress the convention.

Although I did not intimate in any way that I would not accept the nomination, when I sent word to the heads of certain unpledged delegations not to vote for me, they naturally turned to Mr. Hoover, which brought about his nomination on the first ballot.

The presidential office differs from everything else. Much of it cannot be described; it can only be felt. After I had considered the reasons for my being a candidate on the one side and on the other, I could not say that any of them moved me with compelling force.

My election seemed assured. Nevertheless, I felt it was not best for the country that I should succeed myself. A new impulse is more likely to be beneficial.

It is therefore my privilege, after seeing my administration so strongly indorsed by the country, to retire voluntarily from the greatest experience that can come to mortal man. In that way I believe I can best serve the people who have honored me and the country which I love.

YOU ARE CORDIALLY INVITED TO VISIT THE LINCOLN

OF FINE CUSTOM-DESIGNED MOTOR CARS

HOTEL CHASE
LINDELL BOULEVARD AT FOREST PARK, ST. LOUIS
Engagement Extended to Include
MONDAY AND TUESDAY, MAY 6TH & 7TH

THE Lincolns which you will see at the Metropolitan Salon this year are well worth your time and attention. For these cars represent all that human skill has achieved in the art of fine motor car making. Neither care nor expense is spared in making the Lincoln as nearly perfect a motor car as it is possible to produce.

These Lincolns are more beautiful than ever. The new body types are the work of the foremost custom coachmakers. They are distinguished by a new smartness, a new fleetness and grace. The lamps, the radiators, the exterior trimmings are chromium plated—which means tarnish-proof. The radiator, incidentally, is deeper, the fenders have an exhilarating sweep of line. The whole effect is swifter, lower, more eager. . . .

And there are corresponding mechanical improvements. The new rubber engine mounting, for example, which dampens motor vibration; the new all-enclosed six-brake system which brings you smoothly and instantly to a stop. . . . These and other refinements have been introduced quietly, in accordance with Lincoln's policy of constant improvement. There are no yearly models. Lincoln believes in building motor cars so fine, so good to look upon, that they are always smart.

The Lincoln is precision-made from start to finish. More than 100 operations are kept within limits of 1/5000 of an inch—1/15 of a hair's breadth. The motor is so accurately constructed that you do not even have to break it in. You can drive a Lincoln at your normal speed the very first day you own it!

And the Lincoln is an exceptionally safe car. Its center of gravity is low, so that it clings to the road. It has shatter-proof glass throughout. And it is tremendously strong. Every part is tested and retested many times. Every Lincoln represents approximately 30,000 separate inspections.

But perhaps the best understanding of the Lincoln as a fine motor car is to be gained from an examination of the car itself. You are cordially invited by the Brodhead Company to the Lincoln Metropolitan Salon in Hotel Chase, Lindell Boulevard at Forest Park, St. Louis, from May 1st to 7th. The hours are from 1 P. M. to 11 P. M.

Among the interesting mechanical exhibits will be a copper-plated display chassis, a cutaway motor, a parts board, a rear axle assembly, an intake manifold assembly, a crankshaft and fan assembly, an aluminum body, and a set of the famous Johansson gauges used in the manufacture of Lincoln motor cars, which are accurate to four-millionths of an inch.

The body types will include the Two and Three Window Town Sedan, the Touring, the Seven-passenger Sedan, the Standard Limousine, the Willoughby Limousine, the Three-window Five-passenger Sedan, the Club Roadster, the Judkins Coupe, the Dietrich Convertible Coupe, and the LeBaron Cabriolet.

FINDS QUICK SERVICE TO AIRPORTS IS NEEDED

Amelia Earhart Quoted by St. Louisans After Air Tour of Nine Cities.

Airports within 15 minutes travel of downtown centers are the most pressing need of commercial aviation today in the opinion of Miss Amelia Earhart, trans-Atlantic flyer, according to St. Louisans who visited nine cities with her last week in the interests of the Third National Aeronautic meeting, to be held here May 27 to 30.

"At the present time," she is reported as saying, "airplane travel as a time-saver is hardly practical for trips of less than 500 miles because so many airports are located miles outside the cities."

Her remarks were made when the party took two hours and 30 minutes to drive to and from the Chicago municipal airport, after having flown from St. Louis to Chicago in exactly that time.

She Suggests Subways.

She suggested several possible remedies for the distant airport problem. One was to run a taxi service with small planes from the airports to small fields near the downtown district where larger planes would be unable to land. She believed that building tops might be utilized for this purpose. Evenutally, however, subways may have to be constructed from the airport to the city, she thought.

Miss Earhart was impressed with the number of letters she received daily from girls asking how to go about taking up aviation. She was equally impressed with the fact that many of the inquirers were 20 years old, or over, and said they should become air-minded during high school if they expected to play a great part in aviation. She suggested that courses in aeronautical subjects be made available for high school girls who did not care for home economics, typewriting and similar subjects.

Phil Love as Jester.

Phil Love, former flying partner of Col. Lindbergh, played jester to the St. Louisans who conducted the tour.

Love, the favorite victim of Col. Lindbergh's hoaxes at Lambert Field in the old air mail days, became bored an hour out of St. Louis. So he climbed into the cockpit and informed Stanley Smith, the co-pilot, that Maj. T. A. Peck, in command of the plane, wished to see him. Love took Smith's place beside Milton Girton, chief pilot, and refused to budge.

Arriving at Chicago, Love promptly disappeared. A newspaper photographer searched frantically for him and finally took the picture without the pilot. Then Love emerged from the baggage compartment. "I dont' like photographs," he said.

Pan of Water in Seat.

Relegated to a passenger's chair en route to Detroit, he connived with Maj. Peck to induce Victor J. Azbe, chairman of the committee, to rise from his chair. Love placed a pan of water on the seat and Azbe obligingly sat down.

Leaving Buffalo, the travelers agreed that they were tired of lamb and mint sauce by coincidence had been served them at all luncheons and dinners. At Love's suggestion, Maj. Peck wired to Pittsburg: "Please don't serve lamb. We sicken at the sight of a wool coat." The Pittsburg Engineering Society served chicken.

During the flight the travelers developed a new version of the obsolete "beaver" game, shouting "lamb" whenever they saw a sheep in the meadow below. Prizes were awarded. At Cleveland Love was decorated with a rabbit's foot, a miniature life preserver and a shoe by Chairman Azbe while moving pictures were taken.

The party traveled in the Gold Shell, a tri-motored Fokker owned by the Shell Petroleum Co. They flew a total of 1730 miles in 15 hours and 40 minutes, spending nearly as much time in automobiles traveling between airports and cities. They addressed meetings at Chicago, Detroit, Cleveland, Buffalo, Pittsburg, Cincinnati and Dayton. Excellent flying conditions prevailed.

SOME OF SCENES ON ONE-DAY JAUNT TO SULLIVAN, MO., AND MERAMEC STATE PARK

By ROBERT L. BRADLEY,
Automobile Editor.

MERAMEC STATE PARK, lying just east of Sullivan, Mo., on the winding Meramec River, is only two hours by motor from St. Louis, but it would take at least a week to explore the many caves that honeycomb the 7000 acres. Sullivan, 62 miles from St. Louis on United States Highway No. 66—smoothly paved all the way except for a stretch west of Maplewood—is a village of about 2700 population. Two hotels supply limited over-night accommodations and excellent food.

The west half of the park is traversed by a series of dirt roads which, though passable, are none too good when wet; the east half is used as a game refuge and automobile traffic is not encouraged.

Of the 13 caves, the largest is Bear Cave. In 1868 Gov. Fletcher gave his inaugural ball in the next biggest, Fisher's Cave. Guests used to the polished ballroom floors of Jefferson City and to the luxuries of previous inaugural affairs were somewhat put to it to dance on the rocky floor of the huge natural chamber and at the same time dodge the spring water that drips perpetually from cracks in the ceiling.

Farmers in the vicinity of Sullivan formerly used Sheep Cave, as the name suggests, as a corral for their flocks, but this practice has long since been discontinued. Bits of Indian pottery, so abundant in years' past, are still occasionally found.

A number of mushroom beds have been laid out in Mushroom Cave, privately leased from the State. In the damp, hot-house atmosphere of the cave, the mushrooms spring up over night.

Mushroom Cave and Onyx Cave are the most picturesque, with walls and ceilings covered with stalactites from whose constant liquid dripping have sprung thousands of queer shaped stalagmites. Walker Cave, small but pretty, and Wildcat Cave, once used as a den by these animals, are popular with park visitors.

The State furnishes a supply of firewood at several points for campers. Picnic tables and benches are set up and fresh, cold drinking water is obtainable from nearby spring-pumps.

A "registry" located a few hundred feet inside the park entrance furnishes cards that each group of visitors is asked to fill out, giving names, addresses and make of car. The latter information is sought in order to determine the class of people who go to the park. The theory is that the higher priced the machine, the better the class of people.

State officials say that representative persons make the park their week-end habitat.

For those statistically inclined, it might be noted that the refuge across the river teems with wild life—300 pheasants, 100 turkeys, 62 deer and a larger number of quail. Efforts are made to keep the public out of the refuge as much as possible, so that the game will not be frightened, and may pursue their way unmolested. Even "camera hunting" is discouraged.

About 17 miles southwest of Sullivan, on the Leasburg cutoff from Highway No. 66, is Onandago Cave, one of the largest in that vicinity. The first 1000 yards from the entrance must be made by boat, as the water is too high for wading. Highway 66 is taken to a point just below Leasburg, where a conspicuous sign at the left of the road marks the beginning of the county road.

In Meramec Park the natural scenery has been enhanced by construction of rustic foot bridges. A log archway frames the park entrance, on which is lettered the information that the park is entirely maintained with funds of the State Game and Fish Department, obtained from sale of hunting and fishing licenses. Bass and goggle-eyed perch abound in the stream.

For a two-hour hike, Mushroom Cave is ideal. It might be mentioned that hip boots, or at least knee boots, should be worn, as the ground is very muddy and ordinary high shoes are not high enough. Part of the way, the ceiling is so low that a half crouching position must be maintained, with one eye on the footing and another on the protuberations from the roof. The stalactites were found to be harder than the human head!

A gasoline or carbide lamp should be taken, as candles blow out too easily. If the hiker is a camera enthusiast, he will have a chance to experiment with flashlights. Tripods are essential for this kind of picture-taking.

To a geologist, the peculiar rock formations would tell a graphic story. The layman is impressed with the various shapes the rocks have assumed through the ages and with the grotesque contrasts. For instance, a strip of onyx may be polished to a high finish, by the constant beat of a trickle of water, while the section next to it may still be dull and lifeless, covered with ugly, ghostly appearing growths.

The "cathedral" room in Mushroom Cave is particularly beautiful, with its onyx spires tapering to the ceiling and its altar-like rock formations.

As with most one-day trips, that to Sullivan and Meramec State Park should be commenced early in the morning, to allow sufficient time in which to enjoy things once the destination is reached.

Too rapid travel brings weariness even before the peak of the day. Campers, of course, might easily motor to the park Saturday afternoons and have camp pitched well before nightfall.

Travel Bureau Has Many Maps For Motorists

THE Post-Dispatch Resort and Travel Bureau is able to supply motorists with road information, through a variety of maps and from other sources. A 50-page auto trails atlas sells for 50 cents and 60 cents, mailed.

Maps of St. Louis and vicinity sell for 20 cents at the Post-Dispatch and 24 cents, mailed. Individual State maps cost 10 and 12 cents, City guides are priced at 25 and 30 cents, while a map of the St. Louis street system sells for 40 and 45 cents.

45 DRIVERS ENTERED FOR 500-MILE RACE

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., May 4.—Management of the Speedway Association announces that 45 cars were entered for the 1929 500-mile racing classic on May 30 at midnight last Tuesday, when the entry lists closed. This is more than have been entered since the war.

There is a slight possibility that one or two more machines may be entered, this being contingent on whether mailed filing notices bear a postmark previous to the closing time.

Late among the entries was an English race car, the Thompson Valve Special, which will be driven by a Frenchman, Jules Moriceau, making the third foreigner to nominate himself for the international classic.

There will be six Duesenbergs of Indianapolis origin, three composing a factory entry and the remainder individual entries, including one by Tommy Milton, only two-time winner of the Indianapolis race, who has not yet named a driver, but who indicates that he will not come from retirement. Milton is preparing a Detroit Special, which Cliff Durant, multi-millionaire patron of the speed sport, will pilot in the coming classic.

Louis Chiron, European champion, a Frenchman who will pilot a French de Lage; Gianfranco Comotti, an Italian who will be at the wheel of a French Talbot and Jules Moriceau, a Frenchman who will drive an English car, form the

ROADS GOOD IN MISSOURI AND ILLINOIS

Improved roads of Missouri and Illinois are in generally good condition, it is reported by the Automobile Club of Missouri. Dirt roads, however, are in poor condition because of the recent rain and the unprecedented May snow. Gravel highways maintained by the State are smooth.

Only a few detours on the major roads radiating from St. Louis are in use at present and these are readily passable. One of them is in East St. Louis and vicinity because of high water over U. S. Highway No. 40.

Many St. Louis club women are planning to drive to Hannibal, Mo., on U. S. Highway No. 61 this week for a convention of the Missouri Federation of Women's Clubs. This route is in good condition and the drive of about 120 miles will require about four hours. The gravel in Lincoln County on this road is in acceptable repair and the short stretches of unpaved road on either side of Bowling Green are all right. Between Canton, Mo., which is north of Hannibal, and Keokuk, Ia., No. 61 is closed because of high water, and the State has provided a 20-mile dirt detour which is hard to negotiate. Through traffic is advised to circle through Illinois.

South of St. Louis No. 61 was blocked on Thursday by poles blown down in a storm but it has been reopened. The narrow, graveled detour between Jackson and Cape Girardeau, Mo., is in fair condition but the 11-mile dirt detour

Ford Leads Chevrolet in April Auto Production

Factory Reports Indicate Record Output — Cadillac Shipments Grow—Hudson-Essex Making 1900 Cars Daily—Chrysler Sets New Mark.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

DETROIT, Mich., May 4.—With no slackening in production of motor cars at the various plants in the Detroit district and throughout the United States, reports from a majority of the factories indicate that a new monthly output record was made in April, although complete figures are not yet available.

In April Ford produced approximately 8100 cars a day, exceeding any previous monthly figure for Model A cars. Next came Chevrolet, which produced more than 150,000 machines in April, the 16 plants of the company turning out units at the rate of 6500 a day.

Graham-Paige is on a basis of 500 cars a day, the output last month being 11,550 cars for a total thus far in 1929 of 36,834. The factory reported today it has orders on hand for 13,500 cars for May delivery. It has added 220 new dealers in the last 30 days.

Shipments of Cadillac and La Salle cars totaled 4206, an increase of more than 15 per cent over the shipments made in April, 1928. Total shipments for the first four months this year were 14,119. This was considerably larger than the first four months last year.

Hudson-Essex is producing cars at the rate of 1900 a day, which means that a new car is coming off the assembly line every 16 seconds.

Figures on Dodge, De Soto, Chrysler and other cars made in Detroit are not available, but reliable information has been received to the effect that new records will be set up.

Reo Motor Car Co. of Lansing, Mich, reports shipment of 5716 cars in April, almost equally divided between pleasure cars and "speed wagons." This compares with 5277 last April.

Buick, at Flint, Mich., is expected to announce excellent figures for April, as are Oldsmobile and Durant at Lansing and Oakland-Pontiac at Pontiac.

Buick is getting ready to announce its new car, the Marquette, which, it is reported, will be in a lower price class than the Buick, and which is said to be a fine performing automobile.

Automobile experts in this city are watching the present month closely. They are of the opinion that this month will be an index of just what may be expected in the motor car business for the balance of the year. If the public continues to buy at the high rate that it did during January, February, March and April it will mean that this demand will undoubtedly continue throughout the year.

Reports reaching here are to the effect that it will be impossible for the country to absorb 6,000,000 or 7,000,000 cars. This is readily admitted. However, it is possible that the country will absorb better than 5,000,000 cars.

More ancient cars will be scrapped during 1929 than was the case in 1928, because surveys show that people were holding their old automobiles. These cars must be disposed of this year, as it will

Lincoln Salon A Noteworthy Contribution

Splendid Showing of Custom Built Cars and Precision Tools at Hotel Chase.

By THE AUTOMOBILE EDITOR.

Fifteen Lincoln custom-built automobiles and Ford town car, in a salon showing at the Chase Hotel last wee' were viewed by a large number of persons who look for the best of material, workmanship, looks and comfort in their motor cars.

Originally scheduled to close last night, the salon will be continued through Tuesday evening.

It was undoubtedly one of the most pretentious displays of its kind St. Louis has seen for a long time. Factory representatives who travel with the exhibit around the country stated their net value was about $250,000. Sets of Johansson precision gauges, mostly used in fashioning factory gauges for Lincoln, but one of which, in the Bureau of Standards at Washington, is used to check all other gauges, are fabulously valuable.

John Deaton of the Lincoln division of the Ford Motor Co., under whose auspices the salon was held, asserted the master set alone is insured at $25,000 and would take a year and a half of Johansson's time—at $100,000 a year — to duplicate.

A sedan by Willoughy was similar to the one which formerly carried President Coolidge and which President Hoover now phones for when he desires to motor. It was not, however, the highest priced. The LeBaron cabriolet retails at $7542, St. Louis. The lower body is in nimbus gray, the upper in blue rock gray, with serapi gray trimming. Upholstery is by Laidlaw.

The "cheapest" machine was a sport phaeton by Locke, priced at $4767, St. Louis. In color it was sea fog gray and ocean blue, with painted wire wheels and mirrorscopes.

It is related that Ford imported a cloth weaving machine from England along with its operator to make upholstery for Lincolns.

Only five of the Brunn convertible coupes have been built. One was shown. Colored in moraine and cottage brown, the striping was pastel.

The comparitively lowly Ford town car, a trifle awed by the splendor of its companions, was inconspicuously located. The chauffeur's seat was set off from the rear compartment. The car was painted a mulberry maroon and bore trunk rack and fender wells just like its grownup cousins.

Features of some of the Lincolns were the moveable front seats, trick emergency seats that snap back out of the front seat frame at a touch, the convertible arrangements that changed a fully inclosed "high hat" vehicle into a trig, sport car open all around, and the beautiful color combinations.

The machines should be seen to be appreciated fully. Brodhead Co., 3333 Washington boulevard, and the Ford factory branch at Sarah street and Laclede avenue, have many custom models at their showrooms.

To return to the gauges, they were built by C. E. Johansson who for 32 years worked with steel, 15 of which were spent tinkering with an inch-long steel block. At present, Johansson is in Sweden taking a rest. Workmen must have 15 years' experience under him before they are trusted to work on the more precise gauging tools, it is said.

Thickness of the master set varies one-millionth part of an inch, which is 3000ths of the thickness of a human hair. Giving a hair test, Deaton plucked one of his own and placed it in a gauge into which he first inserted one steel block and then another. The block that was three-one thousandths of an inch thicker than the other had to be forced in, breaking the hair in half, while the other fitted easily.

With the air of one who says, "There is nothing up my sleeves, gentlemen," Deaton put the gauges through their paces. A one-inch block fitted snugly into a gauge, being held tightly, but the weight of another which was five-one thousandths inch thinner, caused it to fall out.

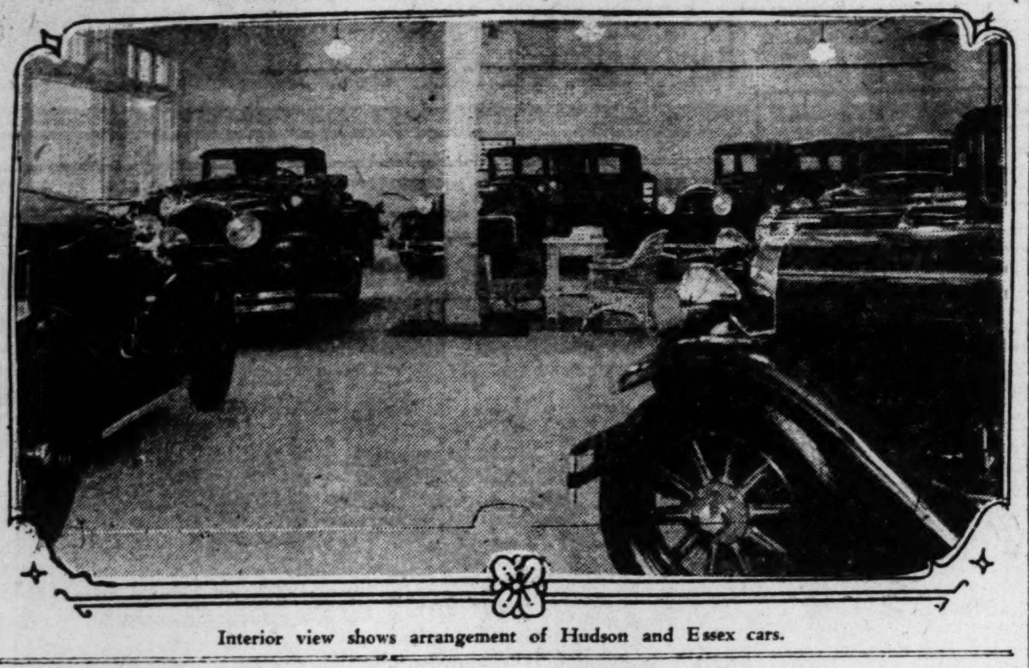
Temperature in which the set is kept is maintained at 68 degrees Fahrenheit. Otherwise, the polished, specially treated steel would expand and contract and, therefore, vary in thickness, which, to Lincoln builders, apparently would border on the catastrophic.

Deaton placed two steel blocks together. They rested so tightly against each other that it would have taken 220 pounds of pressure to pull them straight apart, he said.

The salon included an open motor in operation, a chassis six years old, to which have been added every improvement made since (parts are interchangeable) and a body which was neither painted nor finished. The latter revealed the bronze castings and uprights, the 14-gauge aluminum (referring to thickness) and the sturdy structure. More than 700 hand-set screws hold the parts of one body together.

Fittings inside were of chromium-plated German silver.

Hudson-Frampton Opens New Display and Sales Rooms



Interior view shows arrangement of Hudson and Essex cars.

Truck Sales Up

Net sales of Yellow Truck and Coach Manufacturing Co. for the quarter ended March 31, 1929, were $12,921,999. Net profit before provision for depreciation was $349,866 and after provision for depreciation was $58,852.

Delmar-Taylor Hudson Branch Is Remodeled

New and Used Cars Are Shown — Sliding Front Section a Feature.

A new showroom and sales office has been opened by the Hudson-Frampton Motor Car Co. at its branch quarters, 4525-39 Delmar boulevard, which have been enlarged and remodeled, R. C. Frampton, president, announces.

The quarters now occupy frontage of 125 feet in front of the company's service station near Taylor avenue. Full plate glass windows reaching from transom sills to the level of the new tarraza floor. The floor space extends back 45 feet from the sidewalk.

An electrically operated 25-foot store front may be lifted and lowered for passage of cars or for open displays in mild weather. The entire center section of the building is exposed when the sliding section is raised.

The moveable section is the first to be installed in St. Louis and perhaps in the entire country, according to Frampton, and may be widely copied.

Both new and used cars will be featured in the new showrooms, under personal direction of F. J. Prendergast, retail sales manager. W. H. Bryant will supervise used car activities at this location.

Try to Do Without It.

Just how important an adjunct to safety is the horn is never clear until one tries to drive through traffic with the warning device out of commission. Its usual maladies are easily prevented.

Hupmobile Century Six Body Is Shown

The exhibition Hupmobile which is being displayed at all dealer points in Missouri and Illinois by the Weber Implement and Automobile Co., distributer. James A. Flynn, in charge of the exhibition, is shown.

An unusual educational campaign is being conducted by the Weber Implement and Automobile Co., Hupmobile distributors in the St. Louis district. In each dealer's showrooms throughout Missouri and Illinois a Hupmobile Century six chassis equipped with a cutaway body, revealing construction details, is being exhibited.

The left side of the body has not been finished, exposing the raw metal, while the right side is completely finished and the back shows each progressive stage in applying the lacquer finish from the metal to the final polish.

Hupmobile bodies are of the steel and wood composite construction and all wood parts are of hard maple or oak, well seasoned. All joints are well mortised and screwed together and such members as are under heavy strains are joined together so that the grain of the woods are placed in opposition so that unusual strength is obtained.

No lapped metal joints are used in the body shell, all sheets being joined by welding, which not only adds strength, but keeps out water and at the same time produces a more beautiful job.

This car to date has been displayed at Alton, Wood River, East St. Louis, Edwardsville, Charleston, Mattoon, Effingham, Robinson and Marshall, and at present is being shown at the opening of the Cole County Motor Co.'s new quarters in Jefferson City.

Attracting attention in every place it has been placed on view, more than 5000 persons are estimated to have inspected it.

The exhibit is in charge of James A. Flynn, connected with the Weber company for more than 20 years.

Keep Pump in Place.

There are many "free air" signs but numerous as they are the wise motorist will not leave the hand pump at home on the long trip.

At St. Louis Air Fields

IT NOW appears that work on the major improvements at Lambert-St. Louis Field will not start until well into the summer, although authority for the work has been obtained from the Board of Aldermen and the money is available.

The building of runways and the diversion or covering of Cold Water Creek, which bisects the field, should be started as soon as possible if the resultant facilities are to be available during the period of extensive flying this summer. The necessity of harnessing Cold Water Creek, a stream with the proclivities of the River des Peres, was demonstrated following the rain and snow storm last Thursday. The creek overflowed onto the flying field to a width of several hundred feet and on receding left an area of marsh land. A landing in the marshy section would undoubtedly result in a spill.

The most important work so far accomplished by the city has been the installation of a temporary lighting system for night landings. A clean-up program has been carried on, including the removal of trees that are flying hazards, and old and unsightly structures. No effort has been made to get the more important work started and no equipment is on hand for leveling and filling rough places in the landing area, an important matter in the absence of runways.

"Louie's Place" to Be Razed.

The clean-up program at Lambert Field will claim a landmark known to many famous pilots. "Louie's Place," the airport lunchroom, where Col. Lindbergh ate his meals when employed here, is to be wrecked. Louie de Hatre, the proprietor, will move to more pretentious quarters very shortly.

"He's down at Louie's." This answer, made in response to queries by persons seeking attaches of the field, has long been familiar at the airport. Many men who have accomplished big things in aviation have sat through a rainy afternoon at Louie's, "talking shop."

In the near future, "Louie's" will occupy part of the National Guard clubhouse, which is being moved from its present location to a point behind the building line of hangars on the west side of the field. Louie says he is going in for white-topped tables, wall paper and other refinements demanded by progress.

6700 Pounds of Mail in April.

St. Louis-Chicago air mail planes carried 6700 pounds of mail during April. Pilots flew 15,630 miles over the route during the month.

Omaha Line in Operation.

The new St. Louis-Kansas City-Omaha mail and passenger line got under way with a flourish Wednesday. The line connects with the transcontinental route at Omaha, and St. Louis mail is scheduled to arrive on the Pacific Coast 23 hours after the take-off here. The pilots on the route, Charles Roush, Walter Hunter and Francis Rust, have been fighting bad weather from the start, but are getting through.

Familiar Faces Gone.

The physical changes at Lambert-St. Louis Field have been accompanied recently by the passing of several familiar figures. "Scotty," who had been field manager since 1923, left last week for the Pacific Coast, where he is to become transport pilot for a passenger concern; "Boots" Dempsey, whose brightly painted automobiles, unique scarf pins and daring stunts in the air made him an institution, has taken charge of a private airport at Champaign, Ill.; "Chris" Christopher and Herb Koch, veteran office employes of the Robertson Aircraft Corporation, have also departed for other positions. Other familiar faces are missing, or are seen infrequently. "Boots" Dempsey's departure resulted from a decision by Oscar Johnson Jr., wealthy flying enthusiast who employed "Boots" as his personal pilot, to sell his ship. Johnson is in New York studying music.

Kutterer Goes to Oklahoma.

Illustrating the opportunities available in commercial aviation is the case of Ray Kutterer, 6163 Victoria avenue, a graduate of the Robertson Flying School, who departed last week for Oklahoma City, where he will manage the Braniff Flying School. Kutterer, following his graduation, became an instructor in the Robertson school. The Braniff institution is a subsidiary of the Universal Aviation Corporation, with which the Robertson school is also affiliated.

Students From 13 Countries.

With the enrollment of a student from Colombia, South America, last week, Parks Air College now has students from 13 foregin countries and possessions, including China, Spain and Russia.

New Offices Opened.

Transcontinental Air Transport and Curtiss Flying Service have opened a suite of offices on the eleventh floor, Syndicate Trust Building. Carl Bates is local representative for Curtiss Flying Service. Transcontinental forces here are in charge of Joseph V. Magee.

Phil Love Speaks at Kansas City.

Phil Love flew to Kansas City Wednesday to address a meeting of civic organizations on airports.

To Exhibit Airplanes.

Eleven airplane manufacturers so far have arranged to have exhibits at the Third National Aeronautic Meeting, to be held here the latter part of the month. More than 50 aircraft companies will be represented at the exhibition, it is expected.

Plane in Hotel Lobby.

Sam Lambert has a Monocoupe on display in the lobby of Hotel Chase to stimulate interest in the Aircraft Show, which will be held at the Coliseum the week of the aeronautic meeting.

On Way Home From China.

J. D. Livingston and Ralph Damon, officers of the Curtiss-Robertson Aircraft Co., were in New York last week for a conference of Curtiss Co. officials. Maj. William B. Robertson, president of the Curtiss-Robertson Co., is on his way home from China and is scheduled to reach St. Louis about May 20.

Lady Heath Arrives by Train.

Lady Mary Heath, English aviatrix, arrived here by train Wednesday after her plane was forced down by a storm at Effingham, Ill. She is on a business tour, demonstrating a light aircraft engine, which she has used on long-distance flights.

New Hangar Started.

Work on the first of three new hangars for the Von Hoffman Aircraft Co. at Lambert Field has started and the sites for the two other hangars have been staked

New Jorb for R. J. Rentz.

R. J. Rentz of Minneapolis, a World War flyer, has been made assistant to "Bud" Gurney in the operations department of the Universal Aviation Corporation. Rentz, a Captain in the Minnesota National Guard, has flown more than 3000 hours and was a pilot on the Chicago-Minneapolis passenger route until the line was discontinued several weeks ago.

Decorated Ship for Elks.

Parks Air College will furnish the convoy plane used by the Elks in the organization's cross-country trip to the national convention at Los Angeles.

A Parks P-2 biplane, painted in the Elks' colors, will be used. It will be piloted by Edgar Schmidt, a Parks Air College instructor, who will leave New York May 14 and will visit 60 cities before reaching Los Angeles at the opening of the convention July 8.

L. L. Lindenberg, brother of Elmer indenberg, instructor at the Von Hoffmann Flying School, received his limited commercial license last week. Elmer plans to make a transport pilot out of his brother.

Fast Night Flight.

Julius Johannpeter, former St. Louis-Chicago mail pilot, now stationed at Cleveland, made a fast night flight with two business men from Chicago to New York last week. Johannpeter made the trip in 6 hours and 40 minutes.

"Gold Shell" to Tour Texas.

Officials of the Shell Petroleum Co., headed by Dr. W. Van Holst Pellekaan, vice president, will leave Lambert Field this week in the compainy's tri-motored plane, the "Gold Shell," for a tour of the Texas and Oklahoma oil fields. Milt Girton is pilot of the "Gold Shell."

Ethiopia Wants a Plane.

The Mahoney-Ryan Co. recently received an inquiry for a Ryan brougham from the Government of Ethiopia.

Junior C. of C. Visits Field.

Sixty members of the Junior Chamber of Commerce were guests of the Universal Aviation Corporation during the week. They were taken on a tour of the various plants at the field and then took a ride in a tri-motored Ford.

Universal Buys a Fokker.

A Fokker F-10 transport has been delivered nere to the Universal Aviation Corporation. The plane was used to take representatives of the Chamber of Commerce Air Board to Washington last Monday and probably will be placed in service on the projected St. Louis-Cleveland passenger line.

Carthage Airport Opened.

Members of the Thirty-fifth Division Air Service gave an air show at Carthage, Mo., last Sunday in connection with the opening of an airport there. A parachute jump by an enlisted man of the unit was included in the program.

New Jobs for Flyers.

A. D. Niemeyer, chief instructor at the Robertson Flying School, has been appointed manager of the Porterfield Flying School at Kansas City. The Porterfield School was recently purchased by the Unfversal Aviation Corporation. W. A. Hallgren, a war time member of the British Royal Flying Corps, has been added to the Universal staff of pilots. He will be employed on one of the passenger lines.

Seeks Zoning Law for Airports.

The East St. Louis Aeronautics Commission is seeking to have airports designated in zoning laws in Illinois. The purpose is to protect airports from encroachment by industrial plants.

Student Visits Home by Air.

Harold Lau, a student of the Von Hoffmann Flying School, flew to his home at Owaneco, Ill., and returned Wednesday. The round trip is 250 miles.

Export Representative Chosen.

The Mahoney-Ryan Aircraft Co. announced that Steel, Inc., of Los Angeles has been appointed export representative for Ryan broughams, except in China, Mexico and Canada. Steel, Inc., has agreed to handle 25 ships this year.

Record in Air for School.

Robertson Flying School students were in the air 47 hours one day last week, a record for the school to date.

Brewster Back From East.

William Brewster, an instructor for the Von Hoffmann Flying School, returned during the week from a flight to New York.

Timer Setting Hint.

In resetting the timer, remember moving it against the direction of normal rotation advances the spark, while shifting it the other way has the opposite effect. It is likely to be confusing.

Pilot Now in China

Earl F. Baskey, who used to pilot a mail plane out of St. Louis, is now selling planes for the Mahoney-Ryan Aircraft Corporation. At his right is Sen Chang Wei, operations manager of the Wahan Aviation Association of China.

Girl Flyer Used Champion Spark Plugs in Plane

When Miss Elinor Smith brought her Bellanca plane to earth at Roosevelt field April 24, she not only wrote a new chapter into the spectacular history of women aviators but she added still another to the long list of triumphs already to the credit of Champion spark plugs, officials of the Champion Spark Plug Co. point out.

Long Island's 17-year-old "flying flapper" recaptured for the East the women's solo endurance flight record by staying 26 hours, 21 minutes and 32 seconds in the air, and beating by 4 hours, 18 minutes and 20 seconds the time made earlier this year by Louise McPhetridge of California, who in turn had taken from Bobbie Trout, Golden State aviatrix, the laurels first won by Viola Gentry, Long Island's flying cashier. All these first won by Viola Gentry. Long with Champion spark plugs. Miss Smith lost no time after her landing on Wednesday in wiring her appreciation of the part Champions played in the feat she had just performed. Her telegram read:

"Broke world's women's solo endurance flight. In air 26 hours, 21 minutes, 32 seconds. Average eight gallons of gas used hourly. Champion spark plugs used and performed perfectly. Not least sign of trouble, not even a miss. Elinor Smith."

The recent record flights by women have given unusual pleasure to the makers of Champion spark plugs.

"For the last five years, Champions have been making records in cars, boats and planes driven by men, and we have become well accustomed to the thrill of victory on land and water and in the air, but nothing in the long series of triumphs we have scored has given us more gratification than we feel in the contribution our product is making to feminine conquest of the art of flight," said R. A. Stranahan, president of the Champion Spark Plug Co., on receipt of Miss Smith's telegram. "It gives a feeling of real pleasure to find that Champion spark plugs, so long the choice of masculine leaders in every field of automotive effort, are also unanimously favored by the plucky women who are challenging the supremacy of their male rivals in aviation."

Marquette Is Name of Buick Built Machine

The new Buick-built six, announced three weeks ago, will be named the Marquette, it is announced by E. T. Strong, president and general manager of the Buick Motor Co.

It will have the tremendous production and sales facilities of that organization at its command, a distinct advantage both to the factory and the purchaser. Twenty-five years of experience has placed Buick in a position to manufacture a car of unusual appeal in the lower-priced field, according to Strong.

Thousands of craftsmen were assigned the task of producing the Marquette. In addition, the facilities of the research laboratories and proving grounds of General Motors have been utilized, as well as the Fisher Body Corporation.

The intricacies of automotive engineering were given careful study in developing its mechanical parts at both the General Motors research laboratories and in the Buick engineering division. The cars, in various stages of progress, were put through thousands and thousands of miles of tests at the General Motors proving grounds in order that a proven product should be offered.

Distribution of the new Marquette through the sales channels already established by Buick makes it unnecessary to pioneer in the matter of delivering the new product to purchasers.

Airplane Show Is Assured of Many Exhibits

Honorary Committee Includes Prominent St. Louis Business Men.

Virtually every phase of business professional and industrial activity is represented in the group of men selected for the Honorary Committee for the First Annual St. Louis Aircraft Show, to be held May 25 to June 1, at the New Coliseum, under auspices of Jackson Johnson Jr. Post, American Legion.

The show, to be held during St. Louis Aviation Week, and ot run concurrently with the National Aeronautic Conference of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers and the Gardner Cup races, is expected to draw thousands of visitors from the Middle West.

The show committee is headed by Bradford Shinkle, vice president and treasurer of the Johnson-Stevens & Shinkle Snoe Co., who is a member of the legon post which is sponsoring the show. Among those who have consented to serve on the committee are:

Mayor Victor J. Miller, Harry L. Salisbury, Director of Public Safety; Joseph Pulitzer, publisher of the Post-Dispatch; Arthur A. Blumeyer, president of the Industrial Savings Trust Co.; Frederick D. Gardner, former Governor of Missouri; Harry Scullin, president, Scullin Steel Co.; George B. Logan; Mark C. Steinberg, of Mark C. Steinberg & Co.; J. E. Taussig, president, Wabash Railroad; J. Sheppard Smith, president, Mississippi Valley Trust Co.; Carl G. Stifel, president, J. H. Gundlach & Co., realtors; E. Lansing Ray president, Globe-Democrat; Lon O Hocker; James L. Ford Jr., president, Franklin-American Trust Co.; F. C. Rand, president, International Shoe Co.; B. F. Edwards, president, The National City Bank of St. Louis; the Rev. John W. MacIvor, pastor, Second Presbyterian Church; Roy F. Britton, president, Automobile Club of Missouri; Walter W. Smith, president, First National Bank; J. M. Lashly of Holland, Lashly & Donnell, attorneys; Aaron Waldheim, May-Stern Co.; Julius W. Reinholdt, president Boatmen's National Bank; Louis H Egan, president Union Electric Light & Power Co.

August A. Busch of Anheuser-Busch, Inc.; Richard T. Shelton, E. J. Spencer, William Sacks, G. A. Buder of Buder & Buder; Fergus O'Connor, president Commander's Conference, American Legion; George L. Dyer, Columbus National Life Insurance Co., Col. W. A. Meletio, president Hotel Chase Co.

Many of the leading aeronautical concerns of the United States will display airplanes and airplane accessories and services. Virtually all of the floor space has been reserved for airplanes and the greater part of the booths also has been reserved

Lady Mary Heath, British womay flyer, was one of the first of the noted pilots who expect to attend the show to stop in at the aircraft show headquarters in the Chase Hotel and wish the show "all the success in the world." Lady Heath had a narrow escape with her life several days ago when her plane was forced down in Indiana. She came to St. Louis Wednesday evening and plans to leave shortly for New York.

If the limit on the car's speed when new is 20 miles an hour in high gear, it never should be more than 15 in second.

Story of Parks Airport Growth One of Romance

Thirteen-Month Transition From Bare Pasture to Site of $720,000 Enterprise Due to Initiative of Oliver L. Parks, 29.

THIRTEEN months ago, Cahokia's low and level fields were covered with crops and pasture grasses. Although the bustling smoke of St. Louis and East St. Louis darkened its north and northwest horizons, the tiny town, 65 years older than St. Louis was sleepily aloof in the dignity of its 230 years.

Now the crops and the pasture grasses are gone. And from a nucleus of two airplanes and numerous debts, has risen an aviation enterprise with physical assets of $720,000, with 12 buildings erected and others under construction or proposed. With the largest civilian flying schools in the United States; with a 100-acre flying field 15 minutes drive from downtown St Louis on Illinois Highway No. 3.

"Parks Airport" is the generic name of the enterprise, which consists of the school and an airplane manufacturing concern just getting into production on four aircraft models, two of them two-passenger, open cockpit biplanes, one a four-passenger cabin monoplane, and the other, a six-passenger cabin job. Models of each were exhibited at the recent Detroit Aircraft Show.

Just around the corner from the old log church sheltered under huge trees, and with marks of the high waters that drove the early French settlers to higher ground still showing on its rough walls, is the first of a string of buildings, erected within the past year and already inadequate for the mushroom growth of this enterprise in the newest phase of transportation.

Builds Airport

OLIVER L. PARKS.

Oliver L. Parks, 29-year-old vice-president and general manager of the enterprise is one of the two men responsible for the 12-months' growth. The other is his brother-in-law, Harry P. Mammen, president. Mammen formerly was salesmanager of an automobile manufacturing concern and owns an automobile acceptance corporation in St. Louis.

Parks, a former Marine, and after the war, an automobile salesman and amateur aviator, went into flying as a business, located at Lambert-St. Louis Field, and then determined to move to Cahokia, where his would be the only aviation industry. Fellow aviators at Lambert ridiculed the possibility of success across the river, but Parks replied, "I'll bet I have 100 students inside of a year." When the year ended, he had 600 students and was building a huge dormitory for them. Of the number, 260 were enrolled in the mechanics' school and the remainder were taking the flying course. There were 54 instructors.

"This," said E. Roy Alexander, advertising manager of the company, "is the mechanics' school." He opened a door to a low, hangar-like building, and stepped in among a dozen be-goggled men with welding torches. "That biplane is one they bought knocked down and built in the school for instruction on actual airplane work," he continued.

"That man with the sewing machine is stitching wing fabric. Here's an engine instructor and these are engines which the students have torn down and which they will rebuild as part of their training. Here's the Fairchild Caminez engine, the one that runs without a crankshaft. There's a Hisso. That's an OX15, and that's a Liberty, torn down."

He strode quickly across a graveled driveway and led the way to another building where the hum of voices was substituted for the roar of torches and the clatter of tools in the mechanics' school. "Classrooms of the flying school," he explained. "Some of the rooms are empty because some of the classes are in the air.

"Incidentally, the men who teach the theory and the essentials of flying, do no flying themselves, although they are pilots. They instruct classes on the ground and nothing else. Flying instructors teach flying and that's all."

The factory is the largest building of all. At one end more than 100 motors are stored, waiting installation in finished aircraft. Two big monoplanes were being overhauled for inspection following their trip to the show in Detroit. The wings are orange, a color being almost universally adopted because of its long-range visibility. The fuselages are black, for contrast. A score or so of workmen were busy along the assembly line, bracing wings, installing motors and performing the numerous other details of aircraft manufacture.

A new mechanics' school and administration building is under construction at one end of the line of buildings. Other buildings are planned. It is a big and busy enterprise, this airport which is a block away from the first brick house built west of the Alleghenies.

Battery Drain Great.

Motorists have been warned for many years not to keep standing on the starter when the engine refuses to start. Some ignore the advice, probably because they do not realize just how severe is the drain on the battery. As a matter of engineering record, the starter uses current at a rate about 20 or 30 times as great as the generator is capable of putting it back. Rather large figures!

be impossible to keep them on the road.

Announcement is made of increased prices of model 612 Graham-Paige cars, which are on the 112-inch wheelbase. Increases are from $20 to $35, with exception of the two-door sedan and the cabriolet, priced the same. The prices follow: Four-door sedan, $955; two-passenger coupe, $955; rumble seat coupe, $1005; roadster, $970; phaeton, $970; two-door sedan, $895, and cabriolet, $1025.

Reports are prevalent to the effect that some 12-cylinder cars maye be expected in the near future. It is a well-known fact that companies have been experimenting with these cars, and these changes may be looked for, if not this year, early in 1930.

There has been some talk about automobiles equipped with Diesel engines. One large manufacturer, who is in a position to know, says that the public is not yet ready for such a car, although it could be made and would prove very efficient.

This manufacturer called attention to the fact that, if such a car was turned out, the entire filling station set-up would have to be changed throughout the country, as there are no convenient stations where motorists could obtain supplies of fuel for these engines They should be considered, however, for the future.

It is not unlikely that one of the largest manufacturers may announce a tractor, powered with a Diesel engine, some time this year.

New refinements are coming in automobile body interiors. Adjustable, or movable, front seats, which were introduced a year ago, are proving popular. New bindings around doors, refined fittings and many little niceties will be announced during the summer months.

Coronado Trail Is Opened for 1929 Touring

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CLIFTON, Ariz., May 4.—The Coronado Trail from Clifton to Springerville, Ariz., is now open for the 1929 touring and camping season.

The first car to pass over this scenic mountain road was driven from Clifton a week ago by the foreman of a State Maintenance crew. Since then considerable work has been done on the road, the few wet spots have dried up, and road machinery is at work along the entire route. The trail is in excellent condition and free from snow in the higher altitudes of the Blue Range, 9500 feet above sea level, and is good all the way to Springerville, 124 miles from Clifton, where the Trail joins the National Old Trails Highway.

Announcement of the opening of this trail comes 18 days earlier this year than last and 25 days earlier than two years ago.

Parking in Paris.

In order to prevent favoritism of shopkeepers in narrow streets in Paris, the curbstone privilege for the parking of cars is made reversible. Odd-numbered days bring parking on the side of the street marked by odd-numbered buildings. On even-numbered days the process reverses itself without friction. First-hand observation indicates that this method succeeds where less flexible ones cause perpetual turmoil.

AUBURN

The Most Oversold Car—and Why:

Thousands whose first choice is decisively for Auburn cars have had to buy "second choice" cars because they could not wait.

Yet, to date Auburn deliveries are nearly double those for the same period of last year.

More Auburn cars will be built and sold the first 6 months of this year than for the 12 months of 1928, which was our banner year.

What are the reasons that, in the entire automobile industry, Auburn alone enjoys this unique condition?

No product can be better than the policy of the company manufacturing it.

Today's demand for Auburn cars is the fruition of more than four years of accumulative proof that Auburn actually does build more advanced types of cars, and does build better cars, and does give greater value for less money.

But even that is not the keynote to Auburn's progressive policy. Mr. E. L. Cord says the customers of the factory are the ones most entitled to benefit from that factory's success. Auburn puts these benefits back into the merchandise itself. Auburn's growth is retroactive to Auburn buyers in the form of continually bigger values for less money.

When Auburn announced its present new series the prices were based on the increased sales volume anticipated. In other words, the savings expected at the end of 1929 were made available to the public at the very start of the year That is why Auburn is able to market a Straight Eight, 130" wheelbase for $1795, and a Straight Eight, 125" wheelbase for $1395, and a Six, 120" wheelbase for $995.

And all these Auburn models have: More horsepower than other engines per cubic inch piston displacement; the strongest frames under any automobiles; Bijur chassis lubrication; cam and lever type steering; lower center of gravity; hydraulic internal expanding 4-wheel brakes; hydraulic shock absorbers; metal side quarters; Brewster non-glare windshields; more head room, more leg room and deeper cushions; finest of mohair upholstery and Luxura type springs.

Proof that the public knows how to compare values is evidenced in Auburn's sales jump of 71% the first 3 months of this year. The demand was instantaneous and is steadily increasing. To care for this demand we enlarged our factory capacity 200%, increased our number of employees 100%, and increased our production 100%.

High Lights in Auburn's Spectacular Success
71% sales increase first 3 months of 1929.
More Auburn cars will be built and sold the first 6 months of this year than for all of 1928.
5,000 deposits have been returned to customers who could not wait and had to take "second choice" cars.
Production capacity more than doubled.
Auburn cars are sold before they are built.
Quickest turn over of any car today.
Greater value, more distinction and finer performance for less cost.
Leads in Straight Eight success.
Higher resale value.
Auburn dealers are not overstocked.

Yet, despite our great production increase, Auburn cars continue oversold. The demand far exceeds the immediate supply.

The significant thing is that Auburn's oversold condition operates in favor of the public.

Only when a factory is in this condition, and not influenced by expediency requirements, is it free to place the buyer's interest uppermost. In addition, Auburn's dealer policy is one of no commitments. That is, we do not "force" cars upon our dealers and overstock them. We think that it is bad business for all concerned, including you. Fast moving merchandise and quick turnover protect the buyer as well as the seller. No other principle is economically sound.

E. L. Cord says:
The best way to protect the customer's investment, and give him bigger value for less cost, is to supply the kind of cars people want, so that they are sold before they are built.

And here is another very significant thing:

While the demand for Auburn sixes is unprecedented, the demand for Auburn Straight Eights is greater.

Today it is well known that the Straight Eight type of car out ranks all others in superlative quality, smoother performance, longer life and higher resale value.

Auburn has completely and conclusively proven the Straight Eight to be as economical as a Six.

And Auburn offers a Straight Eight for less than many Sixes.

While we regret that any one has had to take a "second choice" car because they could not wait for an Auburn, obviously that is one penalty we must pay for operating our business on the over-sold policy.

We want to ask all whose first choice is for Auburn cars to be a little patient. Auburn cars ARE worth waiting for. Production IS steadily increasing consistent with good business tactics and without impairing quality.

Therefore, to insure delivery, if your order is not placed we urge you to do so at once.

More Than 500.000 Chevrolets Built Since First of Year

Vice President Lays Increase to Growing Popularity of New Six Model.

DETROIT, Mich., May 4.—Evidence of the widespread popularity of the new six-cylinder Chevrolet was revealed here today in an announcement by R. H. Grant, vice president of the Chevrolet Motor Co., in charge of sales, that more than 500,000 new cars have been placed on the road since Jan. 1.

A significant feature of this achievement, it was noted, is the fact that Chevrolet in four months built a greater number of six-cylinder cars than any other automobile manufacturer has ever produced in an entire year.

This figure would have been even greater, Grant pointed out, if Chevrolet had been able to take immediate care of the great number of orders which have been received.

"Nearly every month in 1929 has seen a new monthly production record. In order to satisfy the demand for cars pouring in from nearly every section of the country, output has been steadily increased as fast as is consistent with the precision manufacturing methods which Chevrolet employs," Grant asserted.

To signalize the achievement of placing on the road more than 500,000 cars in less than four months time, Chevrolet has secured John Philip Sousa and his world famous band for an hour's broadcast over a nationwide hookup Monday night. It will be the first time that the celebrated "March King" has been heard over the radio. The radio debut of the famous bandmaster will be made during the regular General Motors "Family Hour," starting at 8:30 p. m., Eastern standard time.

Although Sousa has played to more people than any other director in the history of bany music, appearing once before a single audience of 153,000 people at the International Exposition in Glasgow, on Monday night he will have one of the largest audiences that ever listened to a single musical offering.

Thirty-nine stations from coast to coast will be linked for Sousa's radio debut.

Jordan Motors Show Net Profit of $57,508

CLEVELAND, O., May 4.—A profit of $57,508 is reported by the Jordan Motor Car Co. for the quarter ending March 31, in spite of the fact that a complete change of models slowed up production in January.

Sales of $1,915,682 for the quarter are announced, with February production three times as great as that in January and March output twice as large as that of February. Officials estimated April production would be 50 per cent greater than that of March.

Viking Downdraft Manifolding Shown

The above photo-chart illustrates the principle of manifolding which is one of the features of the new Viking eight, companion car to the Oldsmobile six. The white arrow indicates the course of the gasoline vapors from the carburetor to the combustion chambers. Black arrow traces the route of the exhaust gasses.

Ever since Isaac Newton discovered the principle of gravitation it has been known that material substances pursue a downward course far more easily than when there is an upward grade. This is true even of so light a substance as gasoline vapor, which is heavier than air. For that reason automotive engineers for some years have been working on a downdraft principle of manifolding whereby the gas vapor would follow a downward course from the carburetor to the combustion chambers.

This principle is one of the several advanced engineering designs incorporated in the new Viking, the 90-degree, V-type, eight cylinder automobile recently introduced as a companion car to the Oldsmobile six. The engineers not only created a down-draft design but also arranged the manifolding so that it is exactly the same distance from the carburetor to each of the eight combustion chambers, thus providing equal fuel distribution with consequent smoothness of operation.

Advantages of a downward, easy flow of gas from carburetor to combustion chambers are easily apparent. It eliminates any tendency for the gas to "pocket" and condense on the way to the combustion chambers; it swirls along its course, speeded by gravitation, and reaches the combustion chambers in a form to best perform its allotted function.

Naturally the prime requisite for this type of manifolding has been that the carburetor exit must be located above the engine so that the gas mixtures could follow a downward course. Heretofore the standard automobile engine design has presented several obstacles in the way of elevating the carburetor, one of which was that the carburetor had to be low enough to have a gravity flow from the vacuum tank. This latter objection was overcome by the introduction of a gasoline pump which draws the gasoline from the supply tank and forces it to the carburetor regardless of location.

With a complete knowledge of advanced engineering ideas and practices and unhampered by previous designs, the Oldsmobile-Viking engineers were enabled to design this type manifolding as an integral part of the new engine.

In the Viking the intake and exhaust manifolds form an inverted U above and connecting the two cylinder banks comprising the V-type engine. The intake manifold is beneath the exhaust, with the carburetor located at the apex of the inverted U. Thus the gas mixture as it leaves the carburetor passes a "hot spot" formed by the exhaust manifold at the carburetor outlet and then passes downward through the manifold to the combustion chambers.

The exhaust from the left bank of cylinders is drawn upward over the inverted U, forming the carburetor "hot spot" and passing down along the right side of the engine to the exhaust pipe. Separate passages are used for the left and right side exhaust.

This type of manifolding has been proven by tests to provide a fuel mixture of uniform quality to all cylinders and to contribute to quick starting power and smoothness of engine poformance

Change Spark Plugs After Every 10,000 Miles for Economy

Millions of motor car owners now recognize the greater satisfaction as well as the operating economy resulting from installing new spark plugs at least once a year, according to F. B. Caswell, director of sales of the Champion Spark Plug Co.

"Engines of early days with their slow speed and low compression, were easy on the spark plug structure, even though productive of much fouling and operating trouble," Caswell states. "As a result, spark plug endurance was considered something about which to boast. It was, moreover, only a few years ago that manufacturers took genuine pride in the fact that the spark plugs they produced would function almost indefinitely, except for fouling or accidental breakage.

"But with introduction of higher speed engines with much greater compression, it was proved beyond question that spark plugs, no matter how well made they might be, lost efficiency much more rapidly. By utilizing Dillimanite in making the cores and by special electrodes, our company was able to produce plugs which give improved service for a much longer time."

After discussing further changes made in Champion plugs, Caswell stated that motorists were finally taught that it was advisable to discard plugs after their cars have run 10,000 miles.

Chrysler Company Maintains Office For Compiling Data

Of particular interest to Chrysler car owners and of unusual value to police departments throughout the United States is the statistical department at the Chrysler office in Detroit, where can be found a complete record of any Chrysler car that has been sold since July, 1925.

Hundreds of columns of facts concerning Chrysler cars are available in this department, headed by John W. Scoville.

With such thoroughness are these records kept that it requires but 20 minutes to check completely any information desired on any Chrysler automobile in the United States. Within that time and with only the engine number, the serial number, or the car number on the instrument panel as a guide, the records will show the name of the purchaser of the car, the purchaser's address, date of purchase, name of the dealer who sold the car, that of the salesman handling the sale, the model, date of purchase and the occupation of the owner in addition to a number of other facts of importance.

Not only is this information of great value to police in locating the owners of stolen automobiles, but Chrysler owners benefit materially. Information furnished through these records has been used successfully by Chrysler officials in reducing rates of insurance on Chrysler cars in various parts of the country.

In many instances the records kept in the statistical department have been instrumental in returning cars to the owners after they have been stolen and driven hundreds of miles from the city in which they were taken. Another insurance to Chrysler owners against the loss of their cars through theft, is the numbering system used on the instrument panel. While these numbers can be destroyed entirely, they cannot be changed and in case of their being destroyed, the cars are easily distinguished as stolen.

"The statistical department is maintained not only for the benefit of the Chrysler officials who find it important to have this information on hand, but for the use of aiding the owners of Chrysler cars in every way possible. It is a service that we are glad to render and is available to all Chrysler owners as well as the police departments of any city," comments Scoville.

General Motors Has Increased Earnings

Alfred P. Sloan Jr., president, states that net earnings of General Motors Corporation, including equities in the undivided profits of subsidiary and affiliated companies not consolidated, for the first quarter ended March 31, 1929, were $61,910,987, which compares with $69,468,576 for the corresponding period a year ago. After deducting dividends on preferred and debenture stock amounting to $2,351,770 there remains $59,559,217 being the amount earned on the common shares outstanding. This is equivalent to $1.37 per share on the common stock as against $1.54 per share for the first quarter of 1928, calculated as a comparable basis.

Dewey Smith, Sedalia, Son of Se Commission, Describes Trip Fr

A thrilling and naive account of how he broke the nonstop driving record between Calcutta and Bombay, India, in a Studebaker President eight roadster recently, is given by Dewey W. Smith, son of W. D. Smith of Sedalia, Mo., secretary of the Missouri State Fair.

Smith, employed by the Volkart Brothers' automobile agency at Bombay, started from Calcutta with C. L. Clark, service manager of the concern, at 10:30 p. m., Feb 25. After relating how, in spite of efforts to avoid publicity, a crowd of 200 persons gathered to see them off, Smith continues:

"We had fitted the roadster with an extra 45-gallon petrol tank in place of the dickey seat and, with the exception of the tank and a small container fastened to the running board, the car carried standard equipment.

"The Penzoil oil forwarded from America did not arrive in time and we used Standard oil, as well as Shell petrol, which is the only fuel available here. When we left Calcutta we carried 57 imperial gallons of petrol, having a hose connection for refilling the central tank. We had to carry all the petrol we could, as it is scarce along the way.

We found the first 35 miles out of Calcutta very slow due to heavy traffic and many bullock carts getting in the way. However, we had anticipated this and knew that it would take us about an hour and 15 minutes to make the first 40 miles out of Calcutta.

The first night was rather uneventful except that it turned very cold and we were uncomfortable, due to the fact that we had nothing but a sweater and a light coat. We took turns sitting on the floor boards underneath the car to get warm. During the night we made very good time, keeping our average speed up to about 45 miles per hour and at times touching 55. However, we could not keep this speed up due to the condition of the roads.

The next morning about 6:30 we arrived at the Sone River and here A. B. Wyrick was waiting for us and made preparations to get us across the railway bridge on a flat car as soon as possible. Our arrangements here came off very well and we found ourselves on the other side of the Sone River and again on the road in about 45 minutes. Mr. Wyrick rode with us from here to Benares, a distance of about 80 miles. Here we made arrangements with our new dealer, Ekram Khan, for petrol and at this place we filled our tanks with 40 imperial gallons; this took us about 20 minutes and we were again on our way.

The next scheduled stop was to be at Jhansi. However, about 100 miles out of Benares we found it necessary to refill our small tank and found when we turned the valve that something had gotten in the pipe and the petrol would not flow into the small tank. We had to stop, take out the pipe, clean it out and put it on again before we could continue. This delayed us about half an hour. We arrived at Jhansi late that afternoon, which was almost the half-way stop, and found we had only taken 17 hours to complete this part of the trip. We had a schedule of 36 hours for the entire trip and were very happy to think we were one hour ahead of our schedule at this point.

Up to this time we had had two punctures and as we only carried three spare tires we considered it wise to go by the station at Jhansi, where we had two wheels and tires sent the day before, pick these wheels up and leave the punctured ones at Jhansi to be forwarded on to Bombay later. We encountered considerable difficulty with the station master at Jhansi in identifying ourselves and he was reluctant to give us the two wheels. It was only after we had wasted an hour and a half that we were able to get the wheels and again get under way. This was exceedingly disappointing. However, as I am well acquainted with India, it did not exactly surprise me. When we came out of the station with the tires we found we had another flat tire. Therefore, we were obliged to make another change. This made three punctures in all from Calcutta to Jhansi and, fortunately for us, this was the last tire trouble we had.

Our next place to take on petrol was Indore. However, we found our tanks getting low and in fear that we might get off the road or be delayed in some way, we thought it best to stop at Sipri and fill there before going further. Sipri is a very small place and we had rather a funny experience there in getting our tanks filled. As previously stated, the two tanks together held 58 gallons. I drove up in front of a very small place handling petrol (in two-gallon tins) and asked if they had plenty of petrol. The storekeeper answered very assuringly that he had plenty, so I told him to start fill-

Missouri Youth Sets Bombay Auto Record

Dewey Smith, Sedalia, Son of Secretary of State Fair Commission, Describes Trip From Calcutta, India.

Sets Record in India

DEWEY W. SMITH.

Formerly of Sedalia, Mo., who braved many perils to establish a new time from Calcutta to Bombay, India, not long ago. He is shown seated on the running board, with his companion, C. L. Clark, in the car,

A thrilling and naive account of how he broke the nonstop driving record between Calcutta and Bombay, India, in a Studebaker President eight roadster recently, is given by Dewey W. Smith, son of W. D. Smith of Sedalia, Mo., secretary of the Missouri State Fair.

Smith, employed by the Volkart Brothers' automobile agency at Bombay, started from Calcutta with C. L. Clark, service manager of the concern, at 10:30 p. m., Feb 26. After relating how, in spite of efforts to avoid publicity, a crowd of 200 persons gathered to see them off, Smith continues:

Our next place to take on petrol was Indore. However, we found our tanks getting low and in fear that we might get off the road or be delayed in some way, we thought it best to stop at Sipri and fill there before going further. Sipri is a very small place and we had rather a funny experience there in getting our tanks filled. As previously stated, the two tanks together held 58 gallons. I drove up in front of a very small place handling petrol (in two-gallon tins) and asked if they had plenty of petrol. The storekeeper answered very assuringly that he had plenty, so I told him to start filling the tanks and bring tins out as fast as we could. After bringing out two tins (four gallons) he stepped back and looking very proud said this was plenty of petrol for a big car like ours. I told him we wanted at least 50 gallons and wanted it quick. With such a statement as this he practically threw up his hands in horror and said there was not 50 gallons in all of Sipri. I told him we wanted all the petrol he could find and he immediately sent several messengers from his stores to all the other stores up and down the street. These messengers came running from the different stores with one, two and three tins of petrol and finally we succeeded in getting about 19 tins or about 38 gallons of petrol. Before the storekeeper would put all of this petrol in the large tank he impressed upon us the fact that the bill would come to a certain amount—and was reluctant to give us the petrol until we had shown him some signs of cash payment. In order to satisfy his mind in this respect I placed the cash on the table and he proceeded to give us the pertlo as far as possible. After the 38 gallons were in the tank and we were ready to start he thanked us very cordially for the great amount of business we had given him and said if we were ever through Sipri again and had a car with such large tanks, he would be only too pleased to arrange beforehand to have plenty of petrol on hand.

Leaving Sipri I remarked to Clark that if he would watch for the next four or five hours we would be sure to see a great number of leopards, panthers, porcupines, hyenas, wolves and deer. I think Clark thought I was joking with him but no sooner had I said this than one of the largest leopards I have ever seen crossed in front of us and stopped a moment to look into our lights. The lights dazed him and he stood there for a moment wondering what was happening. At the last minute he gave a spring into the forest beside the road. However, he did not calculate that we were coming at 70 miles an hour and his long tail struck our front fender and made a small dent in it.

All during this night we saw numerous leopards and panthers, several hyenas and porcupines, also Indian wolves as well as eight or 10 deer and hundreds of rabbits. Our casualties for the night amounted to one hyena, one porcupine, two deer, 12 rabbits, three Indian wolves and one stone marten. These animals would run into the road attracted by our lights and would stand there very dazed until we were almost upon them. Then as a rule they would turn and run directly in front of the car. The road was not wide enough to go around them and we did not wish to take time to slow down. Therefore, we held the steering wheel tight and ran over them unless they succeeded in getting out of the way.

As this was the second night out we were both beginning to get very sleepy about 2 o'clock in the morning and from 2 until daybreak we found great difficulty in keeping awake although we kept out speed between 50 and 70 miles at all times. We attempted to take turns at sleeping but found we could not, owing to the speed we were making and the condition of the road. It seemed to the man who was not driving that we were certainly going to turn over unless he watch the road closely, although he was not driving. I awakened several times thinking I had been sleeping a long time to find it had only been two or three minutes. However, these few minutes were very restful and all during the next morning we were very cheerful and in quite good spirits.

At about 12:30 we reached Nasik after making very poor time from Indore to Nasik, due to the heavy traffic of bullock carts laden with cotton and nuts on the way to market. At one place it took us about one hour to go 12 miles because of one of us having to run along in front of the car whipping the bullock carts out of the way. This is a great hazard and danger when trying to make time or driving fast on Indian roads. These large bullock carts on two wheels can turn very quickly on the road and very easily wreck a car without a moment's notice.

We arrived at Nasik about 12:30 p. m. and took 50 gallons of petrol. Wasting no time we then headed toward Bombay and thus we started the last lap of our journey. For about 15 or 20 miles out of Nasik we had very mountainous roads and could make very little time, but as soon as we got on the plains we forced the old President along at a good 70 miles per hour most of the time. Within 20 miles from Bombay Clark fell asleep at the wheel and the car swerved about 10 feet off the road. However, luckily for us, there was nothing at this particular spot except plains and we got back on the road without any damage whatsoever.

As I knew the road from here on to Bombay, I took the wheel and we made very good time from here on. Mr. Gould, manager of the Swiss Engineering Co. at Bombay; Dr. Mueller, one of Volkart's directors in charge of the Swiss Engineering Co.; Maj. Werner, secretary of the Western India Automobile Association, and several others were at the Bombay city limits to welcome us. Maj. Wer-

Artist Praises Lines of Beauty In Franklin Cars

Design of the Franklin automobile is in accord with true modernism because it meets utilitarian requirements honestly and achieves beauty through simplicity, Harry Stoner, famous artist who is illustrating Franklin advertising for magazine color pages, declares.

Born in Springfield, O., and beginning his career as an architect, Stoner turned to decorative art as a result of study in l'Academie Julian, Paris. He has exhibited in the principal salons in America and has received high praise from European critics who claim he is achieving in water colors what French impressionists are doing in oils. He designed the mosaic curtain executed by Tiffany for the National Theater of Mexico, was architect for the interior of the National Theater in Havana and has done several murals, including those in the Hotel Wellington in New York. His written articles on theater decoration are widely read.

"I have pleasure in drawing Franklin cars because they conform to my theory of logical car design; that is, a powerful, forward-moving machine, primarily simple with no faddish or unexpressive lines or forms," Stoner says. "Instead beauty of the car depends entirely upon mass and long sweeping lines."

"Modern artists concern themselves with more than exteriors," he declares, asserting that, "while drawing Franklin cars I am happily conscious of the finest craftsmanship throughout because I have seen them in the making."

French Champion Will "Show Them How"

Louis Chiron testing one of his fast racers at the Indianapolis speedway. He is wearing a "crash" helmet, not used by American drivers, for protection in accidents.

Modish "Silhouette" Not Fashionable in Tires, Meyer Says

The "slender silhouette," ambition of many women, does not count in the rubber tire industry. The tire that cuts any figure is big and brawny and extraordinarily tough, according to E. L. Meyer Jr., of the Meyer Tire Co., local distributors of Seiberling tires.

"Motorists are too wise to reject strength for slenderness in the matter of their tire equipment," Meyer says. "Instead of advocating the 'slender silhouette,' therefore, tire fashion dictates the massive, protecting Seiberling special service type—the 'healthiest' tire built.

"And that's just where the automobile tire of today has it over some humans. Instead of trying to keep up with the fast pace of modern living with no reserve strength—and today's 'fast living' means hard driving and greater strain on tires—Seiberling special service tires are prepared for the toughest battle. All the latest developments of rubber researech are made a part of the sensational new Seiberling product—with the result that it is the biggest, toughest and best tire that Seiberling has ever built. And that's saying a whole lot.

"A new tread compound, which, by reducing abrasion, or the constant whirling off of rubber particles, adds 35 per cent to the life of the tire—that's only one of the improvements. This new compound is called 'affinite'—because it results in a closer affinity between the rubber molecules. A new tread design, 35 per cent deeper and 10 per cent wider, gives the new Seiberling tire 40 per cent greater traction. And the Seiberling all-tread feature—sidewall protection by the famous Seiberling bead-to-bead tread—makes the sidewalls of the new tire virtually injury-proof.

"Besides all this, the Seiberling tire still carries the protection of the Seiberling tire protection plan—eliminating tire repair expense from the motoring budget for one year. Under this plan, any Seiberling passenger car tire damaged by road accident of any kind will be repaired free of charge during a period of one year after the date of purchase. If the tire should be damaged beyond repair, a new one will be furnished at one-twelfth the original cost, if the accident occurs during the first month of use, two-twelfths if during the second month, and on up. Five thousand Seiberling dealers throughout the country will make good this pledge of service.

"The Meyer Tire Co. has inaugurated a free monthly inspection service to keep tires in shape, check air pressure, repair any open tread cuts that may threaten and inspect the car for faulty brake adjustments and wheel alignments that may be causing abnormal tread wear.

Medical Tests.

Because an average of 200 persons are killed by motor vehicles in Paris each month, French physicians have proposed that operators undergo medical tests. Doctors say that licenses should be in force for a period of only five years, when another examination should be considered necessary.

Auto Racer to Enter Speed Classic. Harry Hartz, noted automobile race driver, who has not participated in a contest since he was injured at Salem, N. H., in October of 1927, will start in the next 500-mile international sweepstakes in Indianapolis, Ind., on May 30. He won the American racing championship in 1920. He finished second in the 500-mile race in 1922, 1923, and 1926.

Fisher Predicts Continuation of Prosperous Era

DETROIT, Mich., May 4.—Lawrence P. Fisher, president and general manager of the Cadillac Motor Car Co., and vice president of General Motors, makes the following statement: "The United States, for the next 10 years, should enjoy the greatest and most widespread prosperity the world has ever known."

He characterized the steady decline in the national debt, increase in savings deposits, continued stock and bond market activity, steady growth in the number of corporate stockholders, new high total of life insurance sales and the record consumption of the products of industry and agriculture as indices on which part of his optimism is based.

"This prosperity, in which so many have participated in the last five years," Fisher said, "has now reached the point where it assists in contributing to the even more widespread prosperity to come."

Remember the Troughs.

Those troughs in the head of the overhead-valve engine which are designed to contain lubricating oil for the mechanism are covered up with special plates these days. The object is silence. But, because they are not visible, some car owners forget that the troughs must be kept full of oil.

Another Official Film

In "Home Is What You Make It," a three-reel motion picture recently released by the Office of Motion Pictures, United States Department of Agriculture, the producers have tried to combine entertainment with practical lessons in "improving and repairing the farm home." The film portrays the actual rejuvenation of a run-down house in Maryland, typical of many properties in other States.

CHAMPION National Change Week

May 5th to 11th

CHAMPION
REG. U.S. PAT. OFF.
Save the Price of New Spark Plugs

Change Your Spark Plugs Every 10,000 Miles

CHAMPION National Change Week was established to bring forcibly to the minds of the motorists of the country the advisability and the economy of installing new spark plugs every 10,000 miles.

Last year more than 3,000,000 car owners secured more power and speed and all around better engine performance by putting in a new set of dependable Champions during National Change Week.

This actually cost them nothing as the new Champions saved their price in less oil and gas used.

Many motor car manufacturers recommend that new spark plugs be installed at regular intervals just as they recommend the regular changing of oil.

They do this because they know that no matter how well made a spark plug may be, the tremendous stress to which it is subjected in the modern engine causes it to lose efficiency.

The insulator becomes carbon-encrusted and the electrodes corroded. This weakens the spark. Combustion is not complete. Gas is wasted and seeps by the pistons to dilute the oil. Power is lost. The motor is sluggish. Speed is impaired.

But new spark plugs change all this. There is more complete burning of the gas. Power is increased. Sluggishness is gone as the motor picks up more rapidly. Speed is greatly increased.

Let Champion National Change Week—May 5 to 11—be your annual reminder to improve your engine performance by installing a complete set of new Champions.

And be sure that you secure the proper type of plug for your own engine.

Different engines require spark plugs of different design. There is a correct Champion for every engine and to obtain the best performance you must make certain that you install the proper type of spark plug.

More than 100,000 garages and dealers sell Champions. They will be glad to advise you the correct Champion to use.

There is a correctly designed Champion for every engine. Buy by number.

Ozark National Park Urged by F. W. A. Vesper

Chairman of Newly Formed Committee Stresses Scenic Benefits of Missouri Mountain Region.

Advisability of creating a national park in the Ozark Mountains is pointed out by F. W. A. Vesper, president of the Vesper-Buick Auto Co. of 3900 West Pine boulevard, who is chairman of the National Park Committee established by the Missouri Ozarks Chamber of Commerce.

"The Ozarks region, because of its central location and ideal physical surroundings, is ideal," Vesper declared yesterday. "While a national park in the Ozarks might not afford high mountains and spouting geysers, such as are found in some parks, its other scenic attractions are equally as interesting.

"A huge national park offering a game preserve wherein wild life might find a refuge and the attraction such a preserve would hold for tourists is, without question, an impressive argument in favor of an Ozark national park.

"Then, too, an Ozark park would have the advantage of being accessible during more months of the year than many. It could be reached by a large number of people in a short time at a small expense. A park of this type in the Ozarks surely would be happily received by those persons who have only a short vacation period.

"It is only natural, this proposed park being at our very doorstep, that we all should be vitally interested in the project and should give it our undivided support."

Vesper was formerly president of the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce, owns the widely known Fredmar farm near Jefferson Barracks and devotes his spare moments to raising pure-bred stock.

Sloan and Packard Head Appointed to Spanish Air Body

With the appointment of Alfred P. Sloan Jr., president of General Motors Corporation, and Alban McCauley, president of Packard Motors, to the American Industrial Committee to Spain, automotive interests assume a new importance at the Barcelona International Exhibition which opens May 15 under auspices of the King of Spain.

The committee, recently announced by the Spanish Ambassador, Alexandro Padilla, was appointed by the Marquis de Foronda, president of the exhibition, to act in an advisory capacity and to study problems of international trade, transportation and tariffs for the purpose of protomting Spanish-American trade and good-will.

Members include Sloan, B. F. Yoakum, president of Empire Bond and Mortgage Co.; Gen J. G. Harbord, president of Radio Corporation of America; L. A. Osborne, president of Westinghouse Electric International Co.; Otto Kahn, New York banker; John F. Tinsley, vice president and general manager of the Crompton & Knowles Loom Works; Conde Nast, president of Conde Nast Publications; P. F. Saylor, president of Canada Dry Ginger Ale Co.; Noble Foster Hoggson, president of Hoggson Bros., Inc., and McCauley.

Delegates will be received in Barcelona by Baron de Viver, Mayor of Barcelona; the Marquis de Foronda and Santiago Trias, treasurer of the Barcelona Exhibition. The first member to sail, Noble Foster Hoggson, left recently on the "Vulcania" for Spain to take the initial steps in getting the work of the committee under way.

ner wanted to take our time at the city limits but I insisted on the time being taken in front of the Swiss Engineering Co.'s showroom as I wanted our elapsed time from our showroom in Calcutta to our showroom in Bombay. Within 15 minutes after reaching the Bombay city limits, we were in front of the showroom in Bombay and inside of 15 or 20 minutes more, 300 or 400 people had gathered to see the car and welcome us and congratulate us on the trip. We were then taken to the offices of the Western India Automobile Association, and several photographs were taken. The elapsed time has now been made 41 hours and 15 minutes. The total distance covered was 1466 miles.

The engine of the President eight was not stopped on the entire journey and the only halts we make were compulsory ones.

The Bombay papers favored us with a great deal of publicity and that night the news of our run was given in the "Stop Press" column of the evening papers. Next day pictures of our arrival in Bombay and a complete story of the run appeared in three or four of the Bombay papers. Calcutta and Madras papers also gave us considerable publicity and small articles appeared in most every paper throughout India. Most of our dealers carried a half page and quarter page advertisement in all newspapers in their respective localities.

Personally, I was disappointed we did not make the run a little bit faster and if it had not been for the delay at Jhansi for tires and the tremendous amount of bullock cart traffic which we encountered, we could easily have made the run in four hours less time. I had never been over the road and we were exceedingly lucky in finding the road the entire way. We were not off it more than two or three times and that only for a distance of two or three miles. The road is not plainly marked and one has to study maps very carefully in order not to get started the wrong way. Most of the difficult part is getting through large Indian States, such as Indore. Here we lost about 45 minutes getting through the city.

At any rate we were able to beat the existing record of 47 hours 35 minutes, giving us a margin of six hours and 20 minutes. The fastest train makes this run in 39 hours 27 minutes (when it is on time) and the total distance covered by the train is 1349 miles, while we covered a distance of 1466 miles.

Nash Co. Deliveries At Key Points Are Up 51.42 Per Cent

KENOSHA, Wis., May 4.—With retail delivery figures in key points for the week ending April 20 exceeding by 51.42 per cent those of the corresponding period last year, executives of the Nash Motors Co. report the greatest April volume in the history of the Nash organization.

"Three of the districts included in Nash's largest marketing centers for the week had increases in retail deliveries which were truly phenomenal," it was stated. "Minneapolis lead the procession with an increase of 165 per cent over its record of the previous year, while Nash '400' series sales in Buffalo and Milwaukee bettered last year's figures by 100 per cent.

"It is significant that this buying record for Nash was not limited to the metropolitan markets but it is indicated in the reports which we are receiving from all points of the country."

AUTO CLUB REPORTS ROADS IN ILLINOIS AND MISSOURI GOOD

south from New Madrid, Mo., is poor because of the rains. Much traffic is avoiding this by going through Dexter and Kennett, Mo.

U. S. No. 40 immediately east of East St. Louis has been inundated by Indian Lake since Thursday. Illinois State detour markers are sending traffic by way of No 12 to French Village, thence via Caseyville to a point on No. 40 west of Collinsville. However, the Automobile Club of Missouri is recommending another detour which has been marked with arrows bearing the legend, "To the greyhounds," by the Madison Kennel Club. It adds no mileage and is paved with asphalt and brick except for a mile of Kingshighway, East St. Louis, which the kennel club has widened, cindered and oiled.

In connection with the paving of 23 miles of U. S. Highway No. 66 now going on between Cuba and Rolla, Mo., it has been learned that the present one-mile dirt detour near Rolla, which will be in use for only about a month longer, is expected to be the only detour necessary. The rest of the paving is on a new location and will not disturb traffic on the existing gravel road. The detour begins three and a half miles east of Rolla at the west and one and a half miles west of Dillon at the east. Near it a mile of concrete is being laid on the old highway and as soon as this is cured it will go into service. Another paving outfit is working on this project near St. James, in view of the old road.

This summer stretch of about 15 miles of No. 66 in Laclede County, between Lebanon and Conway, is to be paved, eliminating the last gravel in Missouri on this transcontinental highway. What the detour situation there will be has not been determined.

A short piece of No. 66 entering Carthage, Mo., from the east along Spring River, is to be relocated, possibly this year, because the stream frequently overflows it. The State is planning a new link on higher ground. The present road is paved.

Drivers are being cautioned to go carefully over the six miles of narrow, high-crowned macadam on U. S. No. 40, west from Boonville, Mo., because of the numerous holes in the surface. Pavement is being laid on an adjacent location to replace this last section of unmade road on this highway.

The short stretch of semi-gravel road on U. S. No. 50 in the vicinity of Linn, Mo., is slick when wet but always open to travel. This route to Jefferson City and Kansas City is in good condition.

Britton to Talk Over KMOX.

A talk on roads in the Missouri Ozarks, especially for week-end automobilists, will be delivered over KMOX in the Ozark broadcast next Friday evening at 9 o'clock, by Maj. Roy Britton, president of the Automobile Club of Missouri.

Says Business In This Region Is Exceptional

Durant Sales Head, on Tour of Inspection, Visits Local Factory Branch.

Business generally is on a firm basis throughout the Mississippi Valley, according to R. T. Hodgkins, general sales manager of the Durant Motor Co., a visitor in St. Louis Tuesday during a periodical inspection trip.

"There is no apparent depression," Hodgkins told a Post-Dispatch reporter. "St. Louis dealers who handle Durants are particularly pleased with their sales, which might be called a barometer of business. Not since 1921, when agriculture was at a post-war low ebb, has there been such a trend toward prosperity.

"I find that concrete roads present one of the most pressing needs of rural districts. The public is demanding high speed automobiles and good, paved highways should logically result. If farmers themselves were to build concrete roads, their profits from quick hauls would soon pay the bill."

High speed is a favorite subject with Hodgkins, who drives a big Durant at a rapid rate on his road trips. He believes that the four-speed transmission, with a special high gear for top speed, has come to stay. It is used in Durants and several other makes of cars.

Durant is featuring its six-66 which has a silent third gear capable of producing 65 miles an hour and the special high gear which will permit 80 miles an hour. Low gear is used only for muddy roads, Hodgkins said. The Durant six may be shifted from third to high and back at any speed, without throwing out the clutch, he asserted.

"The four-speed transmission represents the biggest advance in the automotive industry in 10 years," Hodgkins continued. "It means cutting down engine revolutions per minute 20 per cent, increasing the speed in proportion, and decreases wear on the motor 40 per cent.

The sales executive visited many cities in the Middle West during his trip, calling on dealers whom he regards as "partners" of the automobile company.

"I can't get their views and obtain information as to local conditions from my office in Detroit," he added. "The total of capital invested in dealers' plants is much larger than the capital invested in the factories."

The first of the new Durant 70 models will be placed on display this week at the showrooms of the St. Louis wholesale branch of the factory, 3205 Locust street, W. S. Cook, district manager of the Durant Motor Co., announced.

Gardner Export Gain Shown by Dealer Additions

Evidence of the growing popularity of Gardner cars abroad is seen in the unusual increase in the number of foreign automobile merchandisers who have signed contracts for the distribution of this St. Louis car in the past several months, according to T. F. Fowler, director of exports of The Gardner Motor Co., Inc.

"During the first four months of this year," said Fowler, "11 major distributers in 10 principal cities abroad signed Gardner contracts. This, however, is in reality an increase for the first quarter as only two of the 11 distributers signed up in April. In this same month we also added three distributers in as many provinces in Canada.

"Foreign distributers in the following cities and countries have enlisted under the Gardner banner since Jan. 1: Cologne, Germany; Munich, Germany; Bahia, Brazil; Beirut, Syria; Bagdad, Irak; Tangiers, Morocco; Paris, France; Brussels, Belgium; Palermo, Sicily; Rangoon, India; Sydney, Australia; Victoria, B. C., Canada; Medicine Hat, Alberta, Canada, and St. Johns, New Foundland.

"Export shipments of Gardner cars for the first quarter increased 97½ per cent over shipments for the same period last year, while total orders on hand for the first quarter exceeded the actual shipments for the like period in 1928 by 161½ per cent.

"A report has just been received at the factory from "El Automovil Americano" which states that Gardner exports to Argentina for January and February exceeded by a considerable margin the export shipments of nine leading American automobile manufacturers. Another indication of the demand for this St. Louis automobile.

"A further indication of the demand for Gardner cars overseas is contained in a letter received at the factory last week from Dott P. Romeo, distributer at Rome, Italy, in which he tells of the purchase of a Gardner car by Marcello Diaz, son of the late Armond Diaz, the Generalissimo who won the Italian war."

Color Test Criticised.

There has been a poplar impression that the viscosity of a lubricating oil could be determined by its color; that the lighter the shade of the substance, the lighter its body. The latest word from the experts is that this test is absolutely worthless—and that it always has been.

Reason for Good Roads.

State and local governments of the United States are now spending the stupendous sum of $1,500,000,000 annually for the construction of roads. To this amount the Federal Government is contributing only $75,000,000, or approximately 5 per cent.

A New Truck Body Built in St. Louis

CUSHING'S QUALITY VINEGARS

General Motor Truck Co. vehicle built for the St. Louis Vinegar & Cider Co.

The General Motor Truck Co., 2640 Washington boulevard, announces recent delivery of one of their model T-60 G. M. C. trucks, equipped with dual pneumatic tires, four-wheel brakes, four-speed transmission, electric lights and starter and a G. M. C. all-weather cab to the St. Louis Vinegar & Cider Co., 615 North First street. The company will use the truck for distribution of vinegar in bulk to its customers.

On each side of the body a rack has been built to contain three barrels which will be filled from a five-gallon sanitary closed container, thereby eliminating the confusion of rolling a full barrel of vinegar through the store.

The body was built by the McCabe-Powers Body Co. here. The truck is powered by the improved Buick master six motor.

LOOKING OVER THE CARS

Headlights certainly have come in for their share of criticism; perhaps for more than their share. As a matter of fact, the observer does not recall an instance in which anyone ever has said a really kind word for them. Yet, there is an occasion to do so at times. Not long ago, a Chrysler, being pushed through a gruelling 24-hour average speed test in Europe, had its pathway lighted at night by only its own headlights. Considering that it did 72.5 miles an hour for the stretch, the lighting must have been good.

Motor car makers are not the kind who become wedded to an idea and try to apply it where it is not applicable. The new Marquette, which is destined to become Buick's companion car, in this day of many companion cars, serves as an illustration. No one can recall when Buick didn't have a valve-in-head motor. But the Marquette is not going to have one. Its engine is going to be an L-head type.

How many motorists really know their cars intimately in this day of quick change, both in the design of cars and ownership of them? Take this point in connection with the lubrication of the valves in the new Franklin. It really is an ingenious system in which a weight, operated by the motion of the car, pumps a continuous supply of oil to pads around the valve stems.

Rims may seem to be just rims in these days when the average motorist simply drops the flat tire at the service station to be repaired. That's another case of things not being what they seem. The one used on the De Soto and Marmon, among several others, boasts of an ease of locking and unlocking that would almost make tire repairing a pleasure—if anything could make tire repairing a pleasure.

Safety glass is getting around among motor cars. Stutz, Pierce-Arrow, La Salle, Hudson, Ford and a few others now have been joined by a taxicab or so in the congregation supporting this safety feature.

Of the more widely known cars, the Lincoln probably boasts of the highest average price for all models. The least expensive model in its line is the seven-passenger phaeton which costs just about twice the average American's yearly income—$4650 to be exact. The top stock price Lincoln cars leaves the factory with a price tag that reads $7400. As to top prices, Cadillac and Packard run a neck and neck race, the former at $5995, and the latter $10 less.

Every once in a while, looking over the cars, one may think he has caught the engineer napping. Such a case is presented by the Nash special six. At first glance, the generator seems to be located too near the exhaust manifold. The engineer thought of that, though, when he placed the generator in that position and he overcame it by making the unit especially heat resistant.

"Case-hardened," is a description of the gears in the rear end that one expects to find in all cars. One does, in most of them. Studebaker is an exception. Its new Commander series boasts of a set of gears made of an especially toughened steel. Chipping them is one thing the unskilled driver cannot do, so they say.

The first 16-cylinder car has made its appearance. It is a product of the laboratories of M. Bugatti, France's famed sports car builder. M. Bugatti's products are famous wherever races are run abroad. His new 16, which is for stock cars, has two banks of eight cylinders, set vertically. It fits behind the narrowest of radiators, too.

Foresighted individuals in motordom's laboratories are wondering what radical change in body design is going to follow the introduction of front-wheel drive. The opportunity, most of them agree, is vast. Many are fairly convinced that more miles an hour can be added less expensively by stream lining than by an increase in horsepower at the present moment.

Big Export Gain By Whippet and Willys-Knight

TOLEDO, O., April 29.—An increase of 72 per cent in the Willys-Knight and the Whippet six and four export business over the same quarter of 1928 is reported by Willys-Overland. Shipments of 12,679 cars to foreign markets in the first quarter of 1929 set a high record which has been maintained during the month of April, in which approximately 4500 cars were shipped to overseas dealers.

These figures, coupled with an increase of 33 per cent in the total Willys-Overland production for the first quarter of 1929, place Willys-Overland's record in an outstanding position among the large producers.

Particularly impressive is the increase in Willys-Overland six-cylinder business, both on Willys-Knight and Whippet models. Whippet six sales, which are reported to be more than four times those of last year to date, will show an increase in April this year of over 50 per cent compared with last April sales.

April total sales are expected to show 40,000 cars, while orders on hand indicate that May will be Willys-Overland's greatest month of the year so far.

The reported high sales volume is cited by well informed automobile men as evidence of the public's growing familiarity with car performance and value.

This program of bringing unusual performance and value to low priced cars, launched by the Toledo manufacturer in June, 1926, with the introduction of the original Whippet four, is climaxed in the presentation of new Whippet fours and sixes, which bring high-priced car values to the low price field in addition to proved mechanical excellence.

The introduction of the first Whippet brought outstanding mechanical features, design and performance which, in less than two years revolutionized the low priced field. Other companies adopted several features first brought out in the original Whippet. These included four-wheel brakes, compact but powerful and speedy engine, low center of gravity and marked economy in fuel, oil and maintenance.

For two and a half years the Whippet was designated as the leader in the light four field because of its mechanical superiority. This recognized success brought an appreciation on the part of buyers in this class who have looked forward to Willys-Overland's production as representing outstanding value in the Whippet classification.

A New Speed Car.

The design of a motor car has been completed in England, which, it is believed, will make a speed of 300 miles an hour and a theoretical maximum speed of 400 miles. For the first time wireless will be used for steering, but the details of this are kept secret. The engines will have 3000 horsepower and the car will be fitted with eight wheels.

foreign contingent who will ride here in a desperate effort to lift the Speedway laurels which have rested more or less peacefully on American heads for several years.

Chiron, an active champion, will be pitted against Louis Meyer, the Yankee champ, while both Comotti and Moriceau will be out to trim Chiron, even if they can't defeat the American stars.

Ray Keech, former straightaway champion of the world; Bob McDonogh, one of the stars of the younger generation; Leon Duray, who holds the track record of 124.018 miles an hour at Indianapolis; Cliff Durant, the multi-millionaire racing star; Anthony Gulotta, who was leading the race only 17 laps from the finish last year when a cracked gas tank threw him out of the running; Lou Moore, who was second to Louis Meyer, in 1928, and Cliff Woodbury are among the stars who will participate in the international race

Twelve cars have been entered with drivers unnamed.

Michigan's Largest Fish Hatchery Gift Of Tire Company

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., May 4.—A lake formed by erection of a dam in 1920 by the Corduroy Tire Co. has become one of the best fish hatcheries in Western Michigan and is a valuable aid to the Michigan Department of Conservation. Millions of fingerling bass have been taken out to stock other bodies of water and streams in the State.

Damming of Coldbrook Creek to provide a permanent water supply for the tire company's plant was a major consideration in selecting the plant site. In the manufacture of tires, water is drawn into the factory for cooling purposes, then returned to the lake at a much higher temperature.

The lake water was found to be ideal for propagation of bass and as an initial experiment 38 pairs of the large mouth variety were placed in it. Two years later the State removed 20,000 fingerlings for stocking purposes elsewhere. The tiny fish were found to be larger and healthier than those found in any other hatchery.

Warm temperature of the lake has been found to be conducive to plant life and nature produces large quanities of food below the surface, on which the fish thrive.

NEW PEERLESS STRAIGHT "8" SEDAN

One of the cars on display at showrooms of the De Luxe Automobile Co., 3107 Locust boulevard.

The De Luxe Automobile Co., 3107 Locust street, Peerless distributor, is showing models of the new straight eight series 125, it is announced. They are priced at $2195 at the factory.

Built to offer a particular appeal to women, this machine makes a definite advance in automobile construction, in lines, style, comfort and finish, as well as in qualities that make for easy driving. The motor bore is 3⅜ inches and the stroke is 4½. A duplex carburetor gives even distribution of fuel to all cylinders. Preliminary tests have shown the car can develop a speed of more than 90 miles an hour.

Wheelbase of the five-passenger sedan, coupe and victoria is 130 inches, while that of the seven-passenger sedan is 138 inches. In spite of its length, the car may be handled as easily as a smaller one. A cam and lever gear eliminate the need of exerting strength in steering and internal expanding, hydraulic four-wheel brakes of large diameter require only a slight pressure of the foot to bring the car to a safe, sure stop.

Another safety feature is the No-Back, automatically preventing back-rolling on inclines.

Officials of the De Luxe company report considerable interest on the part of the public in the display.

German Delegates Warned Regarding Misappropriations

Warning the delegates of the German Gas Tax Commission against the waste involved in having highways built by many different groups, H. H. Rice, chairman of the Taxation Committee of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, urged that state funds go for state roads and not be refunded in part to the counties, in an address to the delegates recently.

Director-General Robert Kaufman, chairman of the commission, stated that the purpose of its visit was to study the most economical and efficient method of highway financing with application to Germany. He declared that the day has come when business and government need to think in international terms, with each benefiting from exchange of views.

John N. Willys, chairman of the Export Committee of the Automobile Chamber, welcomed the delegates, offering them on behalf of the industry admittance to all plants with the opportunity to study the processes of manufacture. Alfred Reeves, general manager, pointed out that the Federal Government had abandoned the general war-time excise tax on automobiles, recognizing that highway taxation is the present prerogative of the state.

The different methods of gasoline tax collection were outlined by Prof. F. G. Crawford of Syracuse University. Mr. Gustav Heuser, acting Consul-General of Germany, was a guest of honor.

Before you buy a car it's wise to compare with THE NEW PONTIAC BIG 6
PRODUCT OF GENERAL MOTORS

The 4-Door Sedan, $845 • Body by Fisher
Sport Equipment Extra

$745 AND UP

Some people make a fundamental mistake when they go to buy a car. They receive a demonstration. They compare the performance, the style and the luxury of the new car with the two or three-year-old car they are about to trade in. And, naturally, the new car seems just about perfect. So they sign the order without looking further. Maybe they make a good purchase, maybe not. The point is that they don't know what they might have found if they had only looked around.

To help you avoid this mistake we have arranged a special demonstration of the New Pontiac Big Six. Be sure to come in for this demonstration before you buy any low-priced car. See the others, by all means. But see the New Pontiac Big Six, if only for the sake of comparison.

Then, when you look at the others, see if they offer the style, the roominess and the sturdy construction which you found in Pontiac's Fisher bodies. See if they offer the swift, smooth, silent performance which the Pontiac revealed.

See if they offer brakes comparable to Pontiac's noiseless, dirt-and-weather-proof internal four-wheel brakes. See if they have anything like the Harmonic Balancer to counteract crankshaft vibration . . . anything like the thermostatically-controlled cross-flow radiator to assure efficient cooling and keep the engine at correct operating temperature at all times.

Progressive people are using the New Pontiac Big Six as the basis for their comparison and most of them come back to buy it. For it is the one car that enables them to step up in motor car quality without leaving the low-priced field.

Consider the delivered price as well as the list price when comparing automobile values . . . Oakland-Pontiac delivered prices include only reasonable charges for delivery and financing.

Prices $745 to $895, f. o. b. Pontiac, Michigan, plus delivery charges. Bumpers, spring covers and Lovejoy shock absorbers regular equipment at slight extra cost. General Motors Time Payment Plan available at minimum rate.

Outstanding Features of the New Chevrolet Six that have created this Tremendous Popularity—

6-Cylinder Smoothness

Due to the finer inherent balance of its six-cylinder motor—the new Chevrolet Six provides that smooth, quiet, flexible performance which is characteristic of the truly fine automobile. At every speed, the power is delivered easily, freely and without annoying vibration.

6-Cylinder Getaway

In sheer brilliance of performance, as well as in smoothness and quietness of operation, the new Chevrolet Six is a revelation. Acceleration is remarkably fast. And a new non-detonating cylinder head eliminates every trace of "lugging."

6-Cylinder Speed

The new Chevrolet Six has speed in abundance—but even more important than its speed is the smooth, quiet, restful comfort you experience at every point on the speedometer. You can open the throttle wide with a feeling of complete security.

Better Than 20 Miles Per Gallon

The marvelous performance of the Chevrolet Six would be exceptional in any car. But in the new Chevrolet Six it is actually sensational—for here it is combined with an economy of better than 20 miles to the gallon of gasoline!

Exceptional Riding Comfort

Another vital factor that has influenced over a half-million people in their selection of the new Chevrolet Six is its marvelous riding comfort. It travels smoothly over rough roads—and its balance on turns and corners is exceptional.

Beautiful Fisher Bodies

Longer, lower and roomier—finished in attractive, long-lasting colors—and upholstered in rich, deep-tufted fabrics—the new Fisher bodies on the Chevrolet Six introduce into the low-price field an entirely new measure of style and distinction.

Proved Dependability

Tested for more than a million miles on the roads of the General Motors Proving Ground—the new Chevrolet Six went into the hands of its owners thoroughly proved in every detail. And now reports of its performance on the highways of the nation pay glowing tribute to its endurance and dependability.

Amazing Low Prices

An achievement that surpasses even the brilliant performance qualities of this sensational six-cylinder car are the prices at which it is offered. Study these prices, and compare them with any other car and you will recognize the remarkable value represented in this Six in the price range of the four!

A practical demonstration of the welding of iron, steel, aluminum and bronze was given at a recent meeting of the Service Managers' Bureau of St. Louis at the Marquette Hotel, under auspices of the St. Louis Automobile Dealers' Association, recently. The Modern Engineering Co. had charge of the demonstration.

W. J. VanDaGrift, service manager of the Southwest Nash Co. introduced H. L. Schnure of the Schnure Motor Co., who commended the work of the Service Managers' Bureau.

D. T. Hoffman of the S. G. Hoffman Magneto Co., discussed the care of geenrators, carburetors, starters and ignition systems, giving many helpful hints for short and long trips and general car usage.

The remarkable freezing qualities of liquid air was explained by G. W. Pennewill of the St. Louis Oxygen Co., who also demonstrated the action of the gas, which reaches a temperature of almost 200 degrees below zero Fahrenheit.

Officers of the bureau are VanDaGrift, Chairman; Thomas Crosby of the Federal Motor Truck Co., vice chairman; Robert E. Lee, managing director; George Gruett of the Western Automobile Co.; James Hershfelt of the Vesper-Buick Auto Co., Thomas Ferguson of the Big Four Automobile Co., L. Matthews of the Riefling Automobile Co. and Louis Massen of the Mississippi Valley Motor Co., directors.

E. E. Gordon, St. Louis manager of the B. F. Goodrich Rubber Co., states that the Goodrich silver fleet, now touring the Pacific coast, will arrive in St. Louis about the first of August. The fleet left New York Jan. 23, taking a southerly course and, after passing through Florida, skirting the Gulf coast into California.

"The fleet has been accorded unusual receptions," Gordon declared. "The 14 cars and one truck represent manufacturers who produce about 95 per cent of the total output of motor cars. Pilots are all college men who attended the Goodrich sales school at Akron, O., last summer."

The Nu-Way Auto Polish Co., Inc., 422 East Broadway, East St. Louis, is featuring the sale of polishes of many kinds for use in Spring cleaning. For automobiles, glassware, metals, furniture and painted surfaces, according to L. Schroeder, general sales manager, Nu-Way products are excellent. Sprinkle a few drops of the polish on whatever it is desired to clean or polish, says Schroeder, and rub it off with a bit of cloth or even a newspaper. Results are tangible.

Alfred Lurie, president of the Lurie Motor Car Co., Studebaker distributor, predicts that 1929 will see the roadster come into such popularity as it has never experienced. George E. Thilenius has been named exclusive warehouse distributor for the India Tire and Rubber Co., Akron, O., it is announced. He is housing his establishment at 4943 Delmar boulevard, where for six years he acted as manager of a tire service company.

Running an automobile in warm weather with an indifferent cooling system may be likened to wearing winter clothing in the summer, according to L. A. Mitleider, president of the St. Louis Auto Radiator Co., 3326 Washington boulevard, who has studied radiator problems. The person with too heavy clothing burns up an excessive amount of energy and the automobile consumes too large a quantity of gasoline and oil, besides being sluggish and pepless. The radiator and spaces for water around the motor should be thoroughly cleaned and flushed in preparation for warm weather, Mitleider asserts.

Ollie Ehrhardt and Joseph McGraw, formerly connected with the Tuthill Gardner Motor Corporation, have organized the Independent Gardner Co., 3811 West Pine boulevard, and will specialize in Gardner repairing, although they will handle all kinds of automobile repairing.

Helm Walker, vice president in charge of sales of the Windsor Corporation, has returned from an extensive trip through the Eastern territory, visiting Chicago, Philadelphia, Pittsburg, New York and Boston. For the first time the St. Louis public was given an opportunity to view the entire line of new Hudson and Essex automobiles a week ago yesterday, when dealers paraded the streets of the city in more than 100 machines, which flashed in a bewildering assortment of colors. On his return Friday from the Marmon-Roosevelt factory at Indianapolis, R. B. Mann of the Archer-Mann Motor Co., 4055 Lindell boulevard, distributer for this district, stated that production of Roosevelts has increased to 300 a day, with indications that another 50 will be added daily before the end of May. He also reported that sales of Marmons have doubled over last year.

The new Decro Oiler, improved and embodying several unique features, now provides for combustion chamber lubrication. F. S. Welmeyer, 2625 Locust street, distributer for the product, explains that through the use of a new sight feed and needle valve adjustment with a balanced valve, the oiler gives an even flow of oil to vital parts of the motor at high speeds and low vacuum just as at low speeds and high vacuum.

Of Interest to Motorists.

A fine of 150 marks (about $35) or two weeks' imprisonment is imposed on motorists in Berlin, Germany, for infringements of the traffic code. This code defines what a road is, what length, breadth and weight of vehicles are permitted, and a motorist has to learn the meaning of 36 symbols which indicate one-way streets, two-way streets, those barred to certain sorts of traffic, and those closed to all traffic and where parking is allowed or pedestrians may cross, and so on.

Auto Deaths in England.

Upwards of 3000 persons were killed or injured every week on roads throughout England and Wales last year. In Scotland the rate was nearly 300 a week. There were 1237 killed and 54,461 injured in London in 1928. The total figures for Great Britain were: Killed, 6138; injured, 164,838. The total killed was higher than in 1927. Privately owned automobiles and taxicabs claimed the greatest number of victims.

COSTLY CAR BEAUTY AT AMAZINGLY LOW PRICE

HOW often you have heard people say, "That new Whippet Six Roadster is the best-looking car of the year!"

The entire line of new Superior Whippet Fours and Sixes is distinguished by such beauty of design and richness of color as have never before been associated with inexpensive cars.

And Whippet is a big car, too, with plenty of room for you to lean back, stretch out your legs and relax in absolute comfort.

Mechanically, no other low-priced car has so many important advantages—full force-feed lubrication, silent timing chain, big four-wheel brakes, extra long wheelbase, oversize balloon tires, invar-strut pistons, "Finger-Tip Control," higher compression engine giving more speed, pick-up and power—and, in the Six, a heavy seven-bearing crankshaft.

Only a demonstration can show what these features mean to you in performance, safety and comfort.

SCOUT DISTRICT COURT TO AWARD STAR BADGE

Change Made Because Semi-Annual Courts of Honor Are Crowded.

District Courts of Honor now are authorized to award Star badges to Boy Scout candidates eligible for this rank, Earle W. Beckman, Scout Executive of the St. Louis Boy Scout Council, has announced. Hitherto this badge, the lowest of the three "high honor" awards of Eagle, Life and Star Scout, was presented only by the City Court of Honor, which met twice a year.

The change in policy was caused by the large increase in the number of scouts qualifying for this honor in St. Louis, the total of candidates growing too great for the court to handle. Applications for the award, however, will be handled in the same manner as before, Beckman warned, it being necessary for the candidate to file his application at least two weeks before the session of the District Court he expects to attend.

This means all applications for the next Courts must be filed this week, as the May sessions will start May 20. The West District Court will convene on that night, followed by that of the South District May 21, the North May 22 and the Suburban May 23. The courts will be held in their regular halls, at the Missouri School for the Blind, the Ben Blewett Junior High School and Yeatman High School, with the exception of the Suburban District. This court will convene in the gymnasium of the Webster Groves Baptist Church instead of at the Webster Groves High School as usual.

The last Boards of Review for first-class applicants and candidates for the Pathfinding badge, will be held the week of May 13, as follows: South District, May 13, Fanning School; West, May 14, Clark School; Suburban, May 15, Webster High School; North, May 16, Farragut School.

Troop Notes

Headquarters Notes.

The regular meetings of the different classes of the St. Louis Scout Leaders' Training Course will be held tomorrow and Tuesday evenings, according to William Puffer, educational director of the St. Louis Boy Scout Council. The nature study course, under Dr. F. H. Staley will hold its third meeting, and the elementary leadership course will hold its eleventh class at the Michael school tomorrow, while the swimming class will conduct its ninth meeting at Principia pool Tuesday.

The Suburban District, with 22 recruits, outclassed the other three districts combined in the number of new scouts added last week, according to H. W. Moller of the registration department. The west and south districts each registered six new members, while the north district trailed with four. The new scouts with their troops are:

West district: Troop 6, George Bartling. Troop 7, Kirk Paulus. Troop 136, Richard Skobel, Frank Greenwood, Bruce Pyle and Isadore Friedman.

North district: Troop 195, Walter Horn and Gaines Wright Jr. Troop 206, William Russell. Troop 211, Hawthorne Scott.

South District: Troop 51, Francis Horack and William Kellty. Troop 123, Donald Burke. Troop 160, Ward McBrearty. Troop 219, Frank Hoffmann and John Temelcoff.

Suburban district: Troop Glendale 1, Ed. Guth, Allen Stewart, Miller Cooper, Harry Back and Lawrence Wood. Troop Home Heights 1, Guhther Kurth and Russell Grob. Troop Webster Groves 15, Richard Durgan, John Hanlon, Bill Murney, Paul Wehner, Joe Williams and Francis Meyers.

South District.

Troop 77, of the Tyler Place Presbyterian Church successfully guessed the only good Saturday in April for a hike to Fenton a week ago yesterday, but when the scouts arrived at the proposed camp site they discovered it was under several feet of water by reason of the overflow of the Meramec River. An adjacent field, used last year for the troop games, was covered with growing wheat. The troop therefore decided to move on to the scoutmaster's cabin at Diecke. After a program of tests, fire-building, cooking and games, followed by supper, a council fire was made. The council fire ceremonies were curtailed because of a threat of rain. Twenty-one scouts and Judge Pearcy, chairman of the Troop Committee, attended the hike.

BOY SCOUT JUNIOR OFFICERS TO CAMP

About 50 Will Leave Union Station Friday, to Return Sunday Morning.

The fifth annual encampment of the junior officers of St. Louis Boy Scout troops will be held in the Ranger Camp of the Irondale reservation, the official supper camp of the local scout organization, next Friday, Saturday and Sunday, according to William Puffer, educational director of the St. Louis Boy Scout Council. The camp will be limited to senior patrol leaders junior assistants, patrol leaders, assistant patrol leaders and scribes.

While in the nature of a training camp, the "training" is scheduled to be somewhat different from that in other years, Puffer said. It will be more in the nature of showing the junior officers games, projects and scouting methods suitable for patrols and troops, so he might take them back and introduce them into his own organization.

Mingled with the training will be a treasure hunt through the reservation woods, with prizes at the ends of trials for "treasure;" a cross-country relay requiring application of scout knowledge; patrol projects; patrol and individual contests, and stunts around the campfire at night. A district contest also is planned, in which scouts from each of the four districts will be matched against representatives from each of the others.

The campers will leave Union Station on a special train Friday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock and will return late Sunday evening. While at the camp, the scouts will be under the general supervision of Puffer, but actual direction will be in the hands of the district field executives.

While the patrol leaders are in the Ranger Camp, the cabins at the main camp will be occupied by teachers of the St. Louis public schools, on their regular spring encampment at the reservation. The scout organization has lent the camp to the teachers for several years each spring. The teachers will leave on the train with the scouts, and their camp will also be under the supervision of Puffer.

About 50 scouts are expected to attend the patrol leaders' camp, while more than 200 teachers are expected to be on their outing.

South District.

Troop 77, of the Tyler Place Presbyterian Church successfully guessed the only good Saturday in April for a hike to Fenton a week ago yesterday, but when the scouts arrived at the proposed camp site they discovered it was under several feet of water by reason of the overflow of the Meramec River. An adjacent field, used last year for the troop games, was covered with growing wheat. The troop therefore decided to move on to the scoutmaster's cabin at Diecke. After a program of tests, firebuilding, cooking and games, followed by supper, a council fire was made. The council fire ceremonies were curtailed because of a threat of rain. Twenty-one scouts and Judge Pearcy, chairman of the Treno Committee, attended the hike.

The winning patrol to represent the troop in the coming Camparall has been announced by Troop 160, of the Immanuel M. E. Church. The patrol is composed of Scouts H. Pfeiffer, patrol leader, Myers, Timmons, Burrman, R. Adelman, D. Hill, Farrer, F. Ecoff, Hassimer and Ehlers. Elimination contests for places on the patrol were close, and high scores were made by the winners. The patrol will start its final preparation for the Camparall by taking a nature study hike today. Troop 166 is planning to form a bugle corps.

Twelve scouts and Scoutmaster Marshall of Troop 167, of the Lafayette Park Presbyterian Church, hiked to Ferguson Heights last Sunday to pass tests, especially in nature study and cooking. The scoutmaster failed to pass the latter test, as he lost his steak on the way out.

Three hundred persons attended a flag presentation ceremony during which Troop 168 of St. Pius' Church received an American Flag from the Women's Relief Corps Circle No. 16, Wednesday. A staff, with an eagle, for the flag was presented by Committeeman Hamig and his sisters. After the presentation an investiture ceremony was held for three new tenderfoot scouts, Arthur Kouse, Vincent Eckholz and Godfrey Toti. Scout Francis Sohn received a wrist watch for winning an achievement contest that had been conducted by the troop during March and April. The watch was awarded by Father Maegher. Talks were made by the Rev. C. P. Maxwell, Field Scout Executive Shippey and Mrs. Zimmerman, president of the circle.

Twelve scouts of this troop have signed for Camp Irondale this summer. This is the largest camp registration from one troop in the South District at present.

Six new recruits received badges of tenderfoot rank, and four scouts second class badges at an investiture ceremony conducted by Troop 189, of the Shaw Avenue Methodist Church, last Monday evening. The new tenderfoot scouts are Carl Claypool, Bob Knox, Remy Stoffel, Phillip Finney, Roy Powell and John Snook, while those receiving second class badges are scouts Charles Parks, Bob Dunn, Eugene Hoy and Jerome Wallis. After the ceremonies each patrol presented humorous stunts. That of the Flying Eagle Patrol was adjudged best, and as a result it received an award—500 feet in an inter-patrol contest "race." Field Scout Executive Shippey spoke on camp.

North District.

Scout Herbert Vollberg has been made Senior Patrol Leader of Troop 3, which meets at Grace Holy Cross Church, and Scout Philip Bergsieher has become patrol leader of the Bob White patrol. Tests were passed by scouts of the troop on a hike to Ferguson last Sunday. Knot-typing and compass work were practiced at the regular meeting of the troop last week. The troop also voted to send the two patrol leaders to the Patrol Leaders' Camp at Irondale next week-end, and Scoutmaster Simons and his two assistants to the Scout Leaders' Camp May 24 to 26. Troop 3 will be 12 years old May 17.

Scout Bob Schober won a nature study contest held by Troop 19 of the Blair Howard School, at the meeting last week, Scouts Bud Speicher and George Stojan taking second and third places respectively. Scout Speicher also won a pioneering contest held the same night, with Scouts Bill Zengel and James McMaster placing second and third.

Sixteen scouts of Troop 206 of the Ames School, will receive service stars at the meeting this week, for continuous membership in the troop one year or more. Scoutmaster Herzog will receive a two-year star. Deputy Commissioner J. P. Simons of the North District was present at the meeting of the troop last week, and gave a short talk.

West District.

Scouts Victor Hermelin and Richard Shipley each turned in merit badge applications at the meeting of Troop 49, of the First Presbyterian Church, last week. Three other scouts passed tests. Drills were practiced, and the 25 scouts present at the meeting adjourned to the church lawn for games.

Scouts Hemker and Casey of the were immediately made to take the troop there on a hike. The troop is also planning a three-day camp at Scott Field, and another overnight hike. The overnight hike is scheduled for May 27 and 28.

Scouts Williams, Harris, and Hochstein of the troop recently completed their 14-mile hike test, starting and finishing at Scout Williams' home near Pattonville. Each of these scouts has five tests remaining before he can become a first class scout.

Suburban District.

The scouts of Troop Overland 1, Tiger patrol, Troop 113, went on an exploration hike in the county to discover a new camping ground for the troop. A site with plenty of dead wood for fires and water for swimming was found, and plans on their first overnight camp of the year, successfully weathered the wind and rain storm of a week ago last night. Through previous camping experience the tents were so strongly pitched and ditched that even the exceptionally heavy storm failed to cause any discomfort to the campers.

The scouts of Troop Webster Groves 10 of the Protestant Orphans' Home were ushers at a play given by the Webster Groves Theater Guild Wednesday and Thursday evenings. A hike in preparation for the coming Camparall was taken to Marshall Springs yesterday afternoon and evening.

Scout F. Selinger had been appointed Senior Patrol Leader of Troop Webster Groves 15 of the Webster Groves Council, Knights of Columbus. Thirty scouts in uniform and 100 members of the council attended mass together last Sunday in celebration of the anniversary of the troop.

Oldsmobile Viking Factories Report Record Shipments

LANSING, Mich., May 4.—During the first four months of 1929 all previous records for the manufacture and shipment of Oldsmobiles were broken. During that period more Oldsmobiles were shipped from the factories here than during all of 1925. In addition more than 1000 Vikings, the new V-type, eight-cylinder companion car to Oldsmobile, were delivered to dealers.

Total shipments of Oldsmobiles and Vikings from Jan. 1 to April 30 this year were 45,194, slightly more than 2000 above total shipments in 1925.

March shipments totaled approximately 14,900 Oldsmobiles and Vikings, as compared to 11,088 cars shipped during the same month a year ago, an increase of more than 34 per cent. The increase in shipments in the first four months of this year over those for the same months in 1928 was more than 67 per cent.

Oldsmobile-Viking officials report that the manufacturing schedules for May call for more than 17,000 cars, of which approximately 3000 are to be Vikings and the remainder Oldsmobiles. This production figure compares with 11,716 Oldsmobiles manufactured and shipped in May, 1928.

The large increases being recorded have been made possible by the continued public favor accorded the Oldsmobile six, which has been extended to the new Viking since its announcement three weeks ago, and to the enlarged manufacturing facilities afforded by the new buildings constructed during the past year.

Factory officials announce that Oldsmobile-Viking dealers in every section of the country are reporting the largest demand for cars ever experienced. In many instances dealers are requesting that their previous orders be increased and this is being done as rapidly as production can be stepped up.

While Oldsmobile officials have shown a strong reluctance to issuing forecasts, they have expressed their belief that 1929 will see new records established in the automotive industry. This, undoubtedly, will be true of their company, as is shown by the phenomenal gains made during the first four months of the year.

Association Urges Gas Tax Opposition

WASHINGTON, May 4.—Motorists of the United States should unite in opposition to further increases in gasoline taxes, the American Motorists' Association believes. In a statement issued here today, the association declared that active opposition alone can prevent such taxes from increasing to half of the average filling station price. It is pointed out that 25 per cent of the filling station price, on an average, represents an assessment for taxation purposes.

Dodge Shows Gain Of 77 Per Cent in Truck Deliveries

Registering a gain of 77 per cent in shipments of commercial cars and trucks for March compared to February, the truck division of Dodge Bros. is increasing production facilities to meet the record breaking demand from domestic and foreign markets. In carrying out this production schedule, a record of seven months' standing was broken with the shipment of 331 trucks on March 30, exceeding any single day since Aug. 22, 1928. The export of 1735 units set an all time record for March shipments to foreign markets.

"The rapid construction of paved roads and wide highways, and the manufacturing facilities to build trucks particularly adapted to every line of business are awakening executives to the possibilities of motor transportation never dreamed of before," said Howard E. Sneathen, director of Dodge Bros. truck sales. "Operators of truck fleets are finding expansion profitable and necessary in a competitive market that demands economy, speed and dependability in transportation.

"Six cylinder engines, four-wheel brakes and four speed transmissions on the heavier types of Dodge trucks provide speed and safety necessary for the most economical distribution of merchandise, whether it be on the country highways or congested city streets.

"The 51 types of trucks built by Dodge Bros. represent five capacities ranging from the light delivery merchants express type to the heavy duty three-ton truck, and meet the requirements of 96 per cent of all transportation. Hundreds of different truck types can be furnished from these capacities and types by varying equipment, and enable teh company to offer the most extensive truck line in the industry."

For the Notebook.

Poor line voltage control shortens the life of tubes.

Damp weather sometimes causes poor contact in volume controls, producing noisy reception.

A power line filter, placed in the wire carrying lighting current to the set, may help when troubled with a rushing or hissing sound.

There are 67 sources of preventable noise in a moderately sized town to interfere with radio reception. Faulty street car wires, short circuits, defective switches and power plants out of order are the principal offenders.

Antenna for Good Reception.

A "straightaway" antenna erected in a clear space is best for reception. Long antenna wires lose much effectiveness if doubled up or placed so they circle around a room or series of rooms.

ON KWK TONIGHT

EARLE LAROS, pianist, who will play in the Baldwin concert over KWK tonight.

Organ Recital on WLW Tomorrow

An organ recital will be played by Charles Melvin Gillick over WLW, at 2 p. m. today. The program includes Chopin's "Military Polonaise," "Souvenir" (Drdla); "Salut d'Amour" (Engar); excerpts from "Scheherezade," suite Rimsky-Korsakoff; "Norwegian Dance" (Grieg), and Dvorak's "Humoresque".

Concert on WGN at 1:55 p. m.

Jean Goldkette and his dance orchestra will play a half hour concert over WGN at 1:55 this afternoon.

Hoover's Speech On All Chains Memorial Day

President Hoover's Memorial day message will be broadcast on May 30 over all the networks as he speaks in Arlington Amphitheater beside the tomb of the Unknown Soldier of the World War.

The entire proceedings of the solemn memorial service by the Grand Army of the Republic in the historic Virginia bowl will be put on the air.

With President Hoover as the principal speaker, the ceremonies will include reading of Lincoln's Gettysburg address by Capt. John M. Kline; music by the U. S. Marine Band, talks by Senator Porter H. Dale of Vermont, and Dr Thomas E. Green of the Loyal Legion, presentation of colors, and reading of Gen. Logan's order establishing Memorial day.

"There Is No Death," the song associated since the World War with memorial services throughout the country, will be sun by Miss Jeanett McCaffrey, accompanied by the Marine Band. Rosea B. Moulton, past commander of the G. A. R., will preside.

Jack Little on Air Five Years.

Little Jack Little began broadcasting over WBAP, Fort Worth, five years ago. Since then he has played the piano at more than 200 stations.

Little, English born, became an American at 5. The navy, during the war, assigned him to the piano when he enlisted for submarine duty. Afterward he played in vaudeville, in orchestras and any way to get the "coffee and." Finally he became a "song plugger" in New York. Five years of that, then back to vaudeville and finally radio. His song compositions include "Jealous," "Because They All Love You" and "It All Depends on You."

Two Stations Given 50,000 Watt Permits

Possibly the most important radio development of the week waas the granting of 50,000 watt construction permits to WTAM, Cleveland, O., and WBAP, Fort Worth, Tex. As in the case of other 50,000 watt stations, including WGY, WEAF, WJZ, KDKA, WTIO and WLW, the Radio Commission licenses the two new super power transmitters to use 25,000 watts power in regular broadcasting hours and an additional 25,000 watts late at night and early in the morning.

WBAP and WTAM's new licenses authorize them to continue on their present cleared waves, 800 kc. in the case of the Texas station and 1070 kc. in the case of WTAM.

WBAP is now using 10,000 watts on 800 kc. which it shares with KTHS, Hot Springs, Ark., another 10,000 watt transmitter. WBAP has been seeking a rearrangement of schedules that will permit it to share time with another Dallas station, which shares time on a national channel.

PICCUP TYPE

Of special interest to listeners in Kansas and Western Missouri is the refusal of the Radio Commission to renew the license of WHB, Kansas City, a pioneer station owned by Emory J. Sweeney.

The owner took the station off the air on receiving the commission's order, but protested and said that a rehearing would be requested. Refusal to renew the license was based on the assertion that ownership of the station had been transferred without authorization. Sweeney, who operates an automobile school, declared that the school still held title to the station despite a mortgage foreclosure action.

Eleven Famous Artists in KSD Concert Tonight

Wagner and Tschaikowsky will be played by the Chicago Symphony Orchestra over KSD from 5 to 6 o'clock. Eric DeLamarter will conduct in the absence of Dr. Frederick Stock.

A favorite, the Overture to Thomas' "Mignon," will open this hour of great music. The overture has a pastoral opening, then follows the famous air, "Dost Thou Know the Land Where the Citres Blooms," the best known part of the opera. The air comes to a sudden termination, and the whole of the famous polonaise is given in brilliant fashion, and the overture is brought to a close with the usual classical allegro.

From the score of the famous Russian composer, Rimsky-Korsakoff's "Scheherazade" suite, the orchestra will play the second section. It relates the tale of the love of a young prince and princess, and is based on an ancient Caucasian melody which the composer has presented in supposedly typical Caucasian style. Sadness and the bizarre mingle in this delicately magical music.

As their third number, the orchestra will play the Scherzo from Mendelssohn's music for "A Midsummer Night's Dream." The scherzo was written to be played between the first and second acts of the Shakspeare's play, and is used to introduce the unearthly settings of the scenes in the woods.

Franz Schubert wrote the two scores that will be heard as the fourth number. The first is the "Serenade," which was originally scored as a song with piano accompaniment. The second is the perennial favorite, appropriately named "Moment Musicale."

Two weeks ago the Chicago Symphony Orchestra played part of the music from Wagner's "Tristan and Isolde." Tonight they will play his "Dreams," or "Dreams of Love," which is really a study to "Tristan and Isolde," for he employed this material in the second act of his immortal opera.

The final number will be Tschaikowsky's "Marche Slave." This is intensely dramatic, employing an old Serbian folk song which has also been strikingly used by Cui in his popular "Orientale." Use of the Russian national hymn makes an effective climax.

Clyde Doerr, saxophone player, is to be featured in the concert by Maj. Bowes' Capitol Family over KSD from 6 to 7 o'clock.

Some months ago Doerr played his own "Technicality," written for alto saxophone and piano. It was a syncopated melodic composition of extreme technical difficulty. He has received so many requests for a repetition that he will include it in his solos tonight.

Doerr is an accomplished musician, playing several instruments, including piano, violin, clarinet and saxophone. He has made a thorough study of orchestration and composition and is entitled to credit a B. M. degree for violin technique. He is a composer of note for the saxophone. Among his numbers for this instrument are "Valse Hilda," "Valse Chromatique," "Jeunesse," the latter one of the most difficult ever written for this instrument.

He first went to New York with Art Hickman, and later joined the Ziegfeld "Follies." After returning to the Pacific Coast for a year, he went to New York and organized his own orchestra for the Club Royale. Then his radio career started. He was director of a saxophone octet which became one of the most popular radio units.

David Lawrence will give his usual talk on "Our Government" from 7 to 7:15 over KSD.

All of the artists who are to sing in the Atwater Kent Hour, from 7:15 to 8:15, have been heard, some of them frequently, in these Sunday night concerts over KSD. Tonight, in addition to the musical numbers, there will be brief talks by A. Atwater Kent and Charles M. Tremaine, secretary of the committee sponsoring the National Music Week which this concert is planned to inaugurate.

The two artists who have been heard most often in Atwater Kent concerts are Allen McQuhae, who sang an entire summer series of 21 recitals, and Reinald Werrenrath. The orchestra directed by Josef Pasternack, which will assist tonight, has played every Sunday evening since it was organized last fall.

American Grand Opera Over KSD Tomorrow Night

The American grand opera, "Cleopatra's Night," with Henry Hadley, the composer, conducting, will be presented by the National Broadcasting Co. as a special feature of National Music Week over KSD and allied stations at 10 o'clock, tomorrow night.

The roles of Cleopatra and Marc Antony will be sung by Astrid Fjelde, soprano, and Walter Preston, baritone, in a special 90-minute version of the opera.

Experiment in Synchronizing by WCAU and WABC

While most radio engineers remain skeptical about synchronization, the Federal Radio Commission continues inclined to encourage experimentation in an effort to find some way by which a number of stations can use the same channel and not interfere. WCAU, Philadelphia, is to atttempt synchronized operation with WABC, New York, main key station of the Columbia chain.

The tests await completion of matched control crystals for the two stations. It is planned to use the 860-kc. channel and to conduct the tests between midnight and 2 a. m., Eastern time, which will be 11 p. m. to 1 a. m., St. Louis time. WCAU will use 10,000 watts power and WABC, 5000 watts.

Dr. Leon Levy of WCAU says that if the tests are successful, his organization will prepare to put into effect some elaborate plans.

This will be the first atttempt to synchronize two such powerful stations located so near together.

Separation of European radio stations by four to 10 kilocycles and division of them on a total of 129 wave lengths has been decided on as a result of the radio conference held in Prague last month. There are 267 stations to be cared for, and of these several in Russia are of 75,000 watts power and one under construction in Prague is planned to develop 120,000 watts. At present, interference is far worse for European listeners than it ever has been in this country.

Plans for exchange of programs between this country and England and France have been advanced through the visit of M. H. Aylesworth, president of the National Broadcasting Co., to Europe. Short wave stations will be relied on. It is probable that the power rating of 5SW, the short wave station at Chelmsford, England, which rebroadcasts programs from 2LP, London, will be increased, and that a powerful French short wave station will be built especially for this purpose.

Medal Award to Alfred E. Smith Broadcast Tonight

The awarding of the Laetare medal for 1929 to Alfred E. Smith will be broadcast over a National Broadcasting Co. chain headed by WJZ at 7:15 tonight. This annual recognition of a distinguished Catholic layman will be made by Patrick Cardinal Hayes and the Rev. Charles L. O'Donnell, president of Notre Dame University. Cardinal Hayes will make the award, followed by Smith's speech of acceptance.

The Laetare medal is awarded each year by a committee of Notre Dame faculty members to an American Catholic layman who has achieved distinction in his field of special endeavor. The award was created in 1883. Chief Justice Edward Douglas White, Attorney-General Charles J. Bonaparte, Gen. William S. Rosecrans and Admiral William Benson have been among those honored.

'The Highwayman' On KSD Saturday

A musical setting by Deems Taylor of Alfred Noyes' poem, "The Highwayman," is to be broadcast by the Salon Singers over KSD next Saturday night, with Edward Wolter, baritone, known to most listeners, as the romantic bandit.

New WIL Organ on Air For First Time Today

A special program dedicating the new pipe organ installed in the studios of WIL is to be a feature over that station today, according to William Ellsworth, director.

The new organ is to be heard for the first time over the air in a program beginning at 1:45 this afternoon, but the special organ recital is set for 10 o'clock tonight when it is hoped that an organist known to most listeners will be available.

This organ was built especially for broadcasting, and is of the three-manual type. Installation has been under way for three weeks.

Jerry Cammack, staff pianist for WIL and well known as a theater organist, probably will play the new organ during the afternoon.

The 1:45 concert over WIL today will bring a program of chamber music by a violin quartet, whose members are Arthur Baron, first violin; David Solomon, second violin; Max Gottschalk, viola and director, and Igor Gesser, 'cellist.

Their program is announced as follows: "Moment Musicale" (Schubert), "Intermezzo-Serenade" (Lalo), "Andante Cantabile," (Tschaikowsky), "Orientale" (Glazounoff), and "Fondo Alla Rococo," as a solo by Max Gottschalk.

A concert by the WIL woodwind ensemble is scheduled for 5 o'clock this afternoon.

George E. Muskins, known to St. Louis listeners as "the Dutch tenor," is to sing in a concert over WIL at 5:30 this afternoon. Muskins has appeared in numerous recitals in St. Louis and is soloist at the New Cathedral. He is to sing several operatic arias. He recently returned from New York. Muskins is a veteran radio artist, having sung over KSD when that station was first established by the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Josef Fencl, young St. Louis pianist, is to play on this program.

WIL's contribution to the observance of National Music Week, beginning today, is a Spanish program, to be broadcast at 7 o'clock tonight.

The program is to commemorate the victory of the Mexican armies under Generals Ignacio Zaragoza and Miguel Negrete at the Battle of Puebla, in the State of Puebla, Mexico, on May 5, 1862, against the French forces under Gen. Laurencez.

The program follows:

KMOX to Import Paul Whiteman For Free Show

Paul Whiteman and his orchestra will be brought to St. Louis by KMOX on May 31 as headliner of a free program to be given at the Washington University Field House, in observance of the 125th anniversary of the Lewis and Clark expedition.

Whiteman will give an hour's concert, from 9 until 10 o'clock, and the Whiteman feature will be preceded by the "KMOX Radio Revue," comprising 27 acts presented by 65 KMOX staff entertainers.

The Field House was decided on for the entertainment because it seats 7000, and the bleachers adjoining will accommodate an overflow crowd of 9000, making available a total of 16,000 seats. Those in the bleachers will hear the show through speakers, after the fashion of the "public address" system. It may be arranged to have the KMOX staff entertainers appear before the overflow crowd after appearing in the Field House. If such a plan is worked out, Whiteman will play half an hour in the Field House and the other half hour on the field.

The show will not be broadcast.

Final Concert By Flonzaleys On KSD Tuesday

The Flonzaley Quartet has chosen radio as the medium to say farewell to America and to the world next Tuesday night. The internationally famous organization is to broadcast its last concert before disbanding over KSD in the Eveready Hour.

Nicholas Longworth, Speaker of the House of Representatives, is to speak briefly during the concert. Longworth, like countless other music lovers, has followed the progress of the "famous four" since the first concert 25 years ago.

Walter Damrosch also will make a brief address of farewell to the quartet.

Although the Flonzaley Quartet was organized in Europe, its founder was an American and the quartet made most of its career on this side of the Atlantic. Its dissolution will leave a void in the musical world.

The decision to terminate the career of the great string quartet is due to the arduous travel necessary to play an average of 100 concerts a season.

The history of the Flonzaley Quartet is closely interwoven with that of chamber music in this country. Formed in 1903 by Edward J. de Coppet, an American banker of Swiss parentage, the quartet first spent an entire year in study. The first contract was signed at de Coppet's summer home in Switzerland, near Lausanne. The word Flonzaley, a combination of Italian and old French, means brooklet.

Beginning its public career in 1905 with three concerts in New York and Boston, the quartet's appeal has been instant and widespread. During 25 years the organization has built up an enormous and enthusiastic following.

Members of the quartet are Adolfo Betti, first violin; Alfred Pochon, second violin; Nicolas Moldavan, viola and Iwan D'Archambeau, violoncello.

The history of the Flonzaley Quartet is closely interwoven with that of chamber music in this country. Formed in 1903 by Edward J. de Coppet, an American banker of Swiss parentage, the quartet first spent an entire year in study. In 1904, the first contract was signed at de Coppet's summer home in Switzerland, near Lausanne. The word Flonzaley, a combination of Italian and old French, means brooklet.

Beginning its public career in 1905 with three concerts in New York and Boston, the quartet's appeal was instant and widespread. During 25 years the organization has built up an enormous and enthusiastic following.

© KESSLERE, NY

Committee Named For Singing Contest

United States Senator Harry B. Hawes and Mayor Albert I. Beach of Kansas City have accepted places on the Sponsorship Committee of the 1929 Atwater Kent radio audition in Missouri, according to Mrs. Frederick Nussbaum of St. Louis, State chairman. Others who have accepted membership on the committee include F. W. A. Vesper, former Mayor Kiel, Mrs. Thomas G. Ratcliffe, Mrs. Charles Wiggins and Mrs. M. A. Goldstein, all of St. Louis, and Mrs. Frederick C. Shaw of Kansas City.

Special 2-Hour WENR Feature At 9 A. M. Today

An orchestra directed by Morgan L. Eastman; a trained choir of 100 voices, led by Dr. Daniel Protheroe, and a sermon on Joan of Arc by Dr. Frederick F. Shannon, noted Chicago divine, may be heard over WENR, the 50,000-watt Chicago station, this morning, starting at 9 o'clock and lasting for two hours.

Dr. Shannon is pastor of the Central Church of Chicago, services of which are held each Sunday in Orchestra Hall.

The service will have as a prelude an hour of music by the orchestra, which will play in the studios of WENR. Symphonic music is to be so arranged as to weave into a musical mosaic the spirit of France. Most of the compositions will be by French composers. Among them will be the "Maximilian Robespierre" overture by Henry Litolff. Solos, which will include the "Marseillaise" and other French songs and arias, will be given by a selected group of singers.

The choir will present a program with pipe organ accompaniment and selected soloists. This will be followed by the service and Dr. Shannon's sermon.

Ten Episode Play on KGO.

Although radio drama critics were not warm in praise of "The Tocsin of Tambou," radio serial thriller given over KGO last year, listeners gave it such a hearty reception that KGO is now presenting "The Unseen Hand," a 10-episode play.

Sousa Concert Tomorrow His First by Radio

Tomorrow night's concert over KSD and allied NBC stations by John Philip Sousa and his band will be the first of nine weekly Monday night broadcasts by famous bandmaster and composer in General Motors hours.

Martha Atwood, prima donna soprano of the Metropolitan Opera, is to be soloist with Sousa's Band tomorrow night. She was a favorite with American soldiers in the World War, and was chosen by the American Legion as soloist for its Paris convention of two years ago and again for the San Antonio convention.

"Until now I have steadfastly refused to broadcast," says Sousa, "because I have always felt that part of my success as a band leader has been something in my personality. I have thought that people wanted to see me and my band as well as hear us. I cannot, however, ignore the demand to hear us on the air. I have received at least 10,000 letters asking me to broadcast.

"I have, therefore, finally concluded that the people want to hear us, and that it would be foolish to fail to utilize this great, modern invention, which makes it possible for millions instead of a few thousand to listen to a concert. I am happy in the decision and am looking forward with enthusiasm to what I believe will be another thrilling adventure."

For 36 years Sousa has taken his bandmen on tour, and always with tremendous success. He predicts that within 15 years America will lead the world in every branch of music.

Sousa began his career as a violinist. He went on the road with theatrical and operatic companies, then in 1880 was notified that he had been appointed head of the U. S. Marine Corps Band.

"I had rather looked down on bands, being a fiddler," he says. "But it wasn't long before I realized that the band had great possibilities. I decided to develop them."

Seeks to Curb Advertising in Radio Programs

Concerned over excessive advertising in some radio programs, the Radio Manufacturers' Association, comprising virtually all prominent makers of radio products, is to seek to reduce "excessive commercialism."

Greater public enjoyment of radio and greater returns to advertisers sponsoring broadcast programs are the objects of the RMA. Resolutions deploring excessive commercialism in announcements of broadcasts have been adopted unanimously by the RMA board of directors.

The RMA resolutions urged that commercial broadcasters confine announcements to the names of sponsors and brief statements of products marketed, without details or other advertising matter.

Blue Haze in Tubes.

The blue glow in some tubes is caused by gas in the bulb. Freed gas molecules, when the tube is in operation, collide with the passing electric current, freeing ions, which make the space of the tube to glow. Such a tube generally operates erratically in the set.

Roxy Symphony Concert Scheduled Over KWK

National Religious Service Also Listed—Earle Lares, Pianist, to Be Soloist in Baldwin Concert.

KWK is making two important changes in its schedule for broadcasting NBC programs from New York today. In the first place, it will put the Roxy symphony concert on the air at 12 o'clock noon. These Sunday afternoon symphony concerts by the big orchestra at Roxy's Theater, conducted by Erno Rapee, have won great popularity among listeners in the East. A few weeks ago KWK was able to broadcast a single Roxy concert because of a temporary break in local programs that were being broadcast under contract. As the St. Louis broadcast situation is now, this Roxy concert will be the only one of symphonic music today until the Chicago Symphony Orchestra's concert at 5 o'clock on another St. Louis station.

The second change is KWK's schedule for today will bring the National Religious service at 3:30 o'clock with an address by the Rev. Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick.

"Gather Ye Rosebuds While Ye May," the melody written by William Lawes, chamber musician for King Charles I to the poem of Robert Herrick, is to be sung in the McKinney Musicians concert at 2:30 over KWK. It will be a feature of an atmospheric program designed to recall the days of the Cavaliers and the House of Stuart. Music programmed follows:

More music inspired by the Orient is to be played by the Whittal Anglo-Persians in their broadcast at 4:30 over KWK, provided the baseball game ends in time. The program:

Dall' Oriente ..................Labate
Anitra's Dream, from "Peer Gynt" Suite ........................Grieg

Earle Laros, pianist, who is to play in the Baldwin recital at 5:30 over KWK, was born in Pennsylvania and made his first public appearance at the age of 11. He studied for seven years with Raphael Joseffy, and subsequently won a scholarship admitting him to a master class Feruccio was conducting at Basle, Switzerland. He has at his command a repertoire of standard and modern concert and recital programs ranging through all schools from the sixteenth century.

Laros has appeared with the New Symphony Orchestra, the New York Philharmonic, the Philadelphia Orchestra, and the Cincinnati and Volpe Symphonies. He was the first instrumentalist engaged for the Bach Festival at Bethlehem, Pa. He is organizer and conductor of the Easton (Pa.) Symphony Orchestra.

Following is the program for the Enna Jettick Melodies broadcast at 6 o'clock over KWK:

Nearer, My God, to Thee.

The usual Collier's Hour is scheduled over KWK at 6:15.

King Nana Amoah III, a chieftain who reigns over 91,000 square miles of the British Gold Coast in West Africa, is to appear with the Utica Jubilee Singers at 7:15 over KWK.

The beating of tom-toms and the primitive fury of native music, as executed by a group of Nigerian tribesmen, is planned to fix the mood for a talk by the chieftain on native customs. He will tell how many wives his fellow countrymen can legally have, and what laws govern the several hundred thousand souls over whom he rules. Descent among his people is traced through the mother, and his authority will some day pass to the oldest son of a sister. He will also describe the code system which enables his people to signal as far as 25 miles by means of tom-toms.

An El Tango Romantico concert is scheduled for 7:45 o'clock.

Radio slot machines are now operated in hotels in London, England. A penny puts the listener in tune for five minutes.

Explorer to Tell Strange Tale of Africa Over KWK

A tale of barbaric fanaticism in the wilds of Rhodesia, involving "Thomas, Son of God," who drove his converts to suicide by glib promises of a "white man's paradise," will be told over KWK at 8 o'clock next Thursday night.

The narrator will be Capt. Carl Von Hoffman, explorer and lecturer, who encountered Thomas, the self-appointed Negro messiah, on one of his African trips. Thomas combined religion with business, charging a fee for the immersions which he said would entitle his disciples to a glorious after-life. As a result of his meetings, more than 200 natives attempted to realize on their investment by committing suicide.

Capt. Von Hoffman ran away from the Military Academy at St. Petersburg at the age of 14, to fight in the Russo-Japanese War. He was wounded, promoted, and decorated with the Order of the Knight of St. George for conspicuous gallantry. He came to America and became a movie cameraman. He made the first complete motion-picture records of naval maneuvers for the American fleet in 1912. In 1917, he became a first lieutenant in the aviation section of the United States Army signal corps, and in 1918 again crossed the Pacific to fight in Siberia as a captain in the White Russian army.

His hobby for ethnological research first took him to Africa. He led one of the first expeditions from Cairo to Cape Town.

KMOX Saturday Night Concert.

Mrs. Frederick Nussbaum, general chairman of Music week, will conduct a Music week program over KMOX from 7 to 8 o'clock next Saturday night. The program will be comprised of classical numbers by the Mel-Harmonic Trio; a duet by Emmerson Brown, baritone, and Walter Newman, tenor; several solos by Newman; selections from Verdi's operas by Annette Schudmak; the "Indain Love Call," sung by Margaret Durnin; "Sweetheart, A Voice Is Calling," sung by Ruth Ball, and a piano duet by Louise Bermens and Kathlyn Simpkins.

Testing Battery.

If, when testing the battery with a hydrometer, one cell shows considerably less strength than the others, say 50 points off, inspect the case for leaks. Such a reading indicates the need for expert attention.

Explorer to Tell Strange Tale of Africa Over KWK

A tale of barbaric fanaticism in the wilds of Rhodesia, involving "Thomas, Son of God," who drove his converts to suicide by glib promises of a "white man's paradise," will be told over KWK at 5 o'clock next Thursday night.

The narrator will be Capt. Carl Von Hoffman, explorer and lecturer, who encountered Thomas, the self-appointed Negro messiah, on one of his African trips. Thomas combined religion with business, charging a fee for the immersions which he said would entitle his disciples to a glorious after-life. As a result of his meetings, more than 200 natives attempted to realize on their investment by committing suicide.

Capt. Von Hoffman ran away from the Military Academy at St. Petersburg at the age of 14, to fight in the Russo-Japanese War. He was wounded, promoted, and decorated with the Order of the Knight of St. George for conspicuous gallantry. He came to America and became a movie cameraman. He made the first complete motion-picture records of naval maneuvers for the American fleet in 1912. In 1917, he became a first lieutenant in the aviation section of the United States Army signal corps, and in 1918 again crossed the Pacific to fight in Siberia as a captain in the White Russian army.

KMOX Saturday Night Concert.

Mrs. Frederick Nussbaum, general chairman of Music week, will conduct a Music week program over KMOX from 7 to 8 o'clock next Saturday night. The program will be comprised of classical numbers by the Mel-Harmonic Trio; a duet by Emmerson Brown, baritone, and Walter Newman, tenor; several solos by Newman; selections from Verdi's operas by Annette Schudmak; the "Indain Love Call," sung by Margaret Durnin; "Sweetheart, A Voice Is Calling," sung by Ruth Ball, and a piano duet by Louise Bermens and Kathlyn Simpkins.

Testing Battery.

If, when testing the battery with a hydrometer, one cell shows considerably less strength than the others, say 50 points off, inspect the case for leaks. Such a reading indicates the need for expert attention.

Radio Trade Notes

A wholly new Atwater Kent receiver, which uses two of the new AC screen grid tubes in the R. F. stages and two of the new 245 super-power tubes in a final push-pull audio stage, has just reached St. Louis. Unusual quality of reproduction, selectivity, distance reach and humless operation are claimed for this new set, which is to be known as the model 55.

An innovation in Atwater Kent receivers is substitution of an illuminated dial tuning control for the old type of dial mounted on the front of the panel. This tuning control works instantly, smoothly and without any backlash whatever, and permits the closest sort of tuning for "DX." It is marked in standard fashion from 0 to 100 and also in kilocycles.

The new model uses two of the AC screen grid tubes, which give very high amplification as compared with ordinary tubes; 227 detector tube, a 227 in the first audio stage, two 245 power tubes in the last audio stage and a 280 rectifier tube.

The coils and screen grid tubes are thoroughly shielded. The chassis is solidly built of aluminum and is so arranged that every part is accessible from the bottom for easy servicing.

There is a switch for local or distance reception.

Dealers tetsting the new sets in St. Louis have found that a 25-foot inside aerial is sufficient for distance reception, and one considerably shorter is plenty long enough for house-filling volume.

The model 55 comes in table and furniture types, the latter with built-in electro dynamic speaker. The table type is in black, with mandarin red or jade green inset on the top.

The chassis is obtainable for installation in special cabinets designed by 19 leading furniture manufacturers for Atwater Kent receivers.

A new Sonatron 227 AC type tube is said to heat instantaneously. A new filament is used, which is said to heat as soon as an electric current passes through it and also to give longer tube life. The new Sonatron factory in Chicago, which is said to have a capacity of 40,000 a day, is to be in full production by the end of this month.

A new line of receivers and speakers developed by Temple, Inc., Chicago, is to be distributed in the St. Louis territory by the Universal Cabinet Co., which also distributes La Salle tubes and makes radio cabinets. Temple, Inc., some time ago acquired the Sleeper Radio Corporation and its RCA licenses. Production of 100,000 receivers is planned for the fiscal year. The Temple plant plans a working force of 1000 by July and 2000 soon thereafter.

The Barrett Electrical Supply Co. has been appointed distributer of A. C. Dayton receivers. This set, known as "The Navigator," use the Technidyne circuit and has nine tubes, including two of the new 245 super power tubes in push pull in the final audio stage, six 227 heater type tubes and a 280 rectifier. There are two table models, four console types and a radio-phonograph combination in the new Dayton line. The Technidyne circuit gives unusual sensitivity and selectivity and at the same time lets the overtones through to the speaker.

A new Polymet mica condenser has two insulated mounting holes, so that it can be mounted on a metal panel. It is made in values up to .006 mfd.

The automatic tuning feature has been extended to lower priced models of the Zenith receiver line. A new receiver, the Model 42, has a special screen grid tube circuit, built-in dynamic speaker, automatic tuning and shielded chassis. It uses eight tubes, including rectifier.

Unusual sensitivity is said to be obtained through a separate control which also serves as a switch and volume control. Selectivity, capable of cutting through local stations, is obtained through another control on the right. Transformers and audio circuits of special design work into true-dynamic speaker. A patented switch and connection are provided for phonograph pick-up.

Automatic tuning is concealed in the upper right of the cabinet, which is a low-boy, of American walnut woods.

Prof. R. A. Fessenden, an internationally known engineer and inventor, has joined the special research division of the Grigsby-Grunow Co., maker of Majestic receivers. He won fame with his wireless communications work as far back as 1898, and is credited with having been the first to transmit speech across the Atlantic Ocean, in 1906. It is understood that he will specialize on television development.

Recently Prof. Fessenden said that "it will be possible to point a radio camera, connected to an aerial at the steps of the Capitol in Washington, and enable every radio subscriber actually to see Senators at debate in Congress. Every gesture will be visible and, in addition, the speech will be heard by radio telephone.

With the experimental instrument already constructed, the size of the picture is limited to 4 feet by 4 feet on a screen 12 feet distant or 4 inches by 4 inches on a screen 12 inches distant. The course grain of the image at a distance of 12 inches corresponds to the 50-dot-per-inch process plate photo'."

Formation of the Radio-Victor Corporation of America, a wholly owned subsidiary of the Radio Corporation of America, is announced by Gen. James G. Harbord, president of R. C. A. The new company will take over the sale activities of the Radio Corporation of America and the Victor Talking Machine Co.

On the Board of Directors are representatives of General Electric, Westinghouse and the Radio Corporation. They include H. P. Davis, Gen. Harbord, J. L. Ray, Andrew W. Robertson, David Sarnoff, Edward E. Shumaker, Gerard Swope and Owen D. Young.

"The world-wide sales organizations of Victor and the Radio Corporation," said Gen. Harbord, "will be brought together under one management. The personnel of both will be retained."

The unified laboratroy, factory and sales facilities of the new company will result in a more complete service to the trade and to the public, according to J. L. Ray, who will head the Radio-Victor Corporation.

Ray said that the Radio-Victor Corporation would market this year a number of new models of radio sets and talking machines, with both the Victor and RCA trademarks, developed in the laboratories of the two organizations, and embodying radically new principles of design.

Cleaning a Crystal.

A piece of crystal used as detector in a set can be "livened" by cleaning. This should be done with a clean brush of fine texture dipped in alcohol, carbona or benzol. This will remove the film of dust or dirt. The crystal should not be handled with the bare fingers after cleaning.

Just as Gar Wood in Miss America VII did the seemingly impossible, with a record of 94 miles an hour—just so Stewart-Warner has done the thingthat "couldn't be done" in shattering all previous standards of radio performance.

They said it couldn't be done
—and then came
THE NEW
STEWART-WARNER
RADIO

"You've got to sacrifice one thing or the other," they told us. "You can't have clearness and volume and distance, all in the same radio set. You've got to sacrifice something." But Stewart-Warner went ahead without regard to anything that had ever been done before.

They developed an entirely new circuit. A "balanced bridge" circuit utilizing the most powerful tube equipment known to modern radio—two new UX-245 power tubes in "push-pull" with five 227 heater type tubes.

The result is a set that provides tremendous volume. Without distortion. With amazing realism of tone. And extreme distance-getting ability. Performance beyond anything you have ever listened to. Beauty that will give you a genuine thrill. Modern!—even to plug-in connection for Television.

It couldn't be done. But here it is—the new Stewart-Warner—"The Set with the Punch"—the punch that knocks out all former standards of radio reception. The punch that brings distant stations booming in with unmatched realism of tone.

Nothing less than a full demonstration can give you a real appreciation of this modern, 5-years-ahead Stewart-Warner Champion. See the Stewart-Warner dealer today. Small initial payment puts the Stewart-Warner in your home.

REO FLYING CLOUD

Car of the Month

Dreams of long ago and visions of tomorrow. Those idyllic days when the horizon was the world, when simplicity governed amusements and modes of living, are gone. ~ ~ ~

How, then, shall we temper the conditions of this fast-moving, breathless-living age of transportation?

Let Reo Car of the Month help you to recreate, in a measure, the safety, ease and beauty that was once a characteristic of American life.

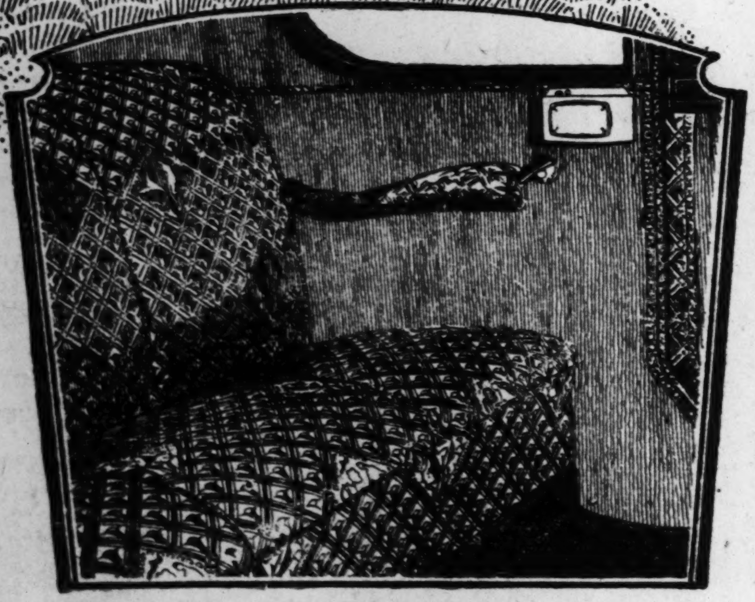
From the women of America comes an insistence for more individual expression in motor car decoration. Reo Car of the Month was designed especially to satisfy that urge.

There is a protest from car-tired, jangling nerves. Reo Flying Cloud smoothness of operation makes even the most timid woman a confident driver. ~ ~ ~ ~

There is an instinctive demand, which only mothers know, for the safety of their loved ones. Reo brakes are the safest and easiest known, as are the gear shift, clutch and steering mechanism. ~ ~ ~

Car of the Month is built on the Reo Flying Cloud (the Master) chassis. It is complete. It is different. It is, indeed, the Tomorrow Car.

This unusual automobile, costing but slightly more than the regular Flying Cloud models, is now on display. Our allotment is closely limited. That is your guarantee of individual selection. ~ ~ ~



Interior treatment that is distinctive—the very life of Reo Car of the Month's modish ensemble. ✦ ✦ Interpreted in a shade that repeats the Rubicelle, or coppery brown of the body exterior, this fine Jacquard damask in our own "Huntress" pattern, creates an effect that makes word description inadequate.

PART SEVEN. ST. LOUIS, SUNDAY MORNING, MAY 5, 1929. PAGES 1—6A

Five Plays for N. Y. Guild

Organization's Season at American Theater Next Fall to Be Put Upon a Subscription Basis. Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontaine to be in the Company Which Will Present "Caprice."

ST. LOUIS will be added next season to the group of cities into which the Theater Guild of New York will annually send its acting company in a repertoire of the Guild's New York productions. These productions will be made at the American Theater and each play will be presented for a period of one week. The St. Louis season of the Guild will consist of five plays and will be on a subscription basis, and playgoers may subscribe for the entire series of productions and secure preferred locations at reduced rates. The plays to be sent to St. Louis are "Caprice," by Sil-Vara; "Wings Over Europe," by Robert Nichols and Maurice Browne; "Major Barbara" and "Pygmalion," by Bernard Shaw and "Marco Millions," by Eugene O'Neill.

"Caprice" will be presented with Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontaine in their original roles. "Wings Over Europe," "Major Barbara" and "Caprice" have been presented by the Guild during the past season in New York. "Pygmalion" is two years old and is being toured as a companion piece to "Major Barbara." "Marco Millions" was produced last season by the Guild and enjoyed success in New York as well as on tour last season.

The plays will be acted in all cases by members of the Theater Guild Acting Company and insofar as is possible by the original players. Definite dates and casts have yet to be announced.

"Marco Millions" was the first O'Neill play presented by the Theater Guild. It shows Mr. O'Neill taking the figure of Marco Polo, the traveler, and observing in somewhat cynical vein that famous gentleman's tour of the Orient. Placed before the great Kaan, the play traces Marco's actions and treats gently of the great love which Princess Kukachin, grand-daughter of the Kaan, bore for Marco Polo, a love which Polo, in what seems to be his typical blindness for things beautiful, ignored. It will be presented in three acts and 10 scenes and will have a cast of 65 players.

SPEAKING of the Theater Guild, the fewest lines a leading man has had to speak in a Broadway play for many seasons are Elliot Cabot's in "The Camel Through the Needle's Eye," the light comedy imported from Czecho-Slovakia to spend the summer with the Guild.

Cabot, as the rich and at-first-indolent young Alik, is a youth so bored with life that he doesn't bother to talk much.

In the first act he has but twenty-odd words to say; in the second act only 64 words, of which 50 are in a prepared speech he must read, and three more are "I love you;" and in the third act only 400 words, more than half of which are contained in the single speech which is an ultimatum to his father.

So far as concerns the commitment of his lines to memory, Cabot could have accomplished that in half an hour—and perhaps did—yet it is easily the best role the young player has had in this, his first season with the Guild. For he is on the stage through almost all of the play, and his portrayal of the generally mute young idler calls for the capacity to make high comedy of pantomime.

To Give "The Good Hope" Four Nights

"THE GOOD HOPE," the drama by the Dutch playwright Heijermans, which was made into an American play by his sister, Mrs. Caroline Heijerman-Houwink, and Mrs. W. F. Saunders, both St. Louisans, is to be presented for the first time here at the Wednesday Club for four nights, starting next Thursday evening. The two translators and William Van Dresser, the artist, are making the local production with a selected cast of professionals and amateurs. If sufficient interest is shown in this offering the three will make plans for a permanent organization to produce other dramas next fall and winter.

In the cast will be G. Lester Gruner, Mrs. Everett W. Pattison, Nancy Saunders, Frederik Houwink, Roy James, Herbert Schnell, Melville Gordon, Ethel Beck, David Hailman, Max Gottschalk, Helen Green, Francesca Paillou, Marguerite Stringfellow Pyle, Lona Schellbrink, Paul Hatfield, Bruce Macfarlane and Barclay Hudson.

Francesca Paillou and Marguerite Stringfellow Pyle will alternate in playing "Truus," the fisherwoman whose story of shipwreck at sea brings the note of tragedy to the third act, when the women meet on the night of a terrible storm to drink coffee and hope for the ships at sea. Both have had stage experience and write for the stage as well.

W. U. Players Will Present Molnar Drama

Thyrsus Club to Give "Liliom" at American Next Friday Night as Most Pretentious Offering of Organization.

"LILIOM," the dramatic fantasy in which Franz Molnar depicts the biography of the Hungarian "barker" Liliom, is to be presented at the American Theater next Friday night by the Thyrsus Dramatic Organization of Washington University. It has been announced that there will be two subsequent performances at the Solari Guild in Kirkwood on May 16 and 17. Rehearsals for the play have been going on for the last two months under the direction of Donald Scott Blanchard, director of the County Theater Guild, and the seven scene tragedy-fantasy has been rounding into shape with the work of the entire Thyrsus Club included in the cast for the production.

"Liliom" may be described as a biography with a super-punch. It produces sensational dramatic effects without resorting to the usual vehicles of emotionalism, sensationalism, or mock sentimentalism. The ironic satire in seven scenes is bitter.

The life, death and something of the after-life of the tough, or rough-neck, Liliom, is shown. Liliom is the barker and ballyhoo artist for a merry-go-round in an amusement park at Budapest. He is a citizen from the fringe of the criminal world with a personality powerfully attractive to simple-minded servant girls. As an artist—the best barker in Budapest — he regards himself as a privileged character, and accepts his privileges as a matter of course.

The play deals with the inarticulate love of Liliom for a servant girl, Julie, and his refusal to admit his real tenderness for her because of the hardened exterior which he has built up around himself.

Julie, played by Miss Mary Jane Roach, who has heretofore identified herself in amateur dramatics in Thyrsus productions, is the sweetheart of Liliom, who gives all and asks nothing. Patience, however, isn ot a sign of virtue in the eyes of Liliom, but a weakness.

Liliom mistreats Julie, and after he is killed following an attempted robbery, he is forced to expiate his treatment of his wife by the heavenly court before which he is brought. The play closes with his pathetic attempt to ingratiate himself with his posthumous daughter by giving her a star which he had stolen from heaven.

The play is a translation from the original Hungarian play which was presented first in Budapest in 1909. The production in Budapest left both playgoer and critic bewildered.

Presented by the Theater Guild of New York in April, 1921, it was an immediate triumph. The play was the vehicle by which Eva La Gallienne and Joseph Schildkraut rose to prominence. "Liliom" has also been presented in St. Louis to record audiences.

The part of the bully, Liliom, is taken by H. Robert Shampaine. Dorothy Zetlmeisl also carries an important role as Marie, best friend of Julie. Willis Wager as Wolf Beifeld is cast as Marie's husband-to-be.

Municipal Opera Opening Just 4 Weeks Off

PREPARATION for the eleventh season of municipal opera, which opens on June 3, just four weeks from tomorrow night, will take on new momentum tomorrow morning when the 98 boys and girls who have been selected for the summer chorus assemble for the first rehearsal of "The Love Call," the season's opening opera.

As the Municipal Theater Association prepares for the coming season, it is interesting to point out that in the lists of operas produced in the decade which precedes this season and in the repertory for the coming summer months 40 composers are represented by 72 different operas. The student of light opera will scarcely be able to name one composer of international significance whose name is not included in municipal opera's list.

The 1929 repertory is happy in its combination of musical plays which may be termed classical and musical romances of the modern stage. Modern works are dominant. Two works in the list are especially significant of how municipal opera achieves its wide variety. They are Sigmund Romberg's "The Love Call" and Balfe's "Bohemian Girl," which brings to a close the first half of the 12 weeks' opera cycle in the week of July 8.

"The Love Call" was originally Augustus Thomas' popular romantic drama "Arizona." From his play, Harry B. Smith, collaborator with Reginald de Koven in the light opera successes of a generation ago, has made with the assistance of Edward Locke the book for "The Love Call." To this book Romberg, probably the most successful of modern composers, has provided music.

Turn to "The Bohemian Girl." The famous dancer Fanny Ellsler, 90 years ago, had a ballet called "The Gypsy." From the ballet's plot Alfred Bunn, director and manager of the famous Drury Lane Theater, London, prepared the libretto for an opera and the foremost British composer of the time, William Michael Balfe, an Irishman, composed the music. Produced more than 75 years ago it has held the boards ever since and has been an outstanding operatic success in every country of the civilized world. It is light. It is tuneful. It is romantic. But it is not less truly a classic than are the operas, for instance of Carl Maria von Weber—father, as Wagner called him, of German opera.

LOOKING through the coming summer's repertory one encounters two works by Victor Herbert, a man whose music takes rank with the great masters purely as music despite the sparkling rhythms, the witty turns, the lovely melodies with which it is filled. He is of a generation older than today's, but he has left music which will be young 100 years from now. "The Enchantress" which has not before been presented on Municipal Opera's stage and the perennial "Babes in Toyland" are his contributions to the season.

Another composer, ranking with Herbert in time, and certainly a gifted one, is Oscar Straus, whose "The Chocolate Soldier" is based upon George Bernard Shaw's splendid comedy "Arms and the Man." Still another of the older favorites is "The Prince of Pilsen" which survives, itself almost a classic, because of the delightful tunes that Gustav Luders wrote.

Oscar Straus is a composer of the Viennese school. One other is represented, Emmerich Kalman, who bridges a gap between the days of Herbert and Straus and those of Romberg and Friml, composers of today. He is one of the two composers represented in "The Golden Dawn" with which the season is brought to a close. The other is Herbert Stothart—and with Stothart the modern musical romance comes into its own.

For he and Rudolph Friml collaborated in that greatest of Municipal Opera favorites, "Rose Marie," which will again be produced this year, and he and Vincent Youmans are responsible for the music of "Wildflower" one of the new productions to be made this season. Friml is the composer of "The Vagabond King" which provided one of the productions of last season's repertory and which will be repeated this year. Romberg besides being the composer of "The Love Call" is responsible for the music of "The Student Prince," one of the outstanding successes of last season and which will be doubly welcome this year. One other composer is represented in the coming summer's repertory, a young Englishman Percy Wenrich, who is responsible for "Castles in the Air."

VICTOR HERBERT, Irish by birth, but certainly by choice an American composer, leads all the list of those who have by their music contributed to Municipal Opera's success. He has provided melody for 17 of the 98 weeks of opera thus far presented in Forest Park, and 11 of his operettas have been produced on that stage which will see a revival of "Babes in Toyland" and a first production of "The Enchantress" this season. Second to him is the combination, Gilbert and Sullivan, of whose classic comic operas seven have been produced, while two more weeks have been filled by revivals of "The Mikado." After them perhaps the most frequently represented composer has been Johann Strauss with four operas.

Roughly the composers represented in the lists of the ten past years and 1929 may be divided into four groups. The men of the nineteenth century; those of the end of the century period; those of the beginning of the Twentieth century and those of today.

Of the nineteenth century composers of light opera and musical romances the representatives include Robert Planquette, who wrote "Chimes of Normandy"; Carl Milloecker, who composed "The Beggar Student"; Johann Strauss; Daniel Auber, composer of "Fra Diavolo"; Michael William Balfe; Edward Jakobowski, composer of "Erminie"; Jules Offenbach, composer of "Tales of Hoffmann" and Friedrich von Flotow, composer of "Martha," together with lesser lights.

Of the end of the century men foremost, of course, are Gilbert and Sullivan, who bridge a gap between the rest of the nineteenth century and the twentieth, and with them Victor Herbert, John Philip Sousa, Reginald DeKoven, Oscar Straus, Gustave Luders, Julian Edwards and others.

From the Stage to Screen

Mary Duncan an Example of What the Talkies Have Done for the People Who Are Forsaking the "Legit" for Hollywood—Not All of Them Have Scored Before the Camera—Dolores Costello the Real Pioneer of the Sound Films, Which Have Turned the Movie World Upside Down.

AMONG the stage people brought into sudden screen prominence by the talking movies is Mary Duncan, who can be seen this week in "Thru' Different Eyes" at the Fox. Miss Duncan, throughout her career, has made quick decisions and sudden changes, all of which have advanced her position in the theatrical world, so she makes the transition from silent to talking pictures merely an incident in her colorful life.

Her first sudden change occurred while she was taking a course in Arts and Sciences at Cornell University. She became interested in dramatics and suddenly abandoned her books to study with Yvette Guilbert, a sensation of the French and American stage some years ago.

Miss Duncan had entered the university after attending public school at her native town of Luttrellville, Va., and high school at Richmond.

It was Mlle. Guilbert who first noted the possibilities of the young Virginian and her judgment was vindicated when the girl won a scholarship which provided a two-year course with Lily Lehmann, famous operatic soloist and teacher. Guilbert believed her protege would be an outstanding prima donna on the light opera stage.

The girl had different ideas, made another of her famous quick decisions and obtained a featured role in "Toto" through the aid of Leo Detrichstein. She did so well that he re-signed her for a leading role in "The Egoist," Ben Hecht's first play, and later she was Detrichstein's leading woman in a revival of "The Great Lover," which made a nation-wide tour. Followed a featured role in "The Purple Mask" and later she played opposite Ernest Truax in "New Toys."

Then she went to London to play the feminine lead in "The Nervous Wreck" at the St. James Theater. The play had an extended run there.

Next, Willard Mack singled her out for the lead in "Honor Be Damned." While she was interviewing Al Woods regarding her contract, he was so impressed by her personality and talent that he offered her the role of "Poppy" in "The Shanghai Gesture" which he also was producing at that time.

A Fox executive approached Miss Duncan the opening night of this play and urged her to take a screen test. This proved most satisfactory, but it was 18 months before she actually abandoned the stage for the screen, because she had a "run of the play" contract with Woods for "The Shanghai Gesture." When that play closed in Los Angeles, Miss Duncan reported at the Fox West Coast Studios and has been kept unusually busy ever since.

Her first part was in "Soft Living" with Madge Bellamy, and then in quick succession, she played leading roles in "The River," "4 Devils" and "Our Daily Bread."

* * * *

ALL of the stage actresses who have come to the screen by way of the talkies have not jumped into quick fame, however. In the musical comedy prologue to "Show Boat" at the Grand Central Theater Helen Morgan, who does her famous stunt of sitting on a piano and singing, scores with her voice but fails to show up to advantage as a photographic subject. Perhaps it was the lighting, and next time, if there is a next time, she may "take" better. But there are many beautiful women who have failed to register in front of the movie cameras, and even in the talkies the fans are going to demand that their stars look pretty.

Some one has said that when the piano sits on Helen Morgan, that will be news.

But if Miss Morgan ever again sits on a piano in a night club and croons her love ballads, that also will be news. For Helen, cleared of the Government's charge of maintaining a night club nuisance, is determined that she's through with the after-theater spots, except as a ringside onlooker.

It was in a little hide-away club that Miss Morgan originated her singing-on-the-piano act. Before that she had been a mere show girl on tour with Ziegfeld's "Sally," so modest that she attracted no more attention than any good looking, brunette show girl would.

It was this inherent modesty, and the costume she was called

Apollo-Morning Choral Clubs in Combination To Present "King Olaf"

Chorus and Four Soloists to Be Heard in Elgar Oratorio Tomorrow Night as Music Week Offering at the Odeon.

AN important and significant contribution to Music Week in St. Louis will be the concert by the Apollo-Morning Clubs at the Odeon tomorrow evening when "King Olaf," oratorio by Edward Elgar, will have its first presentation in St. Louis, so far as is known. It will be first oratorio sung by the combined chorus.

Thirty members of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra will accompany the chorus and four soloists will take part. Of these Mrs. Hector Pasmezoglu and Katherine Cowan, soprani are members of the Morning Choral Club and have been heard in solo parts with this organization a number of times. Mrs. Pasmezoglu has appeared twice with the orchestra at a "Pop" concert.

Mrs. Cowan is a regular member of the Central Presbyterian Church choir. Bernard Ferguson, the third soloist, has been a resident of St. Louis for the past two years. He toured for two seasons with the Minneapolis Orchestra and was for two seasons a member of the Municipal Opera cast. He has appeared with such noted choral societies as the Handel and Haydn Society of Boston, Apollo Club of Chicago, Mendelssohn Choir, Pittsburg, Milwaukee Musical Society and has participated in practically every Music Festival for the past 10 years. Judson House, tenor, is as familiar a figure on the concert platform as with radio audiences and has a long line of triumphs to his credit. The part of King Olaf, which he has sung many times, is particularly his role on account of a splendid physique and a robusto tenor voice which enables him to carry the heavy role of the King with ease and authority. To procure House whose bookings prevented an earlier St. Louis appearance, the Apollo-Morning Choral postponed their concert to May 6.

Tomorrow night's concert will be directed by Charles Galloway who for many years has been musical director of the two organizations which Paul Friess had served as accompanist.

Oratorio Society Concert Tuesday

THE Oratorio Society of St. Louis, William B. Heyne, conductor, will render a Bach-Mendelssohn program at the Odeon Tuesday night as its contribution to National Music Week, now being celebrated. Conductor Heyne has chosen two cantatas, one by Bach, and the other by Mendelssohn, and two Bach chorals to comprise the program.

This will be the first time in many years that a Bach cantata has been given on the Odeon stage. The chorus consists of about 125 Lutheran singers from 28 congregations in and around St. Louis. The following soloists have been engaged for the event: Arthur Kraft, well known oratorio tenor, who has appeared with the Oratorio Society when it made its debut at the American Theater three years ago with Mendelssohn's "Elijah," is the leading soloist. Assisting soloists are Frank Spahn, bass, and Florence Neubarth Hickey, a soprano.

The first offering of the evening will be Johann Sebastian Bach's pastorale of euphony: "Du Hirte Israel," ("Thou Shepherd of Israel"). It is based on the gospel lesson of St. John, "I am the Good Shepherd." There are two arias of beauty in this cantata, one for tenor and the other for bass. Besides its melodic charm, the opening chorus, "Du Hirte Israel," expressed by a triple-movement, is a masterpiece of artistic structure. This is known to be one of Bach's less complicated and difficult, but also one of his most lovely and popular cantatas.

The second unit of the evening will be the rendition of two Bach chorals a capella. They are: "Freuet Euech, Ihr Christen Alle." ("O Rejoice, Ye Christians Loudly") and "Herzlich Lieb Hab Ich Dich, O Herr." ("O Lord, I Love Thee from My Heart"), which has been harmonized four times by Bach. The harmonization which the Oratorio Society will sing is the finale chorale of the St. John Passion. It has always been a favorite hymn of the Lutheran church.

The final unit of the program will be Felix Mendelssohn Bartholdy's "Hymn of Praise." It is known in the German as his "Lobegesang." The work is exactly what the name indicates, a song of praise.

Members of the St. Louis Symphony orchestra, Ellis Levy, concert-master, will furnish the accompaniment for the cantatas.

BEHIND THE SCREENS

By Helen Hurd

At Home With Louise Fazenda the Funny Woman Who Finds the Talkies Easy

The Minor Stage Players Now Outnumber Oldtimers of the Screen

HOLLYWOOD, May 4.

DID you ever wonder what a funny man or a funny woman of the movies—the people who make you laugh just to look at them on the screen—really look like at home? Have you tried to picture them throwing custard pies at their servants and putting soap on the floor for the benefit of visitors? I must confess that I had such ideas when I journeyed out to Louise Fazenda's home the other day. Would I find her sitting under a table with her hair done in a lot of pigtails, looking cross-eyed and pointing a revolver in each hand? Or would she come sliding down the steps, or fall over a footstool or what have you at the crucial moment? It must be confessed in the cause of honesty that I really doubted if she had a serious moment, as for many years she has been the snicker starter of the celluloid laughies, and it would only be reasonable to believe that it might get to be a habit. We met over a balky motor, and the ice was broken and so was the differential or camshaft or whatever other parts of automotive anatomy you might suggest. So there was nothing to do but coax the stubborn machine to a doctor and borrow hubby's car. Hubby, by the way, is Hal Wallis, a director at First National, and he seemed willing enough that we should leave him to hitch-hike for himself.

Once in front of her cozy fireplace, in her home, with the troubles of automobiling forgotten, it was she, not I, who began questioning.

"What do you think of Hollywood?" she asked. It was not a rhetorical question, for above all else, Louise Fazenda is interested in people and things. And the people are not always movie people, and the things more than often, have nothing to do with the business in which she has achieved her success. I voiced a reply which may or may not have had anything to do with the case, and we talked of the people one sees on the streets and in the restaurants, and the crazy bally-hoo of Hollywood that appeals.

"I do not live in Hollywood, purposely," she said, "for I love to go there occasionally and try to see it as an outsider would. That is why I am so interested in your opinion." To think that Louise Fazenda would be interested in an opinion of mine was flattering, and I expanded on the subject and she listened with all interest. But when I bemoaned the fact that I was there to interview her, and not to pour out my heart like a schoolgirl, she laughed her infectious giggle, which fortunately the talkies have made it possible to record, and heaped another log on the fire and said, "Go on, I love it. It is so seldom I get to really talk with people." That is because she is so busy, for she has constantly been in demand to add the laughs in pictures made at every studio, which is a different story from the stars who think they are being overworked when they make two pictures a year.

ABOUT that time lunch was announced, and I was a little loath to leave the fire, for despite what the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce says, it was the first time I had been really warm in balmy California. But the move was most pleasant, for I sat myself down to a delicious lunch with hot rolls and conserve which Miss Fazenda had made herself. She really admitted she cooks. "But not for publication," she added. "And if you tell on me, I'll never let you in the house again." So it is with no little weighing that I balance the cause of the seventh muse against another chance at her hot rolls.

"What, no lemon tart?" I asked, when some were brought on and she refused. But it seems that there is a price for being famous and Louise is beginning to count her calories.

"I've been playing old lady parts for some time, and I have to wear a lot of padding, and I become avoirdupois before I know it, but then who can tell the difference when you're a fat old lady all day anyway?" she lamented.

We had coffee in front of the fire, and I took on new courage to take myself in hand and ask her the customary questions. But I felt like I was asking someone I had known all my life where they were born. The name "Fazenda" is her own name, and means "farm" in Portugese. Her father was a wealthy merchandise broker in LaFayette, Indiana, from which place she came to Los Angeles for her education. But her comedic bent asserted itself very early and in 1915 she began making the long journey to Universal City way out in the valley. Later on in the afternoon, we drove over the road and she said "Many's the time I have walked this road when I was an extra."

But she wasn't an extra long, for her inimitable ability to cause mirth by a mere twist of her features or her shoulders established her very quickly as a laugh provoker of the first water. Then followed the good days at the Mack Sennett studios where she and Marie Provost and Gloria Swanson and Phyllis Haver and Jimmie Murphy and Ben Turpin made whoopee with pies and sacks of flour, dogs, cats, chickens and sticks of dynamite. Louise has a drawer full of pictures, or "stills" taken on the lot that bring back fond memories of a time when a less sophisticated public bent double over a silent slapstick. But that wasn't the half of it. The fun they had themselves, while filming the picture was worth to her all the bumps and bruises she got while falling off a roof, or being blown skyward. She told me all about these pictures while she was making up for a 4 o'clock call on some retakes—which means, "say it over again"—something unheard of in the early days.

HER makeup consisted of slicking her abundant brown hair back in a knot, a little gray tint added here and there, a few deftly applied wrinkles, high black button shoes—with the buttons set over—and a lavender dress. Presto, a fat old lady of the vintage of 1900. And the trick of accomplishing the first was a masterpiece of cotton batting. No wonder she "got avoirdupois" without noticing it.

We took off in a cloud of dust, and the first stop was the circulating library around the corner where she got a book. And right here is as good a time as any to say that Louise Fazenda is unusually brilliant and intellectual, and has the reputation of being one of the best read and best informed women of the film colony. She reads everything, but seems to prefer psychological studies. She told me of all the trouble a certain report that she was able to solve mysteries, or help people with their troubles caused her. She had to hire a special secretary to take care of all the mail that came in with many and varied tales of woe and tribulation. Nevertheless, she is interested, but says very definitely, that she's no good at figuring out other peoples' troubles.

But back to the library. Here was enacted an episode where she about out-Fazendaed Fazenda. And it wasn't on a movie set, either. As is customary around here, everyone drives like they were possessed, and as Louise got out of the car, a young stripling in a striped Ford came down the street and she nearly got the chance to fall back on her padding to save her life. But they checkmated each other after a few fast moves to right and left, and finally her half hour old gray hairs were respected and she returned triumphantly with the book. And then on to the studio. She was greeted by everyone with a lot of friendly laughing and talking. Even the gray cat came up to hear her giggle and to get petted. She is exceedingly fond of animals and every stray cat in the world finds a home in the Fazenda back yard—if they can get along with the dogs which are her especial pride and joy.

It is easy to understand how Louise Fazenda can be so comical, and often times give the picture an excuse for being by her antics. She is all eyes for a funny situation and on the set she watched people and situations to get the ludicrous slant which she might be able to use in her caricatures. "I would like to do a picture sometime," she said, "of a fussy old lady with a big dog jumping all over her. Haven't you seen them—'Here, nice doggy, pretty doggy—get away, you great big brute.'"

WHILE I was there on the First National lot I bumped into William Beaudine, the director, who says that talkies have changed not only the habits but the personnel of Hollywood over night. He claims that a great silent invasion of New York acting talent has taken place.

This invasion is not so much one of the noted stage folk, who came into the industry recently, singly and in groups, with a blare of trumpets. It is rather, Beaudine contends, a mass movement or migration of New York's great stage, musical show, revue and vaudeville talent surplus.

There were 3000 "bit players" listed a year and a half ago in the motion picture industry. Three months ago a census revealed 5000 such players. Beaudine declares that these three months have brought in from New York at least a thousand more. The increase is all "imported," or rather "migrated" talent.

In the same period of time the 3000 silent-film bit folk have diminished in number, he believes, with the result that the stage talent from the East now outnumbers the old line bit players nearly two to one!

"I am now directing 'Hard to Get,' starring Dorothy Mackaill," Beaudine remarked in citing specific instances of the personnel change in Hollywood "During the filming of this picture, which has been in production three weeks, I have checked on theories formed during the making of other talkies and the proportion of new faces in 'Hard to Get,' not considering the cast principals, is about two to one.

"Even among the extras I find ex-chorus girls and men, New York 'hoofers' and stage 'supers' and singers and vaudevillians, content to appear in a street mob until someone needs them for something else. A well-known vaudeville song and dance man drove a truck in one scene. Thanks to the talkies, several thousand New York show people have found their niches in pictures already.

Beaudine thinks that Hollywood's famous extra army, formerly 20,000 strong, has been much augmented by an invasion of stage folk from the entire nation.

HOW THE TALKIES HAVE BROUGHT FAME TO "LEGIT" PLAYERS

upon to wear in her next show, "Americana," that got Helen her "break." The lower half of the costume was a very abbreviated pair of track pants, of which she was so ashamed that she would not let her mother, with whom she lives, come to see the show. In fact, after a week or two she sent her notice to the producer, Richard Herndon.

"That's all right, Helen," Herndon said. "But you don't need to leave the show. I'll give you another part." And he gave her a specialty number—a blues to sing.

The first night her knees were so wobbly she could hardly stand. It was her first solo role before a large audience. So she sat down on the stage, beside the proscenium arch, to hide her nervousness, and started singing in her throaty way. That little bit "stopped the show" and it continued to do so every night for eight months.

HELEN MORGAN, although the fans may not believe it, is distinctly the mother type of woman. In her apartment, with a pair of dogs, a bowl of goldfish and three canaries, she is rearing the child of a chorus girl who was down on her luck. The baby is the second she has taken for adoption, the first having been given back when the mother found herself able to support it.

She has never married, however.

Two other characteristics are apparent to those who know her. One is the self reliance of the girl who was born in Danville, Ill., went with her widowed mother to Chicago, studied in night school on her own initiative while working as a shop girl, and then went to Montreal to win a beauty prize that started her on the way to a stage career.

The other characteristic is a capacity for utter sadness. Tears come easily to Helen Morgan, as they did at her trial. But she seldom, if ever, seems despondent. Her code is summed up by a friend in these words:

"Don't whimper. Nobody likes a quitter. If you are down, pick yourself up."

That, and the mother instinct that expresses itself in her personality and even in her voice, is why, perhaps, men with weeping jags are comforted when they hear her sing.

THE pioneer of the talkies is Dolores Costello, who is playing in "The Glad Rag Doll" at the Ambassador right now for she was the first feminine star to appear in Warner's original talking film which turned the movie world upside down.

Somehow, it seems to Dolores Costello as if she has always been on the screen.

Though she is less than 23 years old, Dolores easily qualifies as one of the pioneer screen players, a veteran of the early days of the motion picture.

Her father, Maurice Costello, was the first of the screen's matinee idols, and as the principal star of the old Vitagraph company was familiar to theatergoers throughout the world long before any of them knew his name, simply because at that time film companies had not yet begun to capitalize the names of their players.

But during this early period Dolores and her sister, Helene, girls who had not even entered their teens, appeared with their father in a great number of pictures, Dolores usually impersonating a boy. Later they made a trip around the world with their father, producing pictures in all the countries visited, and establishing a personal following in many foreign lands.

Because she bears the name of one of the earliest and most famous of screen stars, Dolores is usually thought of as the daughter of Maurice Costello. But she is also the daughter of her mother.

And the inheritance on the maternal side has played an important part in the career of Dolores Costello. Mrs. Costello was the original Gibson Girl, that svelte and stunning figure, outlandishly dressed, according to the modern way of thinking, who expressed the acme of feminine loveliness and charm to the generation that preceded us.

Charles Dana Gibson made the Gibson Girl, but without the inspiration of the beauty of Mae Altshuh, there might not have been a Gibson Girl at all. True, she was copied from the figure and the costumes fashionable in her day, but the tight-laced, beflounced and queer-hatted figure would not have spread so quickly and so thoroughly over our country if the artist had not made her fashionable, and the stage had not come to his assistance with its "Florodora Sextette" and its show girls of statuesque, Junoesque type.

When Miss Altshuh left her Pennsylvania home for a visit in Pittsburg, where she met and fell in love with the handsome young leading man of the stock company, Maurice Costello, she looked much as Dolores Costello does now—the same trim, slender figure, the same delicate features and blond coloring. It is little wonder that Gibson was struck with her beauty and used her as the model of the Gibson Girl.

German Comedy Tonight.

The German stock company will present, as a benefit performance, the comedy, "What Will The People Say?" at Jeffla Auditorium tonight for the final bill of the organization for the season. Mrs. Victoria Webb Markham, an old favorite with German audiences, who retired from the stage 10 years ago, will be in the cast.

Many Concerts In Celebration Of Music Week

Programs to Begin in Many Churches Today and Will Continue Until Next Saturday Night.

NATIONAL music week, which starts today, is to have a more general observance in St. Louis this year than ever before, thanks to the committee in charge, headed by Mrs. Frederick Nussbaum. A [illegible]re outline fo the events promises much enjoyment for the music lovers of St. Louis and vicinity at some 20 stated concerts that are to take place at the Odeon, in Vandervoort Music Hall, the Toy Theater, various music studios, church auditoriums and at Scotish Rite Cathedral.

The pastors of several churches that feature music in their ceremonials are to speak today on the cultural value of the art and the need of an annual observance of national music week in the cultural scheme of things in St. Louis. The students' chorus of Concordia Seminary gives a special concert at Union Methodist Church tomorrow evening, with Prof. John H. C. Fritz directing. Tomorrow afternoon the Strassberger Conservatories of Music, under the direction of August Winter, will have a finely varied program at Vandervoort Music Hall. On the same evening, at the Odeon, the Apollo-Morning Choral Club incorporates its concert, deferred from April 16 into the general observance of national music week. Charles Galloway's choral forces, as told elsewhere, will sing the Medieval cantata, "King Olaf." The Principia will have their concert on May 7 in Howard Hall.

Other events will be the Federated Music Clubs of the Eighth Missouri District, meeting at Hotel Chase, the Optimists Club, programs at Baldwin Hall, the Kroeger studios, a recital by the Sylvia Walden Trio, a concert by Rev. Father Hunchak and his Russian choir, choral offerings by Hugo Anschuetz and his Liederkranz singers, several music meetings under the auspices of Hugo Wiemers and Miss Barbara Cousland, organ recitals at Christ Church Cathedral, directed by Philippi, and many social functions with musical numbers.

The week's observances will conclude at Scottish Rite Cathedral on Saturday evening, May 11, with a popular concert under the direction of O. Wade Fallert, music director of the Scottish Rite and chief organist, the principal numbers of whose program will be presented by Director Frank Gecks and his orchestra of the St. Louis Philharmonic Society. The orchestra will present Richard Strauss' "Serenade" for 13 wind instruments and several other selections. Rev. Father Hunchak's Russian choir will sing the Lord's Prayer in the version of Rimsky-Korsakof and several Russian folk songs.

PAPAL COINS LIKELY TO BEAR DESIGN BY BENVENUTO CELLINI

Pius XI Orders Minting of Vatican Money, One of Rights Under His Treaty With Italy.

By the Associated Press.

VATICAN CITY, May 4.—Pope Pius XI has ordered the coining of Vatican money, a right given by the Italo-Vatican treaty. This right is conceded only to independent sovereigns, and was one of the means taken in the treaty to recognize this status of the Pope.

The last papal coins were minted by order of Pius IX, before he lost the temporal power in 1870.

Ecclesiastical circles expect that the coins will bear on one side the head of Pius XI, and on the other the Papal coat of arms. In all probability, one of the greatest artists of Italy, though several centuries dead, will have the honor of design on the reverse side of the coins. This is Benvenuto Cellini, celebrated artisan of gold and silver and author of a autobiography. Cellini designed a papal shield which it is thought will be reproduced on the new coins.

In the last 60 years the Holy See has occasionally issued medals commemorating special events.

SUCCEEDS IN TRAINING SELF AS WOOD CARVER

Anthony Feldes at 29 Decides to Learn New Vocation and Makes It Pay.

At the age of 29, Anthony Feldes has decided, as a means of livelihood, upon a craft with which he was entirely unfamiliar until recently—that of wood carving.

Thirty shiny cutting tools, some cirved, some broad and sharp, some narrowing to a needle point, hang in a neatly numbered row, in the basement workshop at his mother's home, 3941 Iowa avenue. The fact that the tools are numbered and that there is a numbered place for each, is indicative of the character of Feldes. He is a methodical man.

Cruder wood-working tools occupy designated places in a huge chest, beneath which pieces of lumber are curing. In the center of the shop is a home-made electrically driven bandsaw, and beside it an electric sanding machine. Even the pile of sawdust on the floor seems to occupy a given space and no more.

Hand-Carved Radio Cabinets.

Upstairs are wooden statuettes, carved from life, from magazine illustrations, or, in one case, from a mirrored reflection. There is a shiny chest and a sleek-topped ornate table, both made from an old-style piano, and in one corner, the young man's masterpiece ,a hand-carved radio cabinet, higher than the carver's head, and commensurately massive. Save for the smooth top surface, there is not an inches upon the cabinet that has not been carved. And there is no metal in it. The hinges are wooden pins, cunningly countersunk, and the sides and top are held together with pegs.

Feldes has been a wood carver for only two years. All of his spare time for the last 12 months has been occupied with carving the cabinet. The chest, the table and the statuettes also are of spare-time manufacture.

Prior to two years ago, he was a bronze carver, cutting molds for casket hardware, and before that, a toolmaker. His first set of wood carving tools he made himself, out of old files. He discarbed these because the steel was poor, and purchased a set made in Sheffield, England.

Decides to Carve Wood.

"There aren't many wood carvers any more," he said, gouging idly at a block of soft green poplar. "I got into it this way: One day I decided to carve a bust of myself. I was tired of working in bronze. You have to work backward, just the opposite to how you want your hardware to look, and it's too slow.

"Well, I looked at myself in the mirror and carved the bust. Then I did one of my mother. Then I made that statuette of the girl kneeling and shooting the arrow in the air. The bow is made out of an old knitting needle I heated and bent. The figure is poplar, stained black.

"Now about that radio cabinet: After I carved it, I rubbed every inch of the mahogany with a small piece of ebony. You see, that closes the pores of the wood and keeps dampness out and makes it take a better finish. That ebony trick is something I found out myself. The piece of ebony I use is an old organ stop."

Gets Plenty of Business.

There is plenty of work in St. Louis for a woodcarver, Feldes continued, although the tendency of the age is toward machine-stamped substitutes for the ornaments that once were made by hand. Builders whose clients desire hand carving in their homes or clubs know of Feldes and call him when they have orders for his kind of work. Organ manufacturers provide an almost constant demand for his services.

He has received no instruction in carving, or even in elementary carpentry. Asked how, uninstructed, he was able to carve with such accurate attention to detail, he replied:

"It's just got to be in you, that's all."

Wood Carver and Some of His Work

RICHEST PALESTINE COLONY TO KEEP 50TH ANNIVERSARY

It Emerged From Poverty and Hardship to Become Noted for Orange Growing.

By the Associated Press.

JAFFA, Palestine,, May 4.—Petach Tikvah, the oldest, largest and richest of Palestine's Jewish colonies, celebrates this year its fiftieth anniversary.

Half a century ago a few dozen Jews, revolting against restricted living conditions imposed by the schools in Jerusalem devoted to study of the Talmud, moved out of the Holy City. They bought 1000 acres on the banks of the Yarkon, near Jaffa, and tried their urban trained talents at farming. The soil they had chosen was miserably poor, having been exploited for generations by Arab tenant farmers and when the rainy season came, lakes formed around their houses, making the occupants virtual prisoners. The land adventurers were soon near to starvation. The lakes, as they dried up, turned to swamps,, and fever became rife. Only a third of the seed they had sprouted.

Then Baron Rothschild came to the rescue. The administration he set up planted the marshes with fast-growing eucalyptus trees to help the drainage, laid out orange groves and vineyards, and provided work for the hard-pressed community.

Petach Tikvah today is the very symbol of successful farming in Palestine. The colony now has 10,000 residents. Its original 1000 acres have increased to 14,400. Half of this area is covered with orange plantations.

WHERE CYMBALS COME FROM

By the Associated Press.

PSAMATIA, Turkey, May 4.—Cymbals that clang in American jazz bands and cymbals that punctuate the wail of pipes in Anatolian coffee houses owe their origin to the same small, but ancient factory hidden in this suburb of Constantinople.

Here are made the finest cymbals in the world, the secret of whose perfection has been guarded by one Armenian family and handed down to the head of the family of each generation for several hundreds years. The name of the family, Zildjian, means "cymbal-makers." The present head of the clang clan is a woman more than 80 years old.

Drama Fete Tribute to Show.

MALVERN, England, May 4.—The dramatic festival which Sir Barry Jackson, theatrical producer, holds in this town the last two weeks of August will this year be a tribute to George Bernard Shaw and will witness the premier of his "The Apple Cart," a new political satire. Half a dozen other Shaw plays will also be given.

ITALIAN PEASANTS MODELS FOR PURITAN MEMORIAL

Sculptor Explains That Old Colony Types Are Few in New England of Today.

By the Associated Press.

ROME, May 4.—The Tuscan peasant of today is the physical kinsman of the Pilgrim father of 300 years ago, says Maurice Sterne, American sculptor, who has just completed here his imposing monument to the forebears of present-day New England, to be erected this summer in Worcester, Mass.

Only Tuscans posed for the figures in Sterne's 16 bas-reliefs, yet the innate Yankee quality of the types, angularity of shoulders, elbows and cheek bones, stands out.

"Industralized New England," the sculptor explained, "offers today few of the old types such as we know from contemporary portraits and prints. Life is easier for the rich, and occupations more varied for those not so rich. In order to find the physical characteristics of the settlers of the old colony, I had to discover a people who worked with the same kind of primitive farm implements, who hunted and fished in the same crude way. And I found them here in Italy, mainly in the upland village of Anticol-Corrado."

Sterne was born in Latvia, under the Czar, 51 years ago, and emigrated to America at the age of 10.

One striking feature of the Sterne memorial is that it depicts no historic scenes. Each panel of the base represents instead some phase of the hard, unremitting toil of the seventeenth century in American, generally depicting a man and a woman sharing the burdens of the day.

CEREMONIES TO OPEN NEW SOULARD MARKET

Mayor and City Officials to Take Part in Program Wednesday.

Soulard Market, a new 2structure of modern design, providing space for the wares of farmers and truck gardeners and containing a community center, will be dedicated Wednesday night and opened for business Thursday morning. It was erected by the city with bond funds at a cost of $267,000, of which $170,000 came from the market item and $97,000, covering an auditorium adn kindred features, came from the park and playground item.

In a program beginning at 7:30 p. m. Wednesday, it is announced the speakers will be Mayor Miller, City Counselor Muench, Comptroller Nolte, President Kinsey of the Board of Public Service, Director of Public Welfare Salisbury, William Rosen, president of the South Broadway Merchants' and Manufacturers' Association, which is sponsoring the celebration; Alfred F. Steiner, chairman of the Celebration Committee, and City Register Grosse. Frank K. Harris will preside.

There will be music and other entertainment, dancing and souvenirs. Drill teams from the Knights of Columbus and Alhambra Grotto will perform.

The market occupies two city blocks bounded by Seventh boulevard and Ninth, Carroll and Julia streets. Eighth street was closed to make room for it, with a rerouting of the Cherokee car line. Four long shafts of the H-shaped building extend east and west from the former location of Eighth street and in these stalls have been provided for farmers and truck gardeners. They can deliver their products to their own spaces, where counters for display face a long central promenade. This section has a roof but not walls, except for two short wings of the central structure.

In the central portion there is an arcade with stores and on a seatond floor a public auditorium seating 1200 persons, with a mezzanine seating 400 more. There is a stage and movie facilities. Adjoining are locker and shower bath installations for men and women.

The building, designed by L. R. Bowen, a city engineer, is in Italian style with a red tile roof, variegated brick wall and terra cotta ornamentation.

There is ample room for parking on adjoining streets and the location is readily accessible from other parts of the city. Adjoining the market are Soulard Library, Soulard Bath House, the Soulard Street Police Station and Soulard Playgrounds, which has a bandstand.

Lieut. Antoine Pierre Soulard of the French navy came to St. Louis in 1794, fleeing from the French revolution. Zenon Trudeau, the Spanish Governor, made him Surveyor-General of Upper Louisiana to lay out the land of the region. He remained as Surveyor for a time after the United States took over the territory in 1804. He married Miss Julia Cerre in 1795, and upon his retirement went to her father's country estate, in the neighborhood of the present market, then outside the town. Soulard died in 1825 and his family subdivided the property. His widow gave the city the two blocks for the market in 1842 and the next year a group was [illegible] to erect the first market [illegible] at their own expense. [illegible] upper story was added [illegible] school, meeting and [illegible] purposes. These old [illegible] were wrecked last year.

The Correct Way To Remove Wrinkles

There is one way—a simple, pleasant, sure method that thousands use to drive wrinkles away. That way is to get two ounces of eptol from the drug store, mix with half pint of water, adding a tablespoon of glycerine. This makes a delightful, rich cream which you may spread thinly over forehead, temples, cheeks, around eyes and rub in until absorbed. Instantly the pores tighten, dead outer skin sloughs off and new, smooth, plump, youthful skin appears. With this action, away go wrinkles, lines and crow's-feet.

There is a simple method that makes blackheads go as if by magic. Get two ounces of calonite powder from your drug store, sprinkle a little on a hot, wet cloth, rub briskly over the affected parts, and in two minutes you will find every blackhead dissolved away entirely.

VIENNA, May 4.—Art experts [illegible]ently unearthed here a long-[illegible] masterpiece by Peter [illegible]eughle, called "The Rural Fes[illegible]val" which disappeared many years ago.

The painting, long regarded as one of the finest works of this early Flemish painter, was securely sheltered before the World's War in the private gallery of Baron Kanenko, the Russian magnate, at Kiev. He possessed the finest private collection of Breughle paintings in the world. During the Bolshevist revolution it disappeared, and the art world has since mourned it [illegible] by vandals.

BREUGHLE'S 'RURAL FESTIVAL' FOUND IN AUSTRIAN VILLAGE

Famous Flemish Painting Disappeared During Red Revolt in Russia.

By the Associated Press.

VIENNA, May 4.—Art experts recently unearthed here a long-lost masterpiece by Peter Breughle, called "The Rural Festival," which disappeared many years ago.

The painting, long regarded as one of the finest works of this early Flemish painter, was securely sheltered before the World's War in the private gallery of Baron Kassala, the Russian magnate, at Kiev. He possessed the finest private collection of Breughle paintings in the world. During the Bolshevist revolution it disappeared, and the art world has since mourned it as probably destroyed by vandals.

Early this year the missing masterpiece turned up in a small town in the Austrian hinterland, still in an excellent state of preservation despite a slight warping of its wooden "cradle" or backing. The painting was authenticated by the German expert, Prof. Bode, who recently died in Berlin.

Opera by Bach Rediscovered.

By the Associated Press.

KIEL, Germany, May 4.—A rediscovered opera, "Lucius Silla," written in 1774 by Johann Christian Bach, twelfth child of the great composer, Johann Sebastian Bach, was staged here. The manuscript was unearthed in the Stuttgart Library by Fritz Tutenberg, director of the Kiel and Homburg operas.

LETTERS TELL STORY OF THEATER OF '50S

Manuscripts Obtained by Historical Society From Breckenridge Collection.

Glimpses of theatrical nights when noted actresses wore bustles and the manager's share of a night's performance amounted to $77.51 are given in letters, photographs and manuscripts recently obtained by Missouri Historical Society from the William Clark Breckenridge collection.

The papers include a manuscript page for a biographical sketch of Adelaide Neilson in verse by N. M. Ludlow, author of "Dramatic Life as I Found It," a source of St. Louis theatrical history. With it is correspondence between Ludlow and a partner, who, running their theater in New Orleans, ended a letter to Ludlow on Dec. 28, 1853, with this note:

"St. Charles last night $339—our share $77.51. Prospect not good for tonight. Julia! Julia! You are not dancing as you ought for quarters and halves!"

Actress Courts Publicity.

The photographs are of Kate Field, and a series of letters trace her career after she deserted the stage for the lecture platform and, ultimately, the editorial chair. It appears from a letter dated Jan. 15, 1888, that actresses and lecturers then as now appreciated publicity—

"If I send you a letter from California, on a charming valley I have discovered, how many papers can you publish it in, and what are they? You can have the letter gratis if the papers are good. If they are not the letter will go unwritten."

"What a narrow escape you have had," she wrote to a friend who had just shaken hands with the Reaper—"and how I wish I had been there! It is so delightful to have been just on the point of annihilation and yet live to tell the moving tale."

"I believe as much in stories as did Abraham Lincoln," she wrote on July 27, 1884, to a Mr. Gregg. "Now, that narrative of Judge Harding is just the sort of stuff to interest the audience.—Are you willing to sell it to me?"

Correspondence Over Anecdote.

"Mr. Gregg," however, who was writing a book on the same subject as her lecture, was obdurate. It required a series of letters, in the course of which her address changed several times and the monogrammed 'K F' on her stationery changed from blue to red and back again, to wrest the right to that anecdote from him.

"If I ever get back the money I've spent on Mormonism I'll be lucky," she ruefully wrote on Sept. 16, 1884, inclosing $30 for rights to the Judge Harding story with a letter which included the interesting sentence, "My 'Mormon Monster' as originally written takes six hours in delivery."

"I wish with my whole heart that I could give you advice worth taking, but I'm completely at sea," she wrote to Gregg two years later. "In case I ever finish my own book, I don't know now what I'd do with it.

"I'm temporarily in Washington, where the Mormons are working like beavers to kill adverse legislation, and they may succeed," she explained, and added a line of significance to a free press: "Congress knows nothing about the subject and cares less.—People and press may stir them up eventually."

Sure She Was a Failure.

"Don't take so gloomy a view of yourself," she advised him on Aug. 1, 1891, on stationary of "Kate Field's Weekly." "All our lives are failures. I'm sure mine is, but I do the best I can.

"I've simply had no time to read your book and nobody else knows anything about Mormonism. As soon as I am able I shall review it, but believe me that nobody buys books on a subject so interesting to you and me. That's the reason I lectured. Not one publisher would take my manuscript, and it turned out best.

"I'm sorry, but as Browning never made money out of his poems until near his death, what can the rest of us expect?

"Never mind my antiprohibitionism."

Less Tuberculosis in Russia.

MOSCOW, May 4.—Tuberculosis shows a downward trend in Russian cities, say the Commissariat of Health. In Leningrad the annual death rate dropped from 33.2 per 10,000 in 1904-8 to 21.1 in 1927. In Moscow the decrease was from 34.5 in 1901 to 15.9 in 1927.

EIGHTH EXHIBITION BY SCHOOL OF FINE ARTS

Work of Students Displayed in Five Galleries at Art Museum.

The St. Louis School of Fine Arts, of which E. H. Wuerpel is director, is holding its eighth annual exhibition at the City Art Museum. About 150 of the school's 400 students are represented in the exhibits, which occupy five galleries and are divided into 10 major groups: Drawing, including life and antique drawing and sketches; painting, sculpture, commercial art, interior decoration, portraits, still life, costume design, magazine illustrations; and the crafts, which are weaving, basketry and batik, leather, pottery and jewelry work.

The opinion of Art School faculty members, as voiced by Victor Holm, for 20 years head of the sculpture department, rates the present exhibition, which was formally opened on April 15 at an Art Alliance tea, as better than any previous display.

"Remember, in judging these things," he said, "that they are all simply studies and not works of art, and so cannot be criticised in quite the same light. But, as a whole, they show sincerity, striving after truth, originality."

Holm pointed out examples of superior skill among the crafts exhibits, some of them the work of first-year pupils, and said that the portraits, though often falling short of accepted standards of beauty, were true to life and expressed the personality of the models. Pausing before some canvasses of Louis Freund, winner of the Edmund Wuerpel Foreign Scholarship of a year's work abroad, and Douglas Crockwell, to whom was awarded the Art Alliance Scholarship, which provides a summer of study in Europe, he said: "The world will hear from them some day."

Holm walked over to the still-life display. "Most artists believe still life a good means of learning painting," he commented, "and this is good still life. It is distinguished by its composition, its color scheme, its color values and their relationship. The shape of that pale creamy porcelain vase is indicated by the depth of its colors.

"In teaching painting, again, we keep away from 'isms,' like futurism and cubism, and stress the academic work, the study of life and antique. We judge color portraits by their placement on the canvas, their color technique, their truth to nature and the character of the model."

He indicated three different portraits of the same model, an Oriental woman wearing a crimson scarf, pointing out the differences in the impressions they made on the artists.

"Abstract ideas are given the students to work out on canvas or in clay," he said, "and each one does it a different way. Some of the work I consider a credit to the school that has turned out artists like Gustave Wolff, Paul Cornoyer, Richard Miller, Frederick Stoddard and Robert Bringhurst. And remember that these students are to be praised not so much for what they have done as for what they will do in the future."

ELABORATE PLANS FOR SUBDIVISION ON CROW TRACT

Association Contemplates Residential Park to Rival, if Not Eclipse, Any District in County.

HILLS, RAVINES, TREES TO BE KEPT

Rock Cascades Gardens and Lily Pools Among Features — $100,000 Residences to Be Erected.

By Berry Moore.

Plans for developing the 57.11 acre tract at the southwest corner of Clayton and Hanley roads, contemplate a residential park that will rival, if not eclipse, the most elaborate in St. Louis County. As was told exclusively in Friday's Post-Dispatch, the tract has been purchased from Mrs. Sophie M. Crow by the Lake Forest Development Association, composed among others of Charles W. Frees, John Hecker, Edward Harrison, C. M. Huttig, W. L. Gourley, Charles Timm, L. C. Blake and J. W. Leigh, architect.

The tract is to be improved with winding drives and divided into 100 lots of 100 feet each. A three-acre island in a lake on the tract will also be cut up into lots. The natural topography will be preserved with the trees, and the drives adapted to rolling ground. Ravines will also be preserved and beautified with rock cascades, rock gardens and lily pools. The drives will be constructed of Telford and will have rock gutters. Water, gas and electric mains will be in conduits.

Plans for $100,000 Residences.

Cost of surface and underground improvements, which will be made under the supervision of J. W. Leigh, architect, will involve a large outlay. Suggested by the lake and the sylvan charm of the place, Lake Forest has been decided upon as the name for the new development.

Building restrictions have not been incorporated, but Leigh said that the cost of the houses would be secondary to the design. No building costing less than $25,000, it is understood, will be permissible under the restrictions. Landscape plans, as well as designs of the houses will be subject to the approval of the association.

Plans were disclosed for several residences to be erected by members of the Lake Forest Development Syndicate, each to cost $100,000 or more, including those for several members of the association, whose names were not available.

The tract is rectangular in shape, with a frontage on Clayton of 1152 feet, with a depth on the east line of 2275 feet. On the south boundary it also extends 1152 feet, and on the west boundary 2275 feet. It is just west of Hampton Park, a subdivision of the ultra class.

Was Magnet for Operators.

The tract, one of the few undeveloped areas in this part of Clayton road, has been a magnet for operators, especially those with ambitious subdivision plans. Mrs. Crow had steadfastly refused to surrender the tract, which was a wedding present from her father, the late Edward J. Gay. It was her original intention to hold it as homesites for her grandsons. Mrs. Crow was a sister-in-law of Wayman Crow, one of the founders of Washington University.

The tract is a part of the original Edward J. Gay estate. The Gay mansion stood on this portion of the estate, which was known as Gay Villa. The fence enclosing the tract is constructed of cypress, brought from the St. Louis Plantation in Louisiana, of which Mrs. Crow is one of the owners. She originally owned an adjoining 20 acres, which she sold several years ago.

Mrs. Crow was represented in the transaction by her grandsons, Wayman Crow and Alexander Crow. Negotiations for the purchasers were handled by A. C. McKaskill and L. G. Noser through the Bishop Realty Co.

YORK WOODLANDS TO GO ON MARKET

The entire York Village Woodlands of 68 acres has been purchased by Frank Tegethoff & Son of Clayton, who have plans for placing the property on the market this spring.

The tract is on the east side of Lay road south of Clayton road and has a frontage of approximately 5,000 feet. It was owned by the York Village corporation, of which Meier & Comfort, Inc., is the dominant stockholder. The purchase price was not disclosed according to L. E. Newell who handled the transaction in connection with Meier & Comfort.

The Tegethoff organization is completing plans for placing the McPherson at Newstead.

These apartment homes, each having seven rooms and three baths, are comparable in beauty and dignity to the private homes in Portland place, Westmoreland place and Brentmoor—each apartment occupies an entire wing in the building, and has three exposures.

There is no apartment in St. Louis comparable in location, design and construction—nothing more desirable for your permanent apartment home.

The character of the Greystone is established by its present class of tenants and the service given.

URGES U. S. TO ACCEPT SHARE IN WORLD COURT

Dr. P. B. Potter Predicts Distrust of Other Nations if We Decline.

Rejection of membership in the World Court by the United States would be serious and increase foreign distrust of this country, Dr. Pitman B. Potter, professor of political science at the University of Wisconsin, told members of the Society on Foreign Affairs at a luncheon-meeting yesterday at the Gatesworth Hotel.

In his address on "American Entrance Into the World Court," Dr. Potter explained that the Court thus far had rendered 29 decisions for members and illustrated the fairness of the organization by telling of a French Judge in the organization who voted against his own country in a controversy with Great Britain in the matter of the citizenship of certain residents of Morocco and Tunis. The enforcement question in decisions, he said, never had arisen. While provision was made in the Court statutes for enforcement, it was not actually practical today, he added.

Explaining the difference between the World Court and the old Hague Tribunal, he explained that the Hague arbitration body was not permanent so far as membership was concerned and that the personnel mistakenly consisted of diplomats rather than men concerned with the legal phases of questions. The Hague group effected compromises instead of actual decisions as the World Court does, he said.

"The World Court's relationship to the League of Nations," Dr. Potter stated, "is very similar to that of the United States Supreme Court to the other sections of the Government. The World Court has on one occasion refused to give an opinion in a matter as requested by the Council of the League. Its statutes likewise make it impossible for the Council to remove any of the Court Judges without a consenting vote of the remainder of the Judges."

Dr. Potter is a member of the United States Commission for the Codification of International Law and has served with the division of international law of the Carnegie endowment for international peace, the Institute of Politics at Williamstown, Mass., and the National Conference on Science of Politics. Before going to the University of Wisconsin, he was an instructor in political science at Harvard, Yale and the University of Illinois.

Dr. Georg Ahrens, German Consul, and M. Dessaules, Italian Consul, attended the meeting.

FRIGHTENS TOURISTS, IS HELD ON DRUNKEN DRIVING CHARGE

A party of badly-frightened automobile tourists hailed a policeman at Grand boulevard and Cass avenue early yesterday and caused the arrest of a young man in a large roadster who they said had pursued them for several blocks after attempting to crowd their machine to the curb on Easton avenue west of Grand.

The young man, who said he was Joseph M. Smith, 24 years old, of 3841 West Pine boulevard, was pronounced intoxicated at City Hospital and was locked up pending application for warrants charging him with carrying a concealed weapon, possession of liquor and driving while intoxicated. The policeman said he found a revolver and a bottle of whisky in his car.

The tourists, Mr. and Mrs. William Reed and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hoffmann, all of Kansas City, were returning from Chicago.

NEW LOS ANGELES COMMANDER

WASHINGTON, May 4.—Lieutenant-Commander Charles E. Rosendahl, commander of the dirigible Los Angeles since May 10, 1926, has been appointed commander of the rigid airship training and experimental squadron. Lieutenant-Commander Hert V. Wiley will succeed to the command of the Los Angeles.

Commander Rosendahl, a survivor of the Shenandoah disaster, has had wide experience in the rigid dirigible field, and the Navy Department said today the change was being made so that the service could profit by this experience. It was explained that the navy wished to train more officers and men for dirigible service so as to have crews for the two giant aircraft now under construction, and for this reason had assigned Rosendahl to this duty. The commander will continue to be stationed at Lakehurst.

HEARST 'AD' AROUSES KANSAS CITY STAR

Stated Missouri Newspaper Published His Editorial on Hoover's Law Speech.

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., May 4.—Protest against publication as an advertisement, of a Hearst editorial purporting to have been printed in the Kansas City Star, on the subject of President Hoover's recent speech on law enforcement, was made in a telegram last night from the Star to William Randolph Hearst.

The editorial appeared in the Hearst newspapers, the advertisement crediting the Star with its publication, appearing later in other newspapers.

Mr. Hoover's address on law enforcement, made before the annual meeting of the Associated Press in New York, in which the President declared that the nation faced a crisis unless there should come a change toward law enforcement, was attacked by the New York publisher's statement. The Star carried the publisher's views in an interview.

The telegram of protest follows: William Randolph Hearst,

The American, New York City:

The Kansas City Star emphatically protests against publication in your newspapers and other newspapers as an advertisement of the Hearst editorial on the Hoover speech and the Jones law, as being reprinted from the Kansas City Star. The Star did not print such an editorial or signed statement. What it did print was an interview with you of less than a column when you passed through Kansas City April 24, but even this was not in the form in which you are printing it in newspapers. After you offered the Star this prepared statement, your secretary was informed that the Star would not print, even as an interview, those parts of your statement that were purely propaganda and had no news interest. It did not do so. The Kansas City Star writes its own editorials. It is not in sympathy with the views expressed in your statement.

GEORGE B. LONGAN,
President and General Manager, the Kansas City Star.

Hearst's Explanation of Republication of Interview.

NEW YORK, May 4.—William Randolph Hearst today replied by telegraph to a protest of the Kansas City Star against publication, as an advertisement of a Hearst editorial purporting to have been printed in the Star and attacking President Hoover's recent speech in New York City on law enforcement. The editorial appeared in the Hearst newspapers and the advertisement crediting the Star with its publication, appeared later in other newspapers. The Star printed Hearst's views in an interview.

Hearst's wire to George B. Longan, president and general manager of the Star, said in part:

'The facts concerning my article are that your reporter persistently requested expressions of opinion from me on the very subjects concerning which I was preparing an article for my papers and I gave him my article with the understanding that my papers would withhold publication until the article had appeared in the Star. This agreement was scrupulously executed on our part and due credit was given to your paper."

U. S. CRUISER SEARCHED FOR LIQUOR BY CUSTOMS AGENTS

Letter Had Said Contraband Might Be Found on Ships of Scouting Fleet.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 4.—A warship of the United States Navy has been searched for liquor by agents of the United States Customs Service.

It was learned today that customs agents yesterday boarded the U. S. S. Richmond, a cruiser of the scouting fleet now anchored in the Hudson River and searched it for four hours. No liquor was found.

The search was the result of a letter to the customs suggesting that when the fleet arrived a search of the Richmond and other ships with it might disclose that the United States Navy was "wet inside as well as out."

When no liquor was found on the Richmond it was decided not to extend the search to other vessels of the fleet.

The informer's letter was postmarked at New York.

NATIONAL BANK RESOURCES OF U. S. DROP $1,567,244,000

Comparison Is With Last Dec. 31.; Increase $1,448,225,000 Compared With February 1928.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 4.—Resources of 7575 National banks in the United States, including Alaska and Hawaii, aggregated $29,021,912,000 at the close of business March 27 when the last National bank call was issued.

This is a decrease, Comptroller of Currency Pole announced today, of $1,567,244,000 since the returns made by 7635 banks on Dec. 31, 1928, the date of the last previous call, but an increase of $1,448,225,000 over the combined resources reported by 7734 banks as of Feb. 28, 1928, the date of the spring call a year ago.

CITY'S 5 CURB MARKETS REOPENED FOR SUMMER

No. 5 Most Popular, With Band Welcoming 41 Farmers Who Have Taken Licenses.

With licenses for produce stands issued to 72 truck farmers, five curb markets at which the grower of vegetables may sell direct to the consumer were reopened yesterday.

At Market No. 5, Broadway and Chippewa street, opening day was greeted with a celebration. A band was employed by neighborhood merchants and the farmers received a rousing sendoff. The farmers were there in force, too, for No. 5 thus far has proved to be the most popular in the city. Of the 72 licenses issued, 41 were for stands at No. 5.

At the other markets, opening-day festivities were less ostentatious. Indeed, at No. 2, Deer street and Easton avenue, they amounted to nothing at all, because not one farmer to date has obtained a license to operate there. Five licenses were issued for No. 1, at Twentieth street and East Grand boulevard; five for No. 4, Grand and Miami, and 21 for No. 3, Sarah and Easton.

The farmer pays $10 a year for his license to sell produce at the curb markets and must comply with several rules, one of which is that he must raise the produce that he sells. There can be no middle man. Vegetables must go direct from the garden to the consumer. Another requirement is that prices be uniform and no higher than prices charged for similar articles by merchants of the vicinity. The quality of produce also must be uniform, which means that berries on the bottom of the box must be as good as those on top.

Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays will be market days and the stands will operate until about Thanksgiving.

IN MEMORIAM

BERGMANN, HELEN (nee Frank)—In loving memory of our darling daughter and sister, and also in memory of the baby, Clarence, who passed away a year ago May 7, 1928:
A year has slowly passed away,
Since you left us, Helen and baby dear,
And in our lives a broken way,
We never can repair.
And as we think of her and baby today,
The ones who loved them so;
Away up in our heavenly home,
She is resting there with her baby I know.
Sadly missed by MOTHER, SISTERS, BROTHERS and those who loved her. (c)

CRISP—In loving memory of my dear wife and our mother, Anna Mary Crisp (nee Kern), who departed this life two years ago, May 6, 1927:
A wonderful mother, woman and aid,
One who was better God never made.
A wonderful worker, so loyal and true,
One in a million, that, mother, was you;
Just in your judgment, always right,
Honest and liberal, ever upright,
Our wonderful mother, that, mother, was you.
Sadly missed by her Husband, Children, Grandchildren and all who loved her.

FLAMME—In loving remembrance of our dear daughter, Miriam, who departed this life May 5, 1928:
No stain was on her little heart,
Sin had not entered there;
And innocence slept sweetly on
That pale white brow so fair.
She was too pure for this cold earth,
Too beautiful to stay,
And so God's holy angel bore
Our darling one away.
Sadly missed by
MOTHER, DADDY AND SISTER, AND ALL WHO LOVED HER.

GANDER—In loving memory of our dear mother, Mrs. Susan Gander, who departed this life May 6, 1928.

Hath come to thee; sleep, darling, it is best.
Sadly missed by her SISTERS to whom she was also a mother, and those who loved her.

It gives a private personal weighing service. An unusual opportunity is offered now to get the usual returns which will come to those who first show these scales. The business is easy and simple. # ROCK ISLAND GETS PERMIT TO EXTEND TO KANSAS CITY

I. C. C. Grants It Right to Construct 70 Miles Needed to Reach That Point.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 4.—Proposal of the Rock Island Railroad to construct 71 miles of line in Missouri between Coburn and Birmingham, thus enabling the line to reach Kansas City over its own rails, was approved today by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The Rock Island now uses trackage rights of the Burlington in making the connection. Under terms of the proposal the new road will be constructed by the St. Paul & Kansas City, a subsidiary of the Rock Island.

TENTATIVE PLANS FOR CENSUS IN MISSOURI

U. S. Authorities Likely to Divide State Into 17 Districts, Two in St. Louis.

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
201-205 Kellogg Building.

WASHINGTON, May 4.—Tentative plans for taking the 1930 census in Missouri have been outlined by William M. Steuart, director of the Commerce Department Census Bureau, in a letter to Representative John J. Cochran (Dem.), St. Louis.

The State will be divided into 17 census districts, each in charge of a supervisor. St. Louis will be divided into two districts, the eighth and ninth, and the supervisors probably will be selected by the two Republican Representatives, L. C. Dyer and Henry F. Niedringhaus, acting with Senator Roscoe C. Patterson (Rep.). The districts in the State will have varying numbers of enumerators, allotted according to the number of political subdivisions in the district. The maximum allotment for the northeastern St. Louis district, the eighth, has been set at 313 enumerators. The maximum allotment for the southwestern or ninth district is 291.

Every supervisor must live in the headquarters of his district, usually the largest town, and each enumerator must be a resident of the section he is to canvass.

Definite plans for the census cannot be made until Congress enacts the necessary legislation and appropriates the expense funds. Three dates are under consideration for the taking of the census, Nov. 1, 1929; Jan. 1, 1930, and May 1, 1930.

Selection of census workers is a political perquisite of the administration. Senator Patterson says that where a census district approximates the Congressional District he will allow the representative from that district, if a Republican, to select the supervisor and the enumerators. In the Democratic districts, Patterson said that he would be guided by the recommendations of the Republican organization.

Supervisors will receive from $1500 to $2500 for two months' work. The enumerators are expected to earn from $5 to $8 a day for two weeks' work in the city districts. In rural districts the daily pay will not be so high, but the work may continue for four weeks.

MEDAL AWARDED FOR AID TO INSTITUTE OF CHEMISTS

Mr. and Mrs. Francis Patrick Garvan Are First to Receive Honor Outside of Profession.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 4.—Mr. and Mrs. Francis Patrick Garvan tonight received the medal of the American Institute of Chemists, awarded "for noteworthy and outstanding service to the science of chemistry," for their financial support of the chemical foundation.

The award to Mr. and Mrs. Garvan, who are not practising chemists, marks the first time the American Institute has gone outside the ranks of the profession to choose recipients of its medal.

John W. Davis, Dr. John J. Abel of Johns Hopkins University, Dr. John H. Finley, Dr. Charles H. Herty and Dr. Frederick E. Breithut, president of the institute, spoke at the presentation ceremonies, which were held in the Engineering Societies' auditorium.

Garvan first became interested in the chemical industry of the United States during his wartime work as head of the Bureau of Investigation of the Alien Property Custodian's office. Since then he and Mrs. Garvan have contributed heavily to the educational program of the chemical foundation, of which he was the first president and which was formed after the war to take over the seized German chemical formulas.

"REPAIR MAN" ADMITS THEFT OF $18 FROM PHONE COINBOXES

Captured When He Comes to "Fix" Telephone in Tower Grove Station.

A man who described himself as James T. Stiles, 29 years old, of 6668 Delmar boulevard, University City, a former Bell Telephone repairman, has confessed that he stole $18 from coinbox telephones in public buildings by representing himself as a repair man, police reported yesterday.

Stiles was captured Friday afternoon when he appeared at the Frisco's Tower Grove Station announcing he had come to repair the telephone. Lawrence Graham, a special agent, was suspicious, and waved to a passing policeman. The "telephone man" ran and was caught a block away.

M'CAWLEY FINDS HIS BILL WEAKENS DRY LAW

Revision Measure Would Not Require Malady Be Written on Whisky Prescriptions.

JEFFERSON CITL, May 4.—Dry members of the Legislature have discovered a pending revision bill which would make it easier to get prescription whisky in this State. It was discovered because of physicians showed some interest in the measure.

The bill would repeal a section of the Missouri statutes, passed in 1919 when the State was looking forward to prohibition, which requires physicians to write on all whisky prescriptions the malady for which the liquor was obtained. It was introduced to repeal what was thought to be an obsolete section, but which is now considered to be entirely workable. The ironical part of it is that the revision bill was introduced by Senator A. L. McCawley of Carthage, sponsor of the 1923 bone dry law. It was drafted by a revision commission clerk, and Senator McCawley introduced it without inquiring closely as to its effect.

When the Kansas City Court of Appeals last week ruled the section was workable in affirming the sentence of a man convicted of possessing intoxicating liquors, Senator McCawley discovered the measure. The court held it was no defense for a person charged with possession of prescribed liquor if the prescription did not have written on it the sickness for which it was obtained.

The court further held the defense might have been good had the defendant been prosecuted in a Federal court but neither the adoption of the Federal prohibition amendment nor enactment of the national prohibition act curtailed the power of the State to regulate or prohibit the use or possession of liquor.

Another effect of the court's ruling was to place purchasers of prescriptions at a disadvantage, because there is no place on prescriptions to write in the nature of the disease, Senator McCawley said. It is understood that Federal prohibition authorities in Missouri have prepared to change the prescription blanks for use in this State if the Legislature does not repeal the law.

Since discovery of its effect, Senator McCawley said the bill could not now be classified as a revision measure, and would probably have to be handled as any other measure. It is now in the Senate Judiciary Committee for action there.

Senator McCawley and other legislators of dry tendencies will oppose the bill. Because of the shotr time left for consideration of bills, the measure is not considered to have much chance of passage.

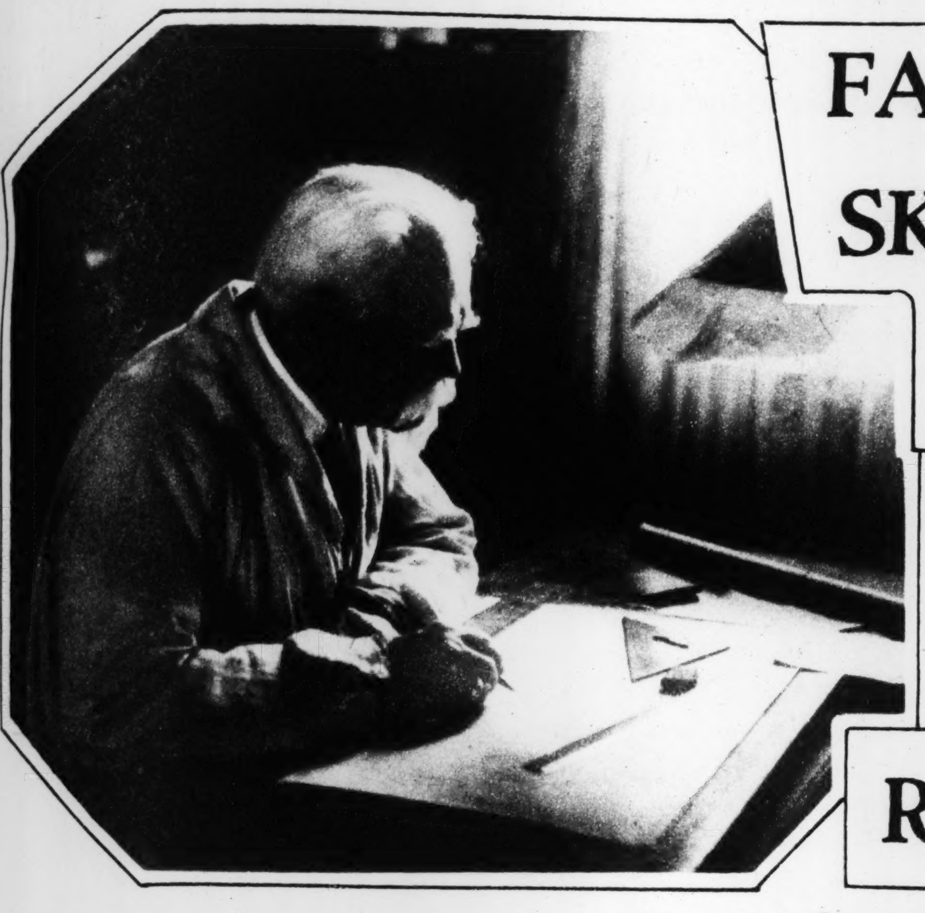
FATHER of the SKYSCRAPER DRAWS HIS FIRST ROYALTY



Leroy S. Buffington, who conceived the idea of a steel skeleton support for buildings, at his desk in Minneapolis.

Design for a 28-Story Structure That Leroy S. Buffington Made in 1882 Was Laughed at Then—But the New Rand Building in Minneapolis Almost Duplicates It.

By GUY FORSHEY

Of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine Staff

MINNEAPOLIS, Minnesota.

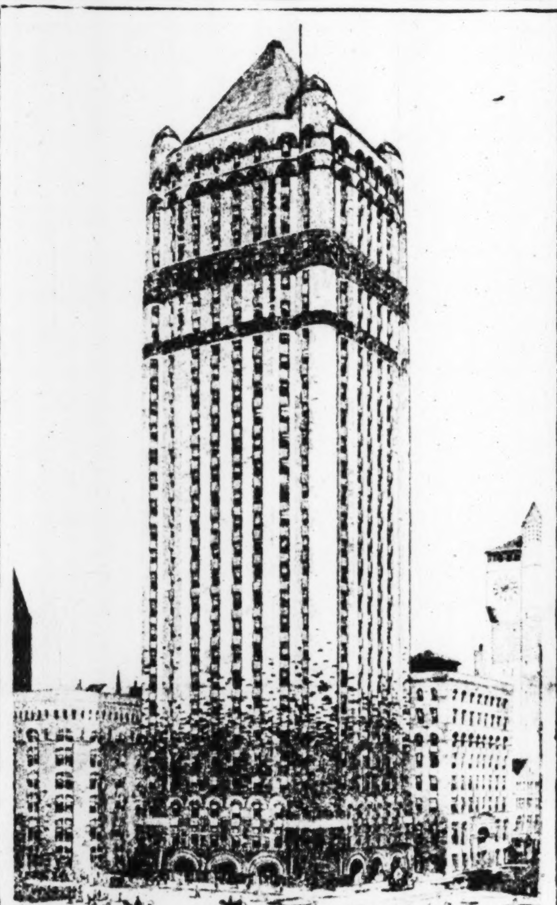
IN THE heart of the business district of Minneapolis a new tower-like office building has just reared its height aloft as an expression in stone and steel of the newest fashion in metropolitan architecture. It is the 27-story Rand Building, erected at a cost of $1,800,000, at Sixth street and Marquette avenue. It is a graceful and thoroughly modern structure. Eclipsing the new Foshay Tower nearby, it dominates the downtown section and appeals strongly to the civic pride of the resident. To the booster—and the town is full of them—it is one more conclusive bit of evidence that Minneapolis quite outshines any other city.

What the local patriots might have said of such a building 47 years ago, when even New York had no skyscrapers, may safely be left to the imagination of those who have heard Minneapolis people talk about their city. But what they might have said is not so important as the fact that had they listened to their leading architect of the day they really might have had this handsome skyscraper or one so similar that the difference is negligible.

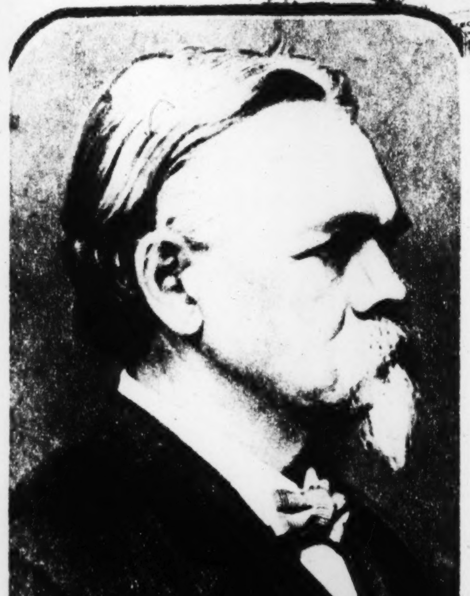
In 1882, exactly 47 years ago, Leroy S. Buffington, the inventor of the skyscraper, the first man to conceive of the now widely used steel skeleton supporting structure, drew plans for a 28-story tower remarkably similar to the Rand Tower just erected. His fellow townsmen called him a dreamer and a lunatic. They laughed long and loudly. The idea of erecting a building with stone or brick walls 28 stories high! It couldn't be done, they said. The expansion and contraction of the steel—or, rather, the iron, for steel wasn't used for building purposes then—would shatter the walls and the plaster. Anyway, buildings of solid masonry had reached the giddy height of nine stories and that was high enough. They never would be built higher and there was no use in wasting time on idle talk about 28-story skyscrapers.

THE joke now isn't altogether on Minneapolis. In forward-looking St. Louis the inventor fared no better than he had here on the upper reaches of the Mississippi. In 1885 he went to St. Louis and presented his plans before a convention of the American Institute of Architects. The response was a round of laughter, and he had to stand for quite a little kidding, only in that day they called it "codding." A picture of his proposed "cloudscraper" was published in the newspapers, and many wise remarks were delivered in leading up to the general conclusion that Leroy S. Buffington was a crack-brained architect.

It was the same way in Chicago, Philadelphia and New York. Builders were still sticking to the old architectural principles of the earliest civilizations, piling up masonry with the weight of the entire structure resting on the walls of the first story. The idea of a steel skeleton frame with shelves to support the wall of each story separately would not register. The world was not ready for skyscrapers. Buffington was too far ahead, so he obtained a patent on his idea in 1888 and settled down to wait for the world to catch up.



The world did catch up eventually, as it nearly always does after poking fun at its prophets. But when it did, it caught up with such a rush that it overwhelmed the man who had pointed the way. It was like the insurgent trail horses of a plunging artillery team running down the leaders. It was something too big for a holder of patent rights to control. The skyscraper got away from him. For 15 years Buffington fought a losing fight to collect royalties. He spent $30,000 in litigation to compel recognition of his inventor's rights. But it all went for nothing. Suits brought against builders of skyscrapers asking for as little as one-eighth of one per cent of the total cost were continued and pushed back until finally, in 1905, the patent rights expired.



Leroy S. Buffington.

It was useless to keep up the struggle, so the inventor withdrew from the contest and sat back, unrecognized and disappointed, to watch cities grow upward in fulfillment of his prophecy. He took no part in that building upward. Ironically, the man who first designed a skyscraper never actually built one. Others who utilized his idea of the steel skeleton did that. This architect's "cloudscrapers" are those which exist only on paper.

All of these unhappy circumstances, however, were to contribute to the pleasant surprise which greeted the 82-year-old architect when, upon opening his mail recently, he found the first royalty payment he had ever received on his invention. It was a check for $2250 from Rufus R. Rand, the Minneapolis millionaire, who owns the new Rand Building. Unsolicited and unexpected, it had come 24 years after his patent rights had expired. It represented one-eighth of one per cent of the total cost of the Rand Building, the percentage Buffington had asked for in his suits against other builders a quarter of a century ago. It constituted recognition at last, and recognition in terms of dollars and cents, for the man who had waited so long for recognition. Still more agreeably, it came from the grandson of one of Mr. Buffington's old-time cronies, although young Rand and the aged architect were not personally acquainted.

It is not to be understood that the new Rand Tower was intentionally modeled after Buffington's tower plans of 47 years ago, nor was that payment of royalty on it made because of the striking similarity of the two. The resemblance was entirely a coincidence. The new structure was designed by a Chicago firm of architects who probably had never heard of Buffington's plan and who had simply followed the modern trend in skyscraper architecture. Neither was the royalty payment in the nature of charity. Mr. Buffington is in comfortable circumstances and not in need of charity. It represented merely an effort on the part of Rand to give credit where credit was due. Here is Rand's own explanation, offered when I called on him recently to learn why he had voluntarily paid a royalty on a dead patent when so many thousands of others had ignored it even when it was still alive.

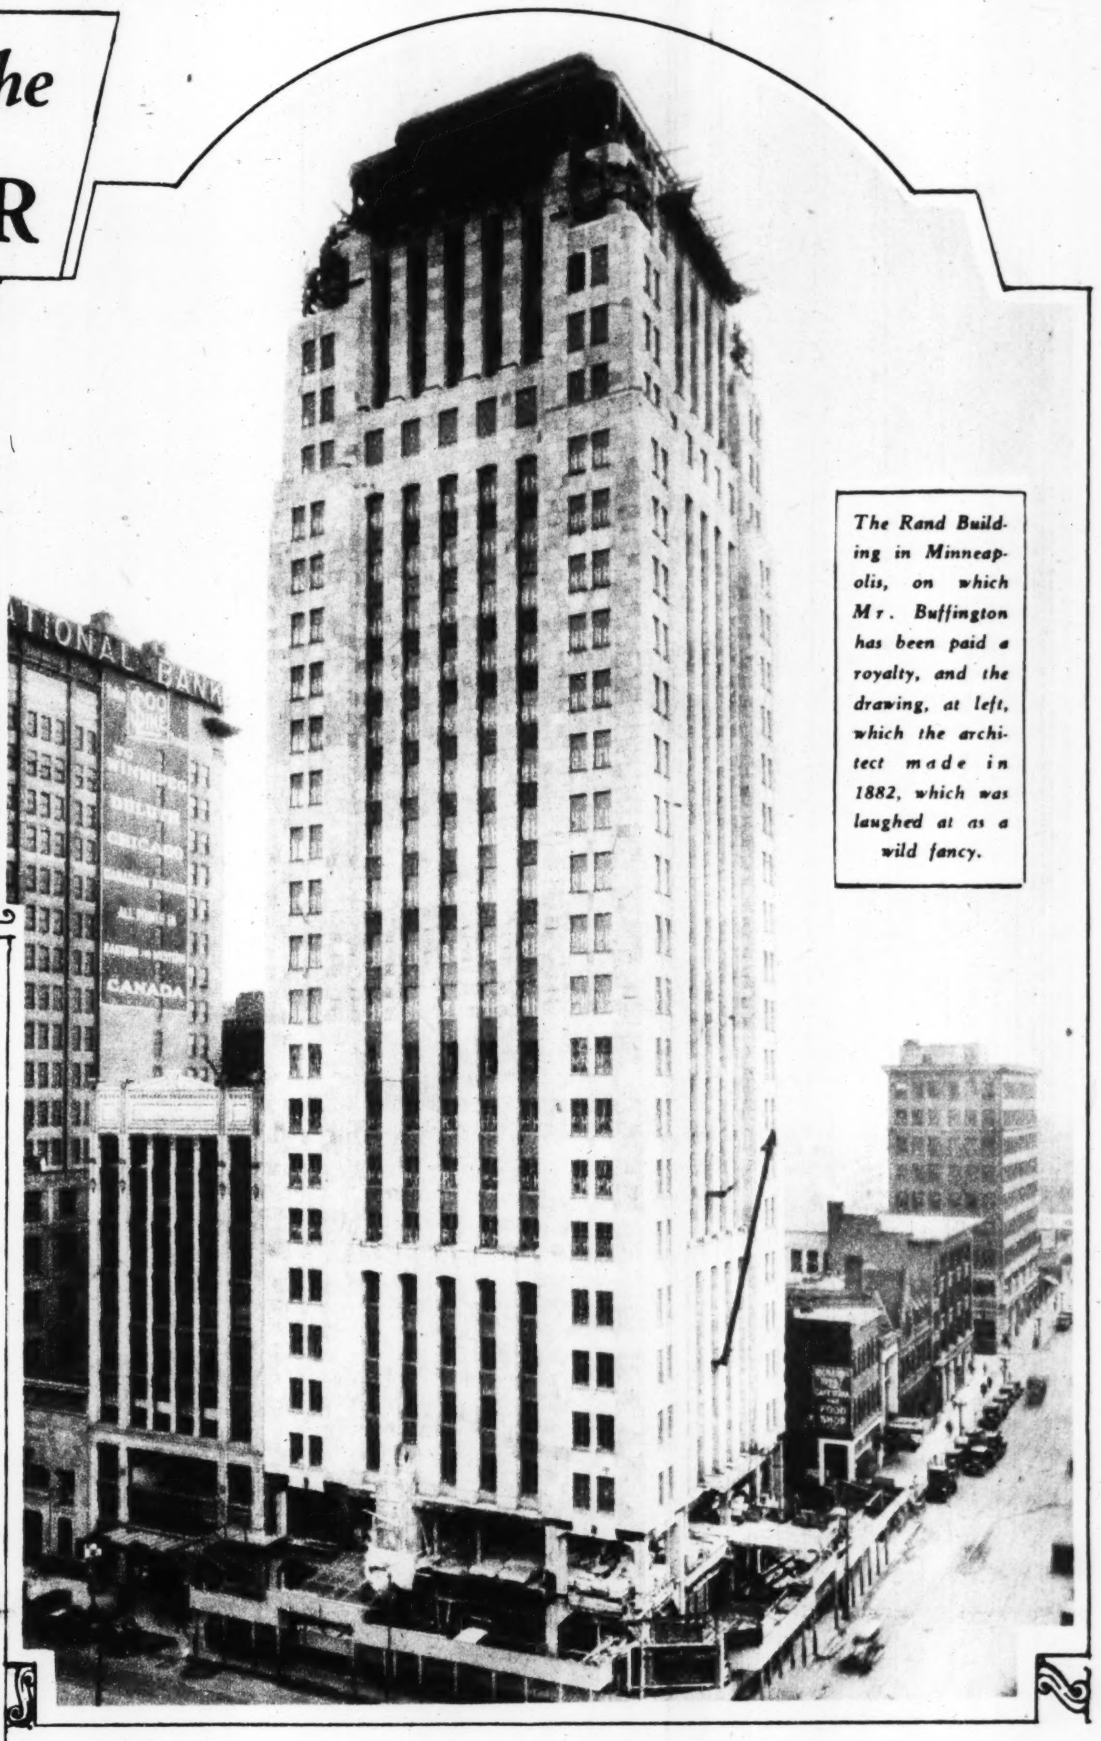
"This building had to be clean throughout," he explained. "It was to be the realization of an artistic ideal. From its very beginning the people of Minneapolis were interested in it and proud of it. Naturally, it had to measure up to expectations all the way from the foundation. I felt that it could not do this unless it paid all its obligations. One of the first of these was the debt—even though it wasn't a legal debt—to Mr. Buffington, because he, unquestionably, was the inventor of the type of architecture employed. The royalty was paid to him because it was due to him."

Unable to believe his eyes, the veteran architect still stands ready, as he puts it, to "give it back if they ask for it." While overjoyed at receiving his first royalty, he can't quite understand why one man should pay it voluntarily when others refused to do so and even fought his claims in court. Rand has assured him, however, that return of the check will not be asked for.

BY THIS time they know Leroy S. Buffington pretty well in Minneapolis as the inventor of the skyscraper, but for a long time they have known him well for works other than that. In 1869 he came to the Twin Cities as a young architect and engineer, just out of the University of Cincinnati. He opened an office in St. Paul in 1871, and two years later moved across the river to Minneapolis. His first important work was the designing of the old Minnesota State Capitol. From that time on until failing eyesight hampered his work four or five years ago, he stood at the top of his profession.

His business was at its crest in the eighties, when he maintained a large suite of offices and employed 30 draftsmen. The list of his clients is a distinguished one, including, among many others, the names of five Governors, four members of the Pillsbury family, famous in the milling business; Cyrus Northrop and William Watts Folwell, presidents of the University of Minnesota; Archbishop Ireland, Bishop McGolerick and Senator Knute Nelson.

More than half of Buffington's business was outside the city and much of it in other states than Minnesota. He was the builder of 42 hotels, two of them in Yellowstone Park; two state capitols, numerous railway stations, half a dozen or more University of Minnesota buildings, several churches and auditoriums, several flour mills and innumerable apartment houses, business buildings, schools and residences. Of all these works, one stands out clearly as a masterpiece. Up to the time when he hit upon the idea of the skyscraper, it was the expression of his most extravagant dream. It was the West Hotel in Minneapolis, at one time the most celebrated structure of its kind in the world.



The Rand Building in Minneapolis, on which Mr. Buffington has been paid a royalty, and the drawing, at left, which the architect made in 1882, which was laughed at as a wild fancy.

BUILT in 1882, the West Hotel, which is still operating under its original name, was an architectural curiosity. It attracted builders and sightseers from all parts of the world. Rising to the appalling height of nine stories, it looked down upon the city's other buildings as the Rand and Foshay towers do now. According to present-day standards, it was rather squatty, but in 1882 it ranked as one of the world's tallest brick buildings and, its builder says, was the largest and most complete hotel ever erected as a single unit up to that time. Its height is still worthy of attention when it is considered that it has in its construction not one piece of upright supporting steel or iron. Its walls are of solid masonry, built from the ground up, and its lobby, 70 by 90 feet, is without a single supporting column.

An unusually large number of iron beams were used in the building, but these were cross beams, which rested upon the masonry instead of supporting the walls. Their use, however, and the architect's earlier use of a great deal of iron in the construction of the seven-story Boston Block, nearby, appear to have been the germ of the skyscraper idea taking hold. With this taste for iron already established, his mind was in a receptive state when, a little later, he came upon this passage in one of Violett le Duc's discourses on architecture:

"A practical architect might not unnaturally conceive the idea of erecting a vast edifice whose frame should be entirely of iron, and clothing that frame, preserving it by means of a casing of stone."

However, having suggested the way, the author had put himself back in the dark with the following observation:

"But it cannot be too often repeated, iron should be left independent—it cannot be allied with masonry."

Instead of accepting that as final, Buffington made tests to determine just how much the expansion and contraction of iron and steel would disturb allied masonry and found it to be negligible. Then, after many nights and Sundays spent in puzzling over a method for clothing a steel skeleton with brick and stone, he was seized with an inspiration: Why not use a shelf fastened to the skeleton to carry each story of masonry separately? That was the secret of the skyscraper—the steel shelf which not only supports the wall of each story separately but enables builders to start laying the brick wall of a structure at the top story or at the half-way point instead of at the bottom. Indeed, the wall of the first story of a modern skyscraper is usually the last to be built.

Buffington first applied for a patent in 1882, incorporating plans for his 28-story building to show what he proposed to accomplish. But search of the records to determine whether such an idea already had been registered delayed the issue until 1888, when patent rights for 17 years were granted. It seems now rather remarkable that, from the beginning of civilization up to 1888, not one building on the face of the globe had a braced skeleton of metal with shelves supporting the veneer, and it also seems unaccountable that the idea lay dormant several years after Buffington's patents were granted and published before the general public could understand how a building could be built like the human body—with a skeleton that supports the rest.

AT 82, Mr. Buffington is still active and husky, and still an architect. He maintains a studio in his home filled with his drawings and with art objects gathered in his travels over the world. Estimating the total cost of skyscrapers of the world at $350,000,000,000, he has figured that had he been able to collect his royalties he would be worth today something like $312,000,000. As it is, he isn't wealthy, but has enough, he says, to enable him to do what he wants to do after sending his five sons and daughters through the University of Minnesota. That he has already done.

Laying aside his years, he still views the future with the eyes of youth and looks forward to architectural works yet to be accomplished. He has just collected his first royalty and thinks it is a good start for a young man. And who knows? Maybe other builders will remember, as Rufus Rand did, that the skyscraper's debt to its inventor has not yet been paid.

The Gang Fight that was Staged to Wreck a Road House—and Its Results

Ruth Bradley, better known as "Hot Shot Ruth."

WASHINGTON, D. C.

WHEN the women's screams had dissolved themselves into half-audible wailing, when the pungent pistol smoke had spent itself, when the cursing had died down and the last window glass had been smashed, someone lit a candle and began to take morbid inventory. Poutra lay in the doorway, a bullet through his abdomen; Hauser was unconscious, a shot burning in his shoulder; in a heap at the foot of the stairway Behrens moaned from the great wound in his scalp that a smashing chair had accomplished. Broken window glass, shattered furniture all about; "Green Gables Inn," two miles from the District of Columbia line, in Maryland, looked as though it had been through a reign of terror—and it had.

Just another road-house brawl? Nothing of the sort. For when the police began digging into the trouble, they found a shrewd plan behind it all, the effort of one gang of whisky runners to smash up and publicly discredit a place that was about to come into possession of a rival gang engaged in the same trade; a sly onslaught to put out of business a road house which was to shelter the rival's traffic in illicit goods. The whole affair was a typical example of the lengths to which a booze gang will go in an effort to ruin a rival, regardless of what brutalities may result.

Experience with bootleg gangs has shown that when the stake is big enough—and it was in this case—gangdom stops at nothing. Life, property, whether of the belligerents themselves, or of innocent bystanders, is sacrificed ruthlessly as a matter of course.

IT WAS on a Saturday night that Wesley Poutra, an automobile mechanic, met several of his friends in a downtown Washington restaurant. Poutra, a bridegroom of less than two weeks, greatly in love with his wife, lived in a second-floor apartment on S street. Across the hall from them lived Ruth Lynette Bradley, known as "Hot Shot Ruth," and on the same floor lived Louis Behrens, whom the gang called "John Bunny."

On this particular evening Mrs. Poutra was in Atlantic City, called there by the death of her mother. And Poutra was lonely. But among those he met in the restaurant were John Brenner and Joe Hauser.

Hauser had an engagement with Ruth Bradley at 10 o'clock, and when she met him at the restaurant, she suggested that Poutra and Brenner follow her and Hauser to Green Gables Inn where they were planning to spend the evening. Poutra, glad for something to do, agreed, and he and Brenner trailed Ruth and her escort out to the road house, where they arrived at about 11 o'clock.

The proprietors, Paul Beach and his wife, were about to close the place for the evening, no guests having arrived up to that time, and were conversing with the four arrivals on the subject of keeping open for a while, when several more carloads drove up, one a group including Lucille Grissom and Evelyn Medcalf. These two girls, subsequently, denied that they were present, but on the strength of almost unanimous testimony that they were there they were held as accessories after the fact.

With the improved outlook for the evening's business, Beach and his wife decided to remain open for the guests, and the two parties went inside, one group consisting of Poutra and his companions, and the other of a group, mostly men, headed by Emilio Torres, who owned a downtown restaurant and was known to everyone in Poutra's crowd.

Inside, the phonograph was started, the two parties intermingled more or less, and a man in Torres' party began paying marked attention to Ruth.

RUTH, on the way out to the road house, had picked up Behrens, whom she happened to see walking along the street, and as the evening wore on he danced several times with her. Drinks were plentiful, and the spirits of the party ran high. But by 2:30 o'clock the young man in Torres' party was apparently greatly annoyed by Behrens' attentions to Ruth, and he finally walked to the middle of the dance floor, tore them away from each other while they were dancing, and demanded that Behrens come outside and fight.

Behrens had been drinking far less than the rest of the crowd, and realizing that trouble was brewing, he sought to quiet the young man as best he could by explaining that he was a married man, was in love with his wife, who was at that time in New Orleans, and was only dancing with Ruth out of politeness because she had brought him out to the place in her car.

This seemed to appease the other—he was an Italian and had been accorded the title "Wop"—and the two went back inside, arm in arm. No sooner were they back in the room, however, than the "Wop" broke away from him, looked him in the eye, and said:

"I'll take on any yellow ——— in the room!"

Behrens, stung by the insult, was about to oblige him with a blow on the chin when someone from behind struck Behrens on the side of the head, stunning him. Behrens turned quickly around, to see who had done it, and found arrayed there the entire group of strangers, their attitude menacing.

Realizing that there was nothing to do but retreat, he backed away to the stairs leading to the floor above, and started to make his way up, going backwards, one step at a time. But before he had gone three steps there came a sudden, splintering, crashing blow from above as someone broke a chair over his head, and he crumpled in a heap at the foot of the stairway.

What Happened When the "Green Gables Inn" Was Coveted by Two Rival Booze Outfits.

At that instant the lights went out, and pandemonium broke loose. Furniture was wrecked, tables splintered to bits, the phonograph smashed to pieces, windows broken, and through it all was a constant rain of bullets, guns spitting fire first from this corner of the room, then from that.

There were moans from those who were hurt, shrieked curses from those who were the drunkest, screams of panic from the women. Then, after fifteen minutes of hell, the air suddenly cleared, there was a scampering through the door, a sudden roar of automobile motors, a rapidly fading drone as the cars vanished in the night.

Brenner, the first to come to his senses, lighted a candle and after a brief inspection of the place saw that Poutra, lying in the doorway, was the most seriously injured, having been shot through the stomach. He managed to bring Hauser and Behrens to consciousness, the former with a bullet wound in the shoulder, and the other with a great gaping wound in his scalp. Together they bandaged Behrens' shoulder, and dragged the unconscious form of Poutra through the doorway into one of the three roadsters remaining in the yard outside. As there was not room for all of them in one machine, Brenner volunteered to drive Poutra to a hospital, and the other two expressed the belief that they could manage to drive one of the cars to town in some way or other. Physicians later were amazed that either had strength enough to move the steering wheel, let alone get the car into the city.

THE first that Washington police knew of the shooting was when a motorcycle policeman, patrolling the road which leads into the city from the neighborhood of the road house, heard the roar of a motor, saw the roadster flash by and gave futile pursuit. He had been hiding in a side road, waiting for speeders, but his motor had become quite cold, and before he could warm it sufficiently to even keep apace with the car, it was out of sight.

He did, however, get a sufficient glimpse of the racing machine to ascertain that it was a new gray, black and orange sport roadster of a familiar make, that it had five men in it, and carried Pennsylvania license tags. He estimated that the machine was making about 80 miles an hour or better when it flashed by him.

Suspicious, the officer immediately called police headquarters to see if there was any report of trouble in the neighborhood. The desk sergeant informed him that there had been none. Five minutes later he called again, and learned that since his first query, Maryland authorities had reported a shooting at the Green Gables road house. A general lookout was immediately ordered throughout the police precincts of the city for the roadster, in the belief that it might have contained the murderers, but the gaudy flash seemed to have been swallowed up.

AS NEWS from the hospital came in, coupled with information obtained from the injured persons, Maryland and Washington authorities began to piece together their story, and Detective Chief Kelley of Washington started his investigation of the case from the District of Columbia angle.

Kelley had been looking for Ruth Bradley, by whom the affray was supposed to have been caused. She was wanted by District authorities for larceny of $1148 worth of furniture.

Therefore, Washington police had their own reasons for finding the fugitive gunmen, though it was conceded that the shooting had been done by Philadelphia gangsters.

Sunday, the day after the shooting, Behrens and Brenner were arrested and taken to Marlborough, Maryland, the county seat of Prince Georges County—the county in which the road house stood—for questioning, but little could be drawn from them. Brenner claimed he was outside when the fight occurred and only came in when the shooting began. Behrens would say no more than that he had quarreled with another man over a girl named Ruth Bradley, and had been knocked unconscious, remembering nothing more.

But in the investigation a green car had been found on the lawn of Green Gables Inn. In the pocket of it had been discovered a woman's purse, with lipstick, powder, rouge, a handkerchief, a little change and an automobile operator's permit bearing the name Ruth L. Bradley.

By this time "Hot Shot Ruth" Bradley seemed to be playing an important part in the drama, and police concentrated their efforts on an attempt to find her. But she was not at her apartment, and no one had any clew to her whereabouts.

The next move was a general dragnet for everyone who had attended the party, laid by Washington police, and the result was the arrest of Evelyn Medcalf, who was posing under the name of Evelyn Austin; Lucille Grissom, who was with her; Emilio Torres, who was alleged to have brought the supposed gangsters to the road house; Effie Martin, whom District police refused to turn over to Maryland authorities because they wanted her themselves for larceny, and Hauser, who was still in the hospital.

Torres, Evelyn Medcalf, Lucille Grissom and Effie Martin were all arrested on the strength of Maryland warrants charging "felonious presence," and with the exception of the Martin girl were placed in the Marlborough Jail. Meanwhile, the Maryland authorities swore out five more warrants, charging assault with intent to kill, against Ruth Bradley, Hauser, two men from Philadelphia named Ernie Miller and Mike Dan, and a girl named Barbara Bond. None of the last three has even been arrested.

Early Monday morning Poutra died, and the case changed from one of shooting to killing.

ON the same morning the Prince Georges County authorities received information that the person responsible for Poutra's death was one Lynn Dalton, who had been present at the party, but whose name before this had not been mentioned. Ordinarily no particular notice would have been taken of this, beyond a casual investigation, as scores of tips were pouring into Marlborough and Washington police headquarters every hour. But Monday afternoon the jailer at Marlborough intercepted a letter to one of the girls there, mailed from Richmond, and saying that the writer would "stay down South until everything blows over."

It was signed "Lynn Dalton."

Chief Kelley, curious, examined the letter, and formed ideas of his own. While the Maryland authorities were broadcasting a far and wide search for Lynn Dalton, he got in touch with Richmond and, as a clew, followed an address given in the letter. Late Monday night there came a telegram from the police of Florence, South Carolina:

"Have arrested girl stopping at address given in your wire. Claims her name is Ruth Bradley. Please advise."

Kelley, noticing that the handwriting in the letter was that of a woman and that the middle name of Ruth Bradley was Lynette, put two and two together and concluded that Lynn Dalton was probably "Hot Shot Ruth." Finding out from the house in which she had stayed in Richmond that she had gone to Florence, he wired to police there to be on the lookout for her at the forwarding address she had left in the Virginia capital, and the Florence police had found her without difficulty.

IN THE investigation by the combined authorities of Maryland and the District, facts gradually were brought out that indicated that while "Hot Shot Ruth" may have been the immediate excuse for the riot at Green Gables, the underlying cause of the shooting was the feud between two Washington racketeers, whose names are known to the police but have not been made public.

These telling facts were learned by the police: That both racketeers had tried to buy Green Gables Inn, the purpose of each to make it a fashionable road house to use as a cover for rum-running activities. That Beach, who owned it, refused to sell. That business at the establishment did not progress as Beach thought it should. That he finally reached an agreement with one of the two racketeers to sell to him at a high price. That the other, believing his competitor had "pulled a fast one on him," decided that rather than let his opponent get the road house he would wreck the place, bring it to the attention of county authorities, ruin it for any possible use as a liquor rendezvous.

Importing gunmen from Philadelphia for the job, the party was then framed with the utmost care, the original plan being simply to shoot the place up, wreck the furniture and equipment and so completely destroy the property that it would have to be just about rebuilt before it could again be used.

Too much liquor on the part of the gunmen, and, perhaps, a sincere note of ire on the part of the "Wop," turned the affair into something more than a wrecking party, and when an opportunity for a real fight was offered the visitors, they promptly took advantage of it and committed murder in so doing.

LOS ANGELES, California.

SIR HUBERT WILKINS, not content, evidently, with braving the Arctic wastes on their uncompromising surfaces and sailing by plane through the bitter air above them, now contemplates, as he recently announced, investigating the waters under them by submarine. When he first made known his under-sea plans the great hazards of the proposed journey were obvious. But not so obvious was the type of under-sea boat which he would use in this strange exploration and which is described in this article.

Captain Wilkins has considered all the difficulties that will be involved on his proposed voyage. And he has so made his plans, he believes, that he will triumph over any danger that may come his way.

Captain Wilkins knows the perils of the Far North. He has flown a plane over "the top of the world" and has voyaged by ship and aircraft into remote regions around the bottom. He has mushed behind dog sledges in the Arctic and again has tramped on skiis in the uncharted wastes surrounding the South Pole. He has been marooned on an ice floe in the frozen North and left without food there when cached supplies were lost. He has been rescued from death numerous times. But while all these experiences were interesting, they did not suffice. He wanted something different, something that Peary and Stefansson and Byrd and other explorers had not done. Then came the precious idea not long ago: Down beneath the ice on the ocean floor at the North Pole!

The more he thought about it the more glamorous it grew. "If I don't do it, someone else will," he soliloquized. "It's perfectly practicable. I'll have a go at it!"

letter, and formed ideas of his own. While the Maryland authorities were broadcasting a far and wide search for Lynn Dalton, he got in touch with Richmond and, as a clew, followed an address given in the letter. Late Monday night there came a telegram from the police of Florence, South Carolina:

"Have arrested girl stopping at address given in your wire. Claims her name is Ruth Bradley. Please advise."

Kelley, noticing that the handwriting in the letter was that of a woman and that the middle name of Ruth Bradley was Lynette, put two and two together and concluded that Lynn Dalton was probably "Hot Shot Ruth." Finding out from the house in which she had stayed in Richmond that she had gone to Florence, he wired to police there to be on the lookout for her at the forwarding address she had left in the Virginia capital, and the Florence police had found her without difficulty.

IN THE investigation by the combined authorities of Maryland and the District, facts gradually were brought out that indicated that while "Hot Shot Ruth" may have been the immediate excuse for the riot at Green Gables, the underlying cause of the shooting was the feud between two Washington racketeers, whose names are known to the police but have not been made public.

These telling facts were learned by the police: That both racketeers had tried to buy Green Gables Inn, the purpose of each to make it a fashionable road house to use as a cover for rum-running activities. That Beach, who owned it, refused to sell. That business at the establishment did not progress as Beach thought it should. That he finally reached an agreement with one of the two racketeers to sell to him at a high price. That the other, believing his competitor had "pulled a fast one on him," decided that rather than let his opponent get the road house he would wreck the place, bring it to the attention of county authorities, ruin it for any possible use as a liquor rendezvous.

Importing gunmen from Philadelphia for the job, the party was then framed with the utmost care, the original plan being simply to shoot the place up, wreck the furniture and equipment and so completely destroy the property that it would have to be just about rebuilt before it could again be used.

Too much liquor on the part of the gunmen, and, perhaps, a sincere note of ire on the part of the "Wop," turned the affair into something more than a wrecking party, and when an opportunity for a real fight was offered the visitors, they promptly took advantage of it and committed murder in so doing.

Sir Hubert Wilkins' Plans for Exploring the Floor of the Ocean on Top of the World.

By A. L. WOOLDRIDGE

A Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

LOS ANGELES, California.

SIR HUBERT WILKINS, not content, evidently, with braving the Arctic wastes on their uncompromising surfaces and sailing by plane through the bitter air above them, now contemplates, as he recently announced, investigating the waters under them by submarine. When he first made known his under-sea plans the great hazards of the proposed journey were obvious. But not so obvious was the type of under-sea boat which he would use in this strange exploration and which is described in this article.

Captain Wilkins has considered all the difficulties that will be involved on his proposed voyage. And he has so made his plans, he believes, that he will triumph over any danger that may come his way.

Captain Wilkins knows the perils of the Far North. He has flown a plane over "the top of the world" and has voyaged by ship and aircraft into remote regions around the bottom. He has mushed behind dog sledges in the Arctic and again has tramped on skiis in the uncharted wastes surrounding the South Pole. He has been marooned on an ice floe in the frozen North and left without food there when cached supplies were lost. He has been rescued from death numerous times. But while all these experiences were interesting, they did not suffice. He wanted something different, something that Peary and Stefansson and Byrd and other explorers had not done. Then came the precious idea not long ago: Down beneath the ice on the ocean floor at the North Pole!

The more he thought about it the more glamorous it grew. "If I don't do it, someone else will," he soliloquized. "It's perfectly practicable. I'll have a go at it!"

The next thing anyone knew, Captain Wilkins was in the shipyards at Bridgeport, Connecticut, inspecting the submarine Defender and reaching the conclusion that with the addition of some special equipment it would be precisely what he would need for one of the strangest cruises the world has ever known.

"I've got to make another trip to the Antarctic in October," he said, "but when I get back I'll make ready for the voyage in the submarine. I think it safer than anything I ever have done. It's entirely feasible."

Captain Wilkins boarded a train for Los Angeles to confer with associates who had backed his previous expeditions to the North and South poles. He visited the Avion Laboratories in Glendale, California, talked with the heads of aviation companies, got into telephone communication with New York associates and announced that the trip under the ice into the Arctic sea probably would be undertaken the middle of next summer—the summer of 1930.

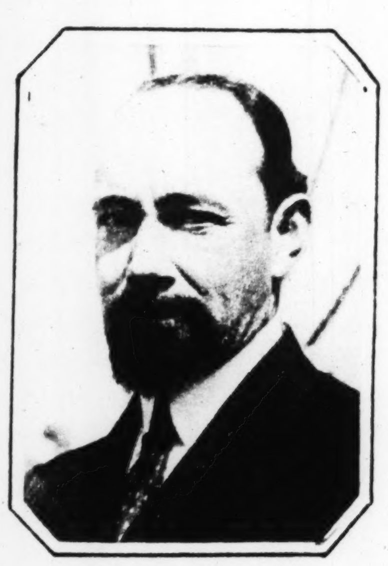
Enthusiastically, the explorer of the poles described the submarine which he purposes fitting up for the cruise. Primarily, he said, the craft will be long and narrow—pencil-like almost—to enable it to readily get through or out of pockets in the ice. The craft will be about 98 feet in length, equipped with two 200-horsepower Diesel engines and have a cruising range of 3500 miles.

"The distance to be covered is not more than 2000 miles from New York," Captain Wilkins explained, "but provision must be made for emergencies."

IN THE dark depths of the icy sea, with no sun, stars or recognizable objects to guide them, how could the ship be held to its course, and how could he tell when he had arrived at his destination? he was asked. How could he prevent everything being scraped from the top of his craft as it skidded against the bottom of the ice? How could the submarine be extricated if it stuck between the bottom of the ice and the floor of the ocean? What would the crew do in such a situation—die like rats in a trap? What if the supply of air became exhausted while they were beneath a million tons of frozen water? Would they not be forever lost?

Great numbers of such questions concerning the strange voyage presented themselves. But they all had come previously to Wilkins' mind.

"In my flight by plane over the North Pole regions last year," Captain Wilkins explained, "I found that there are many open places in the Arctic Ocean. It will not be necessary for our submarine to stay submerged continuously. There are plenty of leads, or breaks in the ice, through which we may come up for air. The ice ranges from 10 to 120 feet in thickness and I propose installing two seven-inch power-driven drills on the top of the ship to bore holes in case we are caught with an insufficient supply of oxygen. With these holes made the engines may be started and a new supply of air pumped in. But we will carry, of course, extra tanks of oxygen, to be loosed if needed."



Captain Sir Hubert Wilkins.

Visions of being entrapped beneath floes hold no terror for the adventurer. Ten or twenty feet of solid ice overhead, with the supply of air in the submarine low, brings no fear.

For Captain Wilkins says he does not propose to allow his submarine to get into any perilous traps. Above the craft, he explains, will be a sturdy iron rod, similar to a trolley pole, which, acting under hydraulic pressure, will keep the ship a safe distance below the bottom of the ice. And if by any chance the craft did run into a place where the ocean was frozen nearly to the bottom or the prow became wedged in a crevice, there will be an airtight chamber through which members of the crew, in diving suits, may emerge and devise means for getting the vessel loose. Then there will be wheels on the bottom of the submarine for trundling it across any obstruction on the ocean floor when it would be unsafe to operate the propellers. This trundling would be done by the crew in the diving suits. Captain Wilkins intends taking 10 men with him on the voyage.

"I have tried to figure in advance any contingency which might arise," he continued. "I expect to install every safety device possible before we start. For instance, there will be hydraulic 'feelers,' or 'shock absorbers,' sticking out from the vessel in all directions to prevent collisions with ice or boulders or obstructions on the ocean's floor. Preparation of these protections will be simple—merely a matter of mechanics."

In fact, there is nothing in the proposed cruise which calls for any superhuman effort or impossible device, according to the explorer. It is all just a ramble in a comfortable submarine, attended by no such hardships as are encountered by men who face the elements on the surface of the sea. There will be warm rooms, electric lights, an abundance of food, with assurance of some luxury.

Some may doubt the chances of such an expedition under the ice, but Captain Wilkins doesn't. He admits it is no pink-tea affair, but insists it is not an extremely hazardous undertaking. He points out that the voyage has, of necessity, to be through Arctic water, but he says that while storms might scourge the surface they would not mean anything to the men complacently sitting in the submarine. The darkness beneath the ice would be of no consequence because dynamos in the craft would provide sufficient light to send illumination out into the waters, thereby affording means of studying the under-sea life.

The principal benefit to be derived from the expedition would be in charting the ocean floor, measuring the strength and flow of currents and finding, if possible, an under-sea lane through which super-submarines might transport cargoes from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and do it more quickly and more cheaply than ships can now go from New York to Seattle by way of the Panama Canal. Furthermore, the relations of Arctic storms to weather conditions throughout all the world could, in time, Captain Wilkins thinks, be calculated and be of great benefit to farmers and to stockmen who have herds to pasture.

THE proposed voyage, starting from New York, would be by way of Spitzbergen to Alaska. When he flew over this part of the earth last year the elements prevented him and his pilot, Karl Ben Eielson, from landing and taking soundings of the sea. In that flight they covered 2200 miles, 1300 of which never had been seen by man. They noted countless breaks, or leads, in the ice, through which water showed. They saw few signs of animal life as the plane roared its way above the trackless wastes. Once, when forced down, Wilkins and his pilot were marooned for days before they could take off again. And then Eielson discovered that his companion, in helping push the plane loose from the ice, had been left behind. He went back after him.

It must be understood that the Arctic Circle in midsummer is not a land of bitter cold, swept continuously by stinging storms. On the contrary, it is a region abounding with open water. When Captain Roald Amundsen's party hopped off in planes from Spitzbergen in May, 1925, their Dorneier-Wal flying boats came to grief six hours later with the gasoline supply half gone. The ships landed in a mushy lead with two and one-half miles of open water before them. Nearly a month elapsed before the explorers could get one plane on a solid runway and start back to civilization.

IN HIS successful flight last year Wilkins started in April, one month earlier in the season than Amundsen had started in 1925. But he, too, found long stretches of open water even that early in the summer season. So, he figures, the voyage in the submarine in July or August should find a maximum of unfrozen ocean surface and make the going comparatively safe.

Before this trip can be undertaken Wilkins is to make his second exploration into the Antarctic. He plans returning to Deception Island next October with the whalers who have been operating at this far southern point for 40 years. From his base, established during his recent trip, his two planes will bear him and his aides into the South Pole's uncharted wastes.

"I hope to find points for the establishment of meteorological stations," he said. "These, too, will assist in compiling data from which weather conditions may be forecast. They will be of immeasurable importance to the world."

Many questions pertaining to the world may be answered as a result of Wilkins' expedition in the submarine. Some scientists have maintained that the terrain surrounding both poles is flat and may even have depressions

Marian Terry Lived Near the Oil Fields All Her Life but Never Thought of Them Until, at Sixteen, She Recently Came Into 40 Acres.

Miss Marian Terry.

The Terry home in Okmulgee, Oklahoma.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

OKMULGEE, Oklahoma.

MISS MARIAN TERRY, attractive high school junior of this city, has spent the 16 years of her life virtually within sight and sound of busy oil-field operations. Oil derricks with their wheezing pumps are as familiar to her as houses and motor trucks. From infancy she has had a speaking acquaintance with gushers, royalties, leases, field development, deep tests and those other terms peculiar to an oil-producing region. She has seen members of the Creek Indian tribe get rich overnight and come to town clad in wide hats and gaudy shawls to "blow the roll" for expensive automobiles and jewelry.

SHE has seen poor whites elevated from comparative poverty to a position of vast affluence through a "strike" on some hard-won but barren quarter-section homestead. Yet, brought up in this atmosphere of get-rich-quick activity, Marian Terry remained actually as far from personal interest in oil as a fisherman's daughter on the coast of Maine. She never pictured herself as an oil heiress or suspected that some day she would be watching oil field reports with an eager eye.

But stranger things have happened in the oil fields than that Marian Terry, owning no land or leases, should awake suddenly to find herself heralded far and wide as an oil heiress. Not long ago the Terry family received a very official-looking document from the Boone County Trust Company of Columbia, Missouri. It proved to be the copy of a will. To the young lady's astonishment she found herself the owner of 40 acres in the heart of the Duncan oil field of Stephens County, Oklahoma, a new field yet undeveloped but looked to for future maintenance of the State's long-held supremacy in the oil industry. Nobody knows its real value beyond the significant fact that it is a tract that oil barons would fight over and hold until the last acre had been tested. Not only did Marian inherit a prized tract of oil land. She was made heir to half of this Missouri gentleman's residuary estate, the other half being divided equally between her younger brother and sister. And it was all due to an incident of 11 years ago that lends to the whole occurrence the flavor of a fairy tale.

Clinton Lyon, at right, and a friend.

In 1918, when Marian was a child of 5, her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Terry, took her with them on a business trip to Oklahoma City. They stopped at the Lee Huckins Hotel. Playing about the lobby, Marian attracted the notice of a quiet, middle-aged man who for some time had been a guest of the hotel. He was charmed by the little girl's flowing curls and wide brown eyes. He asked her name and for an hour forgot business affairs to become a delighted listener to this fairy-like child's babbling. Then he introduced himself to her parents and asked permission to take the little girl to a movie.

THE hotel clerk, overhearing the conversation, answered an obvious question before the mother could ask it. This gentleman, he said, was Clinton Lyon, State manager of a large fire insurance company, who had resided at the hotel for several years. He was a responsible person and a fine character and the parents need have no fear of entrusting their small daughter to his care. So Marian went to the show. A few hours later, Mr. and Mrs. Terry returned to the hotel to find Marian and the kind stranger eating candy and having a great time with the comic sections of three or four Sunday newspapers. A great friendship had had its beginning. It was this man who died in Columbia a short time ago, leaving all his possessions to Marian Terry and her small brother and sister. Having no children of his own or near relatives, he remembered the Terry children and particularly Marian as the persons who had meant most to him in his life.

At Columbia, where Lyon was in the insurance business for many years, he was known as a quiet, scholarly man who said little about his business affairs and lived at hotels or boarding houses. He was friendly, but had few intimate friends and lived a rather solitary life, relying chiefly on his books and his fishing tackle for amusement. Winters he would spend in Columbia, but in summer he would repair to the little village of Westphalia, southeast of Jefferson City, where he would pass the warmer months fishing or resting as a protective measure against a frequently recurring heart ailment. He was a fastidious dresser and was described by acquaintances as "a gentleman to the point of being Chesterfieldian."

OFF and on, Lyon had been a resident of Columbia about 25 years when he died in December in the Boone County Hospital at the age of 58. Some 15 years ago he came to Oklahoma, where he remained for eight or nine years, finally returning to Columbia when his health became so impaired as to prohibit strenuous business activity. It was during his Oklahoma stay that he picked up 80 acres of oil land in an undeveloped district and, as a sideline of his insurance business, dabbled in "wild cat" stocks. He acquired a number of these stocks which are still of undetermined value. Estimates of his entire estate run as high as $200,000, but aside from his land holdings the total, it is believed, will not exceed $10,000.

It is in the two 40-acre tracts of oil land that the potential fortune lies. The more promising one of these tracts is that bequeathed to Marian Terry.

The other 40-acre tract, on which several shallow wells already have attained some production, was left to 5-year-old Billy Terry—named William Clinton after Clinton Lyon. The Magnolia Oil Company now is preparing to drill several deep tests on Marian's land, and Mr. Terry, father and guardian of the children, has been advised by oil experts to hold the property at all costs. One observer who recently made a survey of the district reported that the girl's land was so located as to command a fabulous price.

IT WAS without a suspicion that she was the chief beneficiary under Clinton Lyon's will that Marian Terry came into her inheritance. Following the meeting with Lyon in her babyhood, she had seen him only three times in her life. Twice after that he visited the Terry family in Okmulgee and once—three years ago this summer—he took the whole family to spend a week's outing with him at Westphalia. In the intervening years, however, he had kept up a correspondence with Marian, a correspondence which her parents had to carry on for her until she became old enough to write. Always he sent her presents on her birthday and at Christmas, and in recent years she would send him a holiday cake which she baked herself. To Marian, and to all the rest of the family for that matter, he was "Uncle Lyon" and a hero. The will which brought the first news of his death brought to the children a pang for which an inheritance was poor compensation.

"We would a lot rather have Uncle Lyon back than have the oil land," says Marian.

Thus far, Marian appears to have disturbed herself but little over the financial course she will pursue when,

CAME BACK FROM THE DEAD AND STEPPED INTO TROUBLE

The Legal Entanglements That Ensued When John Thoman Tried to Remarry His Wife.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

VIENNA.

WHATEVER the great scientists of our age might say about the mysterious problem of life after death could not make Herr John Thoman of Vienna change his firm conviction on the subject. Dead men, he asserts, would better rest in peace and not try to come back to life.

Herr John Thoman lived in peace and happiness in Bozen before the war. He had a young and beautiful wife, held a modest position as a clerk in a bank and was satisfied with life. When the war broke out he joined the Austrian Army and went to the northern front. Every week there came a postcard from him to his wife, telling about his life in the army and expressing the hope that as soon as might be he would be able to come back home.

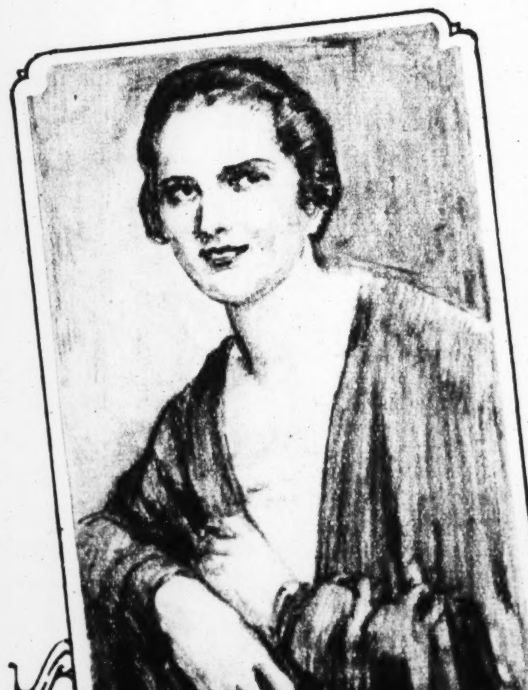
Early in 1915, however, the postcards of Herr Thoman ceased to arrive. Frau Thoman waited anxiously for news from her husband, and with sinister forebodings looked over the lists of casualties. For three months no official information was received as to the fate of John Thoman. He was reported missing, but nobody knew whether he was dead or had been taken prisoner by the Russians.

Frau Thoman did everything in her power to clear up the mystery. She wrote to his comrades, questioned privates and officers of his regiment, but was unable to learn anything definite. During the next few months she became more and more convinced that her husband had been killed. The Russians did not report him among their war prisoners and he sent no message to his wife, who eventually assumed that he was dead. She mourned her husband, received a pension from the bank where he had been employed and then took a job as cashier with an agricultural co-operative society.

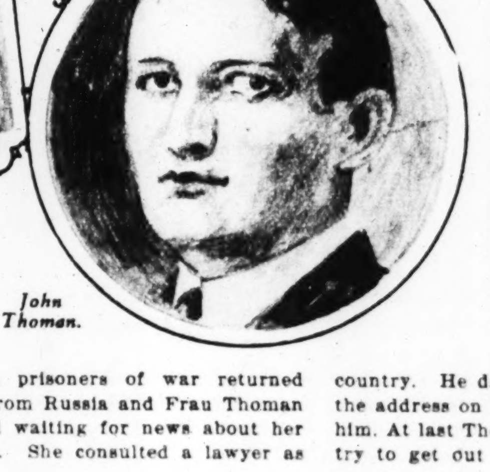
The society employed a few Russian war prisoners, released from prison camps to do the work of men who had to go to the front and could not be replaced by female labor. Among these prisoners was an intelligent young Russian of noble birth, one Wassili Widracheff, who worked in the same room with Frau Thoman.

WIDRACHEFF, a Lieutenant in the Russian Army, who had been taken prisoner during the campaign in the Carpathian Mountains, was sent to the prisoners' camp, and because he spoke German and gave his parole that he would not run away, was among those commandeered to work outside the camp. Frau Thoman became interested in the young Russian, who on his part was infatuated with the beautiful woman. They spent many evenings together and discussed plans for the future.

The war ended and the armistice brought about a difficult situation for both Frau Thoman and Lieutenant Widracheff. Frau Thoman did not wish to stay in Bozen, which was now occupied by the Italians; Widracheff did not wish to return to Russia, where the bolshevists were in power and where his estates had been confiscated by the Reds. Both decided to move to Vienna and to marry.



Frau Thoman.



John Thoman.

Marriage, however, was impossible as long as there was a possibility that John Thoman was still alive. The Austrian prisoners of war returned slowly from Russia and Frau Thoman was still waiting for news about her husband. She consulted a lawyer as to what she should do. The lawyer suggested proceedings to have John Thoman legally declared dead.

It was a year before the courts finally gave their decision in the matter. But John Thoman was declared legally dead and shortly afterward Frau Thoman married Wassili Widracheff.

Five years had passed when one day Frau Thoman received a letter from—John Thoman. It had been mailed from Constantinople, sent to Bozen and then forwarded to Vienna.

In the letter John Thoman related an adventurous story. He had been taken prisoner, he related, after he had received a dangerous wound; was for many months between life and death and eventually was transported to a prison camp in Siberia. He never knew that he was not recorded in the official list of prisoners of war.

A few days after his arrival in the Siberian prison camp he contrived to escape. Instead of taking the westward route through Siberia, he fled to China. There he lived for some years, but on account of chaotic conditions he was unable to leave the inner part of the country. He dared not write for fear the address on the letter would betray him. At last Thoman decided he would try to get out of China. Having no money, he had to travel afoot. After years of wandering and many adventures he reached India, where he fell ill and lay in a hospital until sufficiently recovered to board a freighter for Constantinople. Now he was on his way home to his wife.

The letter naturally caused excitement and dismay in the Widracheff household. The former Frau Thoman reproached herself for not having waited indefinitely for news of her husband. How could she now face him and tell what had happened? Her love for Widracheff had waned. All she wanted now was to have back her first husband. She pondered long, seeking a way out of the mess. Finally she implored Widracheff to leave the house, to forget her and to vanish from her life. He gave his word not to tell of his marriage to Frau Thoman; to leave Vienna and to yield his place in her home and heart to the returning exile.

A WEEK later John Thoman arrived in Vienna, looking very much aged, clad in shabby clothes and with the traces of years of suffering visible on his face. But he was happy, and a few weeks later was able to look for a job. He succeeded in getting a position in a bank and once more settled down peacefully—ignorant of the fact that in the eyes of the law he was a dead man, while actually living unlawfully with the wife of Wassili Widracheff.

Nothing disturbed the marital serenity of Herr Thoman for more than a

PARIS.

WHEN the coronation robe of the Empress Josephine and a few other garments from her once immense wardrobe were unexpectedly discovered the other day in Paris, they appeared once more in the light of day, after 125 years, in so amazing a state of freshness that it might have been yesterday they were worn by one of Europe's proudest and most extravagant rulers.

Behind the coming to light of these historic garments lies an interesting tale of how they were kept in so perfect a state of preservation. From certain papers in the possession of their last owner it now seems that shortly after the death of the Empress Josephine, her daughter, Hortense, probably for certain sentimental reasons, selected a few garments from the wardrobe, which numbered tens of thousands of articles. Among the things selected were the coronation robe, an evening dress, a scarf, a bonnet and a pair of slippers. These precious relics of a woman, who even today commands the interest of a vast reading public, were carefully wrapped in black tissue paper and then placed in an airtight box. Time and changing fortunes brought the box into the possession of Madame Salvage de Faverolles, a direct descendant of Hortense. Yet, though relics of Napoleon's first wife would have commanded vast sums from private collectors, the owner, for reasons that can never be known, did not communicate to anyone the fact of her valuable possessions. The relics were beyond words valuable because, although the Empress Josephine had left an enormous wardrobe, only a few garments have come down to us today, and these, in the Carnavalet Museum, were shabby and falling to pieces. While the slow legal processes of dividing up the estate were in progress, M. Bourguignon secured a loan of the garments, mounted them in special glass cases and carried them off to the Palace of Malmaison, a strangely ironical thing, for from this same palace they originally came, 125 years before. And it was in the first days of the garments' public exhibition that I received permission to make the first photographs ever taken. The remarkable condition of preservation in which the garments are can be readily seen, for, although the photographs had to be taken through glass, in the unsatisfactory light of the low-ceilinged room, every detail of the fabric and the wonderful gold filigree work stands out clearly. Packing the dresses in the black tissue paper kept the beautiful metal work untarnished.

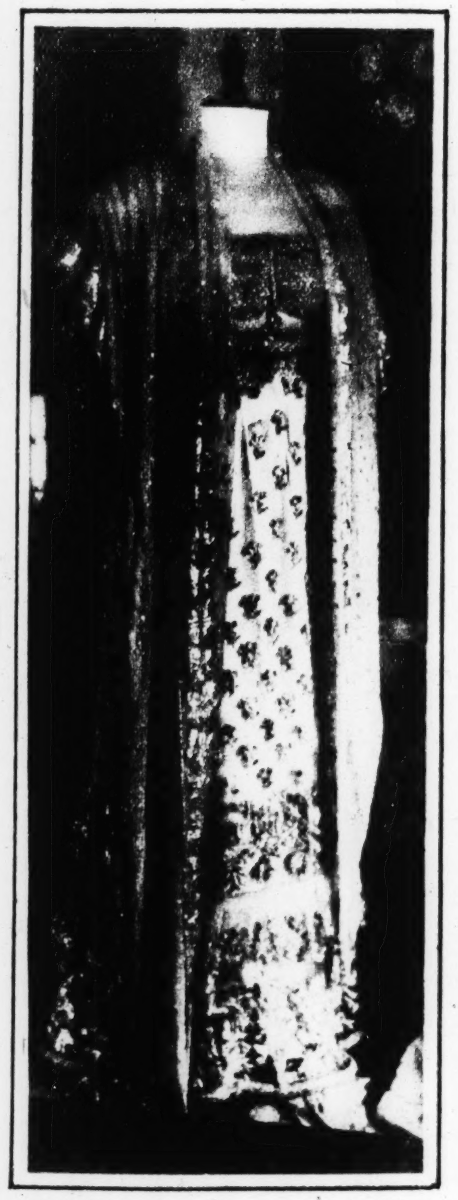
ONCE the garments were mounted in the Palace of Malmaison, M. Bourguignon eyed them more longingly every day. With all his heart he desired to keep them always here, for Malmaison, under his direction since 1916, had become the home of the finest collection of Napoleonic relics in the world, a collection which had been started by the Empress Eugenie in 1867. But M. Bourguignon had no hope of retaining these garments, which he knew would bring a fabulous sum on the day of the auction. For he, as Curator of the museum, knew that the Government's allowance to him for making purchases was far too small to permit bidding, and that the public debt was so large, it was hopeless to ask for a larger grant. So M. Bourguignon resigned himself to the thought that these dresses, which had come so strangely home after more than a hundred years, must again depart.

Only a few days before the time set for the auction remained. It was in this last hour that M. Bourguignon succeeded in interesting a wealthy South American in the matter. This gentleman, M. J. Unzue, was a great lover of France. He entered into private negotiations with the heirs. They on their part, appreciating something of the historic associations of the garments, and upon receiving assurance that M. Unzue was purchasing them only with the motive of at once making them a gift to the museum, consented to a private sale. While the purchaser made it a stipulation of the gift that the price must not be published, I learned it in confidence, and while unable to give the figure, it may be said that this is undoubtedly the highest price ever paid for "second-hand" clothes. Even the proud Josephine, who spent a fortune yearly for clothes, need not be ashamed of the price her garments brought after a hundred years. Undoubtedly, had the garments gone to public auction and the various wealthy collectors who were interested been permitted to bid, the amount received for them by the heirs would have been still greater.



The Empress's coronation robe of white tulle embroidered with gold.

About the time Josephine's garments made their surprising appearance in the modern world, the French Government presented to Edward Tuck, an 88-year-old American residing in Paris, the Grand Cross of the Legion of Honor. In the entire history of the United States, and though the ties between France and the United States have been the closest, only eight other Americans had ever received this highest honor of the Legion. Other Americans, living and dead, to receive it were Admiral W. S. Benson, General Tasker H. Bliss, Ambassador Myron T. Herrick, General John J. Pershing, Horace Porter, William Graves Sharp, Robert McCormick and Ambassador Hugh Campbell Wallace. But France's evidences of esteem did not stop there. A few weeks later Mr. Tuck was presented with still another honor. He was given the first National Museum's Medal ever issued as a token of French appreciation for what he had done in helping what may fairly be called France's newest museum.

Now just what connection there could possibly be between the finding of Josephine's coronation robe and other garments, and the heaping of many honors by the French Government on an aged American citizen, would not at first be apparent. Yet in a way these two interesting news happenings are curiously linked, for it was through the benefactions of Mr. Tuck and his wife that the Malmaison Museum, once the home of Napoleon and Josephine, was immensely helped in its aim of becoming the holder of the largest and finest collection of objects relating to Napoleon.

Before dealing more fully with this American benefactor's particular aid to the Malmaison Museum, some of his other outstanding benefactions may be noted: A large endowment to Dartmouth College in the United States and the endowment of the New Hampshire Historical Society. During the war the maintaining of a private hospital of 75 beds. He and his wife gave a hospital also to the town of Ruell, and 5,000,000 francs for its maintenance. Last year Mr. Tuck shouldered half of the $36,000 deficit in the funds of the American Library at Paris. Gifts such as an art collection to the Petit Palais, and many others too numerous to mention, have particularly endeared this American to the French people.

BUT it is his presenting to the French National Museum of his magnificent estate at Bois-Preau, and the sum of 5,000,000 francs for the upkeep of a National Napoleonic Museum, that so queerly links his name up with the finding of the garments of the Empress Josephine, which are now forever housed in Malmaison.

How significant is this gift can only be understood by relating briefly the history of the property. In April, 1799, Josephine bought the property and castle of Malmaison (about 18 acres of land). Napoleon was away winning battles in Syria at the time. When he returned six months later he was at once made First Consul, and the Tuilleries given him for his official residence. But he disliked the sad grandeur of the place. So he spent most of his time at the Castle of Malmaison. However, true to his nature, Napoleon wanted to enlarge the grounds and tried to buy the adjoining estate of Bois-Preau, a small castle and 48 acres. He was balked, however, by a stubborn old maiden lady, who would not sell. It was only after her death that Napoleon acquired the property, and he was not long to enjoy its possession. In the year 1829 the property of Malmaison was divided. And then, just a few months short of 100 years later, Edward Tuck, the owner of the divided portion of the property, gave it and a chateau and a library founded by Josephine in 1810 back to the Government. So once more the property is as Napoleon had it after years of negotiating with the obstinate old maid.

In the eyes of men, Napoleon is one of the outstanding figures of all times. That is why the Palace of Malmaison has had such a fascination for royalty and people of great wealth. A brief but very interesting history of it in recent times may be epitomized in the accompanying table of changes of ownership since 1824: In that year died Prince Eugene, heir to the property from Josephine. In 1829 it was purchased by M. Hagermann, a Swedish financier. In 1842 Queen Marie Christine of Spain succeeded in purchasing it. She was succeeded as owner in 1861 by Napoleon III. In 1867 Empress Eugenie displayed the first small collection of Napoleonic relics, which was the beginning of the present "France's newest museum," which contains beneath its roof the most complete assemblage of articles relating to Napoleon and the First Empire in existence. In 1870 the property was acquired by the State. In 1871 it was pillaged by the Germans. In 1877 a Frenchman of wealth, Paul Gauthier, bought the property from the State and broke it up into parcels. In 1896, another Frenchman, M. Osiris, moved by patriotic emotion and a love of the historic, acquired the property. After holding it until 1904 and making many restorations, this gentleman gave it back to the State as a free gift. In 1906, following the lead made by the Empress Eugenie, the State began a Napoleonic Museum. This, however, was not opened to the public until 1916, when M. Jean Bourguignon was made Curator.

Some idea of the tremendous interest the life of this warrior still exercises may be grasped when it is noted that 100,000 Americans visited Malmaison last year and three times that number of people from all the other foreign nations of the world.

TRULY, although the last great war makes Napoleon's campaigns but puny things, this man suffers no dimming of his glamour. And this Palace of Malmaison, where he spent some of his happiest days, naturally has a particular fascination. And at this time, when Malmaison and Bois-Preau have been rejoined; at this time, when the garments of the mistress of the historic spot have come back and been installed in their ancient surroundings, it seems particularly fitting to tell the story of the place.

Some eight miles from Paris the gray, square-fronted Malmaison lies at the top of a little rise. A magnificent avenue of trees gives it an air of grandeur. Here among glorious oaks, elms, horse chestnut and maple trees now towers high the famous cedar of Marengo. This great tree was a sapling on the day Napoleon won the battle, and in honor of it Josephine,

HOMER GETS BUSY

By

FRANK CONDON

Elmer Larry came hurrying out of his Sea Breeze butcher shop.

AS I RECALL the conversation in Millie Hamble's parlor, where she sat in a rocking-chair and looked at me with a calculating eye, it was something like this:

"How old are you now, Homer?"

"I am 27 June 6."

"How much money have you saved up in the bank?"

"Not a cent."

"How much are you earning per month at present?"

"I am not earning anything, because I am temporarily out of work."

"No," said Millie, "we will go on being engaged, just as we have been for three years, but we will not be married. There is no object in being married unless somebody in the family has a position, and up to this time you do not seem to be able to get one."

When she said this it was my turn to laugh, because it was so far from the truth. I have had plenty of positions as a salesman, for that is what nature designed me to be.

"I can understand your point of view," I remarked, "and to show what kind of a man you are engaged to, I am going to step out and join the business world in a serious way."

"That would be a great surprise to me," said Millie, and after an earnest conversation I bade her farewell and started downtown in my second-hand flivver, determined to think the thing over from every angle and get a haircut at Tony's Sanitary Shop.

IN TONY'S was the usual evening crowd of loiterers and Reed Cooper, having his scalp treated for incipient baldness, which is throwing money away.

"Good evening," said Reed. "What is the big fellow doing now?"

"I am going to work," I replied, stirring the entire shop.

"What's the name of the firm?"

"That is not yet decided," I said, climbing into the chair and telling Tony to feather-edge everything, especially the neck. "I am going to take up a life of real salesmanship."

"Yes?" he said, in a slightly jeering voice. "Did you ever try to sell a six-cylinder hose wagon with pumper attached to Mayor Patz of Arcadia?"

"Is there such a job as that open?"

"Wide open. I came home from Arcadia last week, and when you see me coming back empty-handed the prospect is dead."

It is well known in business circles that Reed Cooper works for the International Fire Truck Corporation, a concern manufacturing these large, red, noisy machines that kill something on the way to every fire and have finally driven the horses from their comfortable stalls.

"If you are such a super-salesman," Reed said, paying Tony for the job, "go down tomorrow morning and see Cliff Reynolds. I'll fix it for you to get in."

"Thank you, Reed," I said. "I will be glad to call on the gentleman tomorrow morning, and maybe get expense money."

BEING a diligent reader of the public prints, I knew something about Mayor Patz of Arcadia, a peculiar town, and the notion of going there interested me, especially as I had made up my mind to plunge into the mercantile world. Arcadia is a noted municipality, a smallish place that sits back in pride and sniffs at the world. People discuss Arcadia because of its quaint ideas and unique system of municipal conduct. In 10 years they have had but two Mayors. One of them is Warren Patz and the other is Harvey Boelter and these two bashaws have come to regard the town as their private property.

They alternate in the mayoralty. One year the townsfolk elect Warren Patz. The next year Harvey assumes the official toga, and nobody has ever broken up this monopoly, although, no doubt, people must have thought about it.

On the following morning at an early hour I encountered Millie Hamble and her mother driving their car into the Sunbeam filling station. I might state here that Millie's maternal parent has never objected to me as a future relation, but Mr. Hamble has told everyone in town that I suffer from hookworm, and should have been born of rich parents or, better still, of no parents at all.

"On my way to work," I said heartily, gazing in admiration at Millie, who is a splendid spectacle on a sunny morning.

"Good for you," she responded, looking incredulous.

"I am going downtown to see Mr. Cliff Reynolds, our president," I continued. "We sell fire engines and so forth."

"That should be interesting work," murmured Mrs. Hamble. "Do come up to the house and tell us all about it."

"As soon as there is anything to tell," added Millie, who knows me better than her old lady.

Following a short and friendly conversation I hurried on downtown to interview Mr. Reynolds, who turned out to be a regular corporation president about fifty years old and inclined to be serious.

"My name is Jolley," I said, after getting by the suspicious office boy. "Your Mr. Cooper is a friend of mine, and he tells me you are having plenty of trouble selling fire engines up in Arcadia."

The president looked at me, but seemed to be thinking of something else.

"We have not sold Arcadia," he admitted.

"Do you want to?"

"Certainly."

"All right," I said. "I'm ready to start on the job this morning."

"Do you know anything about fire equipment?"

"I do not, but"——

I ran rapidly over a list of articles I had sold.

"How can you expect to sell fire trucks?" he inquired, his curiosity aroused.

"Do your present salesmen know all about fire trucks?"

"They do, indeed."

"Well, they couldn't sell one up in Arcadia, could they?"

"No."

"Then isn't it pretty plain to you that what you need on this Arcadia job is a man who doesn't know a fire truck from a fox trot, but who is a natural salesman, anyhow?"

MR. REYNOLDS smiled the incredulous smile of a corporation executive and said I could go ahead and do as I pleased, except to understand distinctly that I was not getting a regular job with the firm, that I was to receive no salary and no expenses, and that I was acting solely upon my own.

"Opportunity is what I ask," I remarked. "I will go up there and make good on this job in a way to surprise you. I am, in the first place, a natural salesman, and, second, I intend to marry without further ado, hence I am making a job for myself with this corporation."

Mr. Reynolds smiled cheerfully for the first time and said:

"As you pass out, ask for Mr. Wilson, who will give you the necessary data. I wish you luck."

"Thank you," I said, "and I will be in to see you about a steady job later on, with salary attached."

Arcadia is not only famous, but is also notorious, and is growing more and more front-page every year, largely because it is the abiding place of a colony of artistic souls. It is a community composed of talented persons who have put aside the plain conventions of modern life and reside in little wooden cabins without hot water or locks on the doors. The men geniuses rivet in their claims by letting their hair grow into odd formations, and the women cut theirs extremely short, and some shave over their ears. In my first hour I noticed at least three ladies who would have been followed by a crowd in any large city.

THIS was the municipality that had coldly refused to purchase new and modern fire equipment from the International Fire Truck Corporation and retire its ancient horses and the antiquated steam engine.

"We never have any fires in Arcadia," Mayor Patz told me in a scornful tone, on my first visit. "Anyhow, we have a perfectly good steam engine, operated by Captain Lee Barnes."

"Maybe," I replied, "but a pair of horses and a wheezy steam engine have no part in present-day life. They belong back with the white bone collar button and the electric liver belt."

"What do we care?" he said proudly. "Our town is out of date, and we know it. We like it. In fact, we cherish it."

I could scarcely go over the Mayor's head and appeal to the intelligence of the board, for there was none. Mr. Patz was the Board of Councilmen, City Manager, Chief of Police, Fire Commissioner, Health Officer and general seneschal, and at odd moments he whittled out ships and put them into old fruit jars.

My next step was to make a formal call on Lee Barnes, active fireman. I found him currying a horse.

"Yes," Lee admitted. "We ought to have a triple combination or else a chemical and hose truck. What you see here is out of date."

"You realize," I said, "that Arcadia is about the last town left in America that still clings to horses and an old steam engine?"

"Yes," said he. "But what can a man do about it? They won't spend a dime. Patz and Boelter have this town in their pocket. When Patz goes out Boelter comes in, like erysipelas follows poison ivy. I've been trying to get a new bellyband for two months. You're wasting your time."

"No," I said, "I will hang around, for I am a fellow not easily nonplussed. This hamlet requires modern fire equipment, which would cost about $25,000 and maybe more."

Lee opened his mouth, stopped currying, and laughed voicelessly.

"That's a hot one," he chortled. "I can see Patz spending twenty-five thousand, when it took a year and three months to get an electric bulb in front of the jail."

"Of which," I continued, "I get the deal."

As I beheld the situation, there was one ray of sunshine ahead. Mayor Warren Patz was winding up his annual term, and in a little while it would be Harvey Boelter's turn. I found Mr. Boelter in his art kitchen, painting Oriental scenes on the ceiling.

"No," he said cheerfully, "we don't need any new fire apparatus and, furthermore, this is beginning to irk me. Arcadia wishes that people like you and the International Fire Truck Corporation would stay away and stop pestering us."

"THAT is the way you feel about it, is it?" I inquired, and he said that it practically was. The sales conversation ended with Mr. Boelter showing me out the back door, and I returned to the inn for further cogitation.

While I lingered in ruminative idleness Arcadia prepared for its two main annual events. One was the selection of a single executive, the Mayor, and there was mighty little to that. Republicans and Democrats convened in the rear of Byron Schurr's drug store and nominated Harvey Boelter without a dissenting voice, it being his turn. The other event was more exciting to me, being the regular yearly open-air dramatic performance, for which Arcadia is noted all over the country, the proceeds going to charity.

In May of each year the town performs its play in the beautiful sycamore grove at the far end of Eagle avenue, and as I wrote plays myself, when younger, the project aroused my interest, especially when I saw how they selected their dramatic material.

The hard-and-fast rule in Arcadia is that the annual performance must be strictly a home product, and each spring, just before play time, the entire city lays aside its regular duties, and each voter writes a play.

The true and lofty artists ignored me and never asked my opinion about anything, but all went ahead producing opuses and turning in plays to the committee in charge, which consisted of Mayor Patz, Harvey Boelter and four of the leading figures of the art colony.

Mrs. Fanny Patz alone regarded me as a mental equal, bowed to me on the street, seemed sorry for what must have struck her as my pitiful condition, and told me the outline of her own play, which was a spicy little drama about Queen Elizabeth and was entitled "Love's Sable Dreaming," which I informed her at once was not only an interesting title for a grove play, but also subtle.

When we talked I leaned against a post, and a blinding flash of mental lightning lit up the scene. People who have unusual minds are subject to these flashes.

"MRS. PATZ," I said, after the flash passed, "there is one thing about your play that occurs to me. It is the least little bit quiet for an open-air drama. It is beyond criticism, but it certainly is a trifle calm, and in my opinion, speaking as a person who writes plays, you ought to put in a good, strong episode that would dominate everything else."

"Oh," she said, "a spectacle!"

"Yes, a spectacle, or what we would call a master scene; something momentous."

"Such as what?" she inquired, looking out toward her husband, who was making unfriendly gestures.

"Let's see. Being outdoors, 'Love's Sable Dreaming' offers good opportunity for a staircase scene."

"Staircase?"

"Yes, Mrs. Patz, a staircase scene, with flaming torches. No drama is ever hurt by a good staircase episode, and in this case the Queen ought to walk down a long, shining flight from the woods in the background."

"I see. Not bad at all."

"Yes," I continued, "the British Queen, attended by her retinue, should come parading down the stair, a broad stair, with her train held up by beautiful pages, large, black slaves waving torches on either side, heralds blowing their bugles and a general atmosphere of scenic grandeur. It would go very good and is what the drama requires."

"It would indeed," agreed the authoress.

I proceeded directly to Elmer Larry's Sea Breeze butcher store. I had helped Elmer by reading his play and making a few trifling suggestions. He was slicing liver when I arrived, and glanced up with a friendly grin.

"Good morning, Elmer," I said, the shop being deserted. "How would you like to be the next Mayor of Arcadia?"

He ceased slicing and wiped off his knife.

"Well, Mr. Jolley," he said, "I see you feel like joking this morning."

"No joking at all," I said earnestly. "I am the one man that can and will make you Mayor of this charming city, and you should be mayor who work for a living."

"It is a high honor. But what chance is there, with Patz and Boelter?"

"There is a nice chance this year," I replied. "You have me in town this year, which never happened before. I am going to make you the civic executive, an in return I shall ask you only o favor."

"What?" he asked, a trifle su picious.

"I will expect you to retire t crow' bait down at the eng house and send the steam eng to the junk yard where it belon and then purchase for the city Arcadia a triple combinati pumper, hose truck, chemical a hook-and-ladder, the whole co ing the sum of twenty-five thou sand dollars, half cash upon d livery, the balance in two mont at six per cent."

"We certainly need it," he a mitted. "Anyone can see th But as for me being the ne mayor, Mr. Jolley, you are ju romancing."

"Never mind that," I said. " you, as Mayor, agree to give this fire-truck order?"

"I certainly do," Elmer r sponded, going back to the liv "and gladly."

Each year Elmer Larry ha stopped chopping up pork an had turned in a drama, like an other loyal citizen, and each yea he had failed. "He's the whole committee," Elmer went on, "and they sit up there like a lot of buzzards waiting for a really good play to come along so that she can take what she wants. I am going to do plenty about this."

"I would," I said warmly. "The art colony of this town has run things pretty high-handed, and when something like this happens it is time for the workingmen to get together."

We went over to the Red Star Garage, whose owner, John Tooney, had patriotically turned in three melodramas and a comedietta to the committee in charge, and there Elmer repeated his tale of outrage and appropriation.

Next day's oncoming sun found the lines clearly drawn. Those who thought Elmer Larry a mere butcher, with no right to write anything but price tags, swiftly flew to the support of Mrs. Fanny Patz. Those who felt that art is good enough in its place but when it goes out stealing its stuff from meat cutters the time has come to call a halt. Those so minded turned to Elmer Larry with words of commendation.

The shopkeepers stood shoulder to shoulder and refused to deliver goods or call for orders. Telegrams arriving for geniuses had to be called for, the delivery boy being a Larry sympathizer. The garbage man quit cold and stopped gathering at Second street. Wives of tradesmen were snubbed by art ladies, bridge games were broken up, and John Tooney stated that he would repair certain cars only.

"It is about time," I told Tooney, "for a change in Arcadia."

"You bet it is," John agreed. "These snobs over here on the hill have held us back long enough. It took nine years to get Main street paved."

"If a town was ever ripe for a change in mayors," I said thoughtfully, "this one is now."

John laid down a tire tool and wiped his brow.

"We were talking about that last night," said he.

"And the one man," I continued, "who could clean up right now, with things as they are, is Elmer Larry."

"Absolutely," agreed John. "In fact, that will be a main subject tonight at this meeting we're having."

It was fortunate, of course, that the election in Arcadia followed on the heels of the celebrated grove play, postponed this year for several reasons. Harvey Boelter and Mayor Patz talked over the amazing rebellion on Patz' porch, and Harvey lost his temper slightly and stated that a Mayor's wife ought to stay out of literature in a town of playwrights. Presently the steering committee met and nominated Harvey Boelter, as usual, in the Fairy Gem, and they might just as well have nominated the Gaekwar of Baroda, for Arcadia was seething, and it was plain to all that the next mayor would be a butcher.

Elmer was nominated on Monday, and on Saturday he was elected by a hearty majority.

"Well, Your Honor," I said, the following morning, walking into the Sea Breeze butcher shop, where Elmer was stuffing or unstuffing a chicken, "how does it feel?"

"Fine," he said.

"I trust," I said, "that in the excitement you have not forgotten our little conversation of recent date."

"No," he said. "You mean about fire trucks?"

"Exactly," I said, bringing forth the documents used in such cases—and right there on a meat block, with sirloin steaks everywhere, the International Fire Truck Corporation did a little official business in Arcadia. The city's chief executive signed on the dotted line a distinct order for one triple combination, painted bright red, with solid tires, perforated.

This concluded the deal. I sent away a wire to President Cliff Reynolds notifying him to deliver the goods and collect the money. I likewise sent a brief message to Millie Hamble, the cause of it all, saying: "Am now successful business man with twenty-five hundred dollars in plain sight. When do you want to be married?"

Her answer said: "Come right home stop will talk things over quietly stop bring money to show mother."

The entire episode merely shows that a young fellow is always better off if there is some nice girl around to awaken his latent ambitions and spur him to solid achievement.

with her own hands, planted the tree in its commanding position. The rose gardens and the spacious lawns surrounding the castle have today been once more rearranged exactly as in Napoleon's time. Josephine was noted as a lover of roses. She had 250 species. A modern expert has succeeded in producing 197 of the ancient varieties. Here upon these grounds Napoleon and the great of the land played "prisoners' base" and "blind man's buff" with all the glee of children. Within the building Napoleon created his own theater, and himself designed the scenery. It was in the library of this building he planned the Legion of Honor, to which an American today has been granted the highest honor of the Grand Cross for helping to restore the very setting in which that same order was planned. It has been said by historians that some of Napoleon's happiest days were spent here. From the drabness of the Tuileries and the cares of state he hurried to the country freshness of Malmaison. Then in those darkening days when he had departed from Malmaison forever, he left it as a refuge to Josephine, his divorced wife. And here she died on the 29th of May, 1815.

year, when accidentally he learned that his existence was not recognized by the law and that he was living, so to say, contrary to the pronouncement of the Austrian courts.

His lawyer told him he could not sue for divorce, nor for anything, because he was legally dead. Whereupon he petitioned the court to annul its former decision and put him back among the legally living.

The court heard the case, subpoenaed witnesses, including Frau Thoman and Wassili Widracheff, and brought out the fact that the Russian, ignoring his marriage to Frau Thoman, had wedded again, this time a young girl named Elisabeth Lehman. He said he had been of the opinion that his marriage to Frau Thoman was invalid. The court, however, opined differently, declaring that the first marriage of the Russian was valid and preferring charges of bigamy against him. At the same time it annulled the second marriage of Widracheff.

Wassili Widracheff received the light sentence of three months' imprisonment for bigamy—then he was free to return to his legal wife, Frau Thoman. This, however, was something which neither Widracheff nor Frau Thoman wanted. The Russian desired to return to his second wife and Frau Thoman was still hoping that her first husband would forgive her. A host of legal authorities were consulted and they came to the conclusion that the thing to do was to file a suit for divorce ending the still valid marriage of Frau Thoman and Wassili Widracheff. The case is still pending before a Vienna court and if the divorce is granted the marital tangles of the Russian will be straightened out.

Though Thoman finally forgave his wife and now would like to take her back, he must await the outcome of her divorce case. Even then, supposing the court shall grant her a decree, she cannot immediately go back to her husband. In order to make their reunion securely legal they will have to secure a marriage license and remarry according to the requirements of the Austrian civil law.

and if, the oil royalties begin to pour in as they are expected to. She is content to leave the management of her new property in the hands of her father, who is an abstractor with the Capital Abstract and Real Estate Company. Just now her greatest interest is centered upon expression and the drama. She has been a student of expression from early childhood and expects, when high school is finished, to continue her studies in a New York conservatory. She had planned, and "Uncle Lyon" had planned for her, that upon completion of her high-school course, she should attend college in Columbia, either at the University of Missouri or at one of the two women's colleges in that city. Since "Uncle Lyon's" death, however, interest in Columbia appears to have taken something less than second place to interest in New York.

One phase of the inheritance which provides vast amusement for Marian is the flood of letters with proposals of marriage she has received since news of her good fortune was published with her picture in many newspapers. These communications, some in polished hand and style and some illiterately scrawled, come from every section of the country, from New England to California. Some omit mention of matrimony but urge that she enter into correspondence with "your unknown boy friend." Here is the way she appealed to a 45-year-old man in Chicago who delivered himself of this passionate entreaty:

"I just love to have a girl friend lik you. I am looking at you photo in paper you just make my brains on fire. So I love you as much as that. I do not think no girl can take my heart but you and here is your chans. I never was marry. I lonesome and heartbroke for friend lik you."

Marian is a healthy, normal high school girl, with considerably more than the average high school girl's erudition and poise. If she was as attractive at 5 as she is at 16 it may be safely asserted that when "Uncle Lyon" picked out a niece and heiress for himself he exhibited rare taste and sound judgment.

Under the Polar Ice

like those in the end of an apple. Others have voiced the opinion (generally obsolete now) that these depressions extend clear through the earth. Thus far, no extensive soundings of the Polar seas have been made, and the depth may be found to exceed that of any ocean on earth. Government compilations show that the deepest water ever sounded is just southeast of Tokio. There the floor of the Pacific is 32,644 feet below the surface—more than six miles. The next deepest place is in the Atlantic, near Porto Rico—31,366 feet, a trifle less than six miles. Estimates hitherto have placed the maximum depth in the Arctic Ocean at 13,200 feet.

The explorer does not fear that his submarine will collide with an iceberg during the under-sea journey. "There are no icebergs in the Arctic," he says. "Icebergs come from the southwest coast of Greenland and drift out to sea south and east."

The greatest impediments hitherto encountered in Polar expeditions have been the elements. But Captain Wilkins will avoid all these, should unexpected storms appear, by diving down into the water. The craft he intends taking can carry supplies of food sufficient to last for weeks. It will be able to transport engine fuel sufficient to take it far beyond the radius contemplated. Electricity generated aboard will keep the crew warm, provide light and cook meals.

An average submarine may remain submerged for 48 hours and, with extra storage of oxygen, much longer. The craft can be equipped with radio to keep in touch with its base, and in case of distress could call for fuel, medical supplies, repair parts or other assistance, all of which might be rushed in by airplane.

The explorer figures that he can run underneath the surface for 16 hours, and above the surface eight, out of each 24, if the weather is favorable. He estimates that his craft should make four to five knots an hour.

Teachers KNOW which are the cleanest homes

SCHOOL children from nice homes have an advantage . . . are better liked, get more consideration, have better times.

And it's that way all through life. Everywhere we go the people we meet are sizing us up. Very quickly they decide that we are, or are not, from nice homes.

What counts most in winning this ready acceptance? Isn't it cleanliness? . . . the deep-seated and habitual kind, that must be taught young?

Parents are judged by their children

Teachers cannot help judging one child against the cleanliness of others. Nor can friends or neighbors.

Every child is a little ambassador of his home, and his appearance represents its standard of cleanliness.

A thorough training in habits of cleanliness is the best safeguard for children against the smirks of the world.

Do children take enough baths?

No mother would fail to bathe her small baby every day. For older children, however, daily baths are frequently thought not so necessary. Is that true? Think of the dust and dirt that youngsters get into, and the germs that baths wash away. Also, the daily bath clears the pores of perspiration waste. Many a fine, clear complexion is endangered by clogged pores in early life.

The "inspirational" method

When it comes to clean clothes there are three principal ways in which mothers can help:

1. By correcting that guilty family feeling that, above all else, "We must keep down the size of the wash this week";

2. By keeping drawers well filled with clean clothes . . . for father, sister, brother;

3. By being a good advocate herself of fresh, clean clothes, even in the mornings around the house.

Bed linen—particularly pillow-cases

From our correspondence with mothers, we have found that the following few rules best meet the needs of health and cleanliness:

Bed linen changed regularly—both sheets at least once a week. (Twice a week better yet.)

Pillow-cases changed twice as often as sheets because they soil so quickly as restless heads grind into them the dirt carried from the varied activities of the day; and because, too, the pillow-case is more likely to be exposed to daytime house dust.

Women who cook must wash more often

Good housewives must also manage:

1. Always to wash before turning to the preparation of food;

2. Always to wash after sweeping, dusting, or other household tasks;

3. To so schedule the sweeping, dusting and cleaning that the whole house, every day, is a splendid lesson in the cheerfulness and importance of cleanliness.

"The brightest corner on earth"

Clean, genial, cordial homes . . . is there anything finer? . . . or anything that can be counted on more surely to teach a deep-down, daily lesson of all-around cleanliness?

And isn't it those seemingly secondary things like fresh curtains, scrubbed woodwork, and clean linens regularly, that have most of all to do with making any place, modest or pretentious, a happy haven . . . a real home?

I LOVE MAY

The Month in Which the Annual Exercise Is Taken.

Donald Ogden Stewart.

I LOVE May.

May is the month in which I take my annual exercise.

Every year, when May comes around, I get that feeling that I ought to take some exercise. Not that I need exercise—I mean, not that I'm taking on weight or anything. A hundred and ninety-two is just a nice weight for a growing boy of 34.

And not that I don't think about exercise during the winter. I think about skating and playing squash and long walks over the snow. Why, there's nothing I like better than to sit in front of a good roaring radiator and think about a long walk over the snow, with my faithful dog Gyp plowing along behind me. Here, Gyp—good fellow——

But May is different. Something happens to me along about the first of May. I get the feeling that I ought to get outdoors and do something. I feel that I ought to take up some sport.

Last year, for example, I took up riding—horseback riding, that is. I took it up May 5 and put it down on May 6. In between those times I had quite a number of interesting experiences and quite enough exercise to last me for the fiscal year of 1928. That also, I imagine, applies to my horse, whose name, by a curious coincidence, was Rover (out of Sloan's Liniment by Twitch).

I selected Rover as my first "mount" by going to a fortune-teller who looked into a crystal ball and told me that she seemed to see me on a tall black horse named either Faw Down and Go Boom or Rover, and by a process of elimination I chose Rover and off we went—or, rather, off I went.

I pluckily got up again, however, and tried mounting her on the other side just to change my luck. But (as the saying goes) "Lucky at love, unlucky at riding horses named Rover," and so I finally gave the whole thing up and was carried home unconscious. So much for that form of exercise.

Then, the year before, I tried golf—or, rather, golf tried me. A friend of mine (whom, for the sake of anonymity, we shall call Charles A. Lindbergh) suggested that I "take up the game."

"Why?" was my natural question.

"Well," he replied, in a conversational tone, "it gets you outdoors."

"I CAN get outdoors, as you call it," I suggested, "without having to knock a little ball toward a red flag."

"Some of the flags are white," he argued. I considered.

"Are you sure?" I asked, feeling the ground slipping out from under me.

"Positive," he asserted, "and in some courses I've even seen flags that were green."

A look into his eyes convinced me that he was not "spoofing" me.

"You certainly make it sound attractive," I admitted.

"Come on," he urged, "just try it once."

Well, it was the old, old story, and at last I gave in. And on the following Sunday two figures were to be observed striding boldly towards the first tee of the Old Kidney Hunt and Golf Club—one of whom was my friend and the other of whom was I. I was distinguished from my friend by a slightly aggressive look about my eyes and a bit of old chewing gum on my left heel.

Both of us, however, were in golf "togs" and sported caddies.

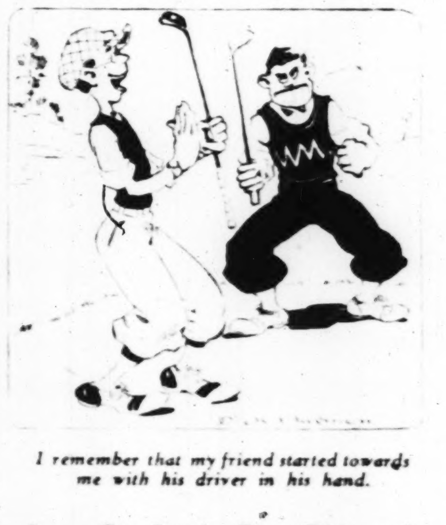
"I feel as though I was going to go pretty well today," remarked my friend. "I shouldn't be surprised if I broke 80." "Yes?" I said.

"This," explained my friend, as we reached the tee, "is our number one and is called Valley Ho!"

"Why?" I asked.

"Because that's its name," was his reply. "Now, take your driver"——

"Does every hole have a name?" I asked.



I remember that my friend started towards me with his driver in his hand.

"Of course," he replied. "Now this is your driver"——

"What are some of the other names?" I asked.

"Why?" was his request, with the beginning of a faint snarl playing about his eyebrows.

"Well, I might want to play some other hole first," I replied. "Maybe I'd like some other name better"——

"It is customary," he said, rather icily for such a warm day, "to begin with number one."

"Oh, all right," I agreed. "Now what?" And I took the driver from my caddie.

"You keep your eye on the ball," he began.

"Any particular ball?" I interrupted.

"Your own," was his reply. "You keep your eye on the ball—your left arm stiff—hug your body with the right—break the wrist at the top—shift the weight gradually to the left foot"——

"That doesn't seem to leave much time for reading," I objected, "or writing letters home."

He made no reply other than a slight biting of his lips and a somewhat tighter clutching of his own club.

"Perhaps you had better go first," I suggested, "and show me just how it is done."

Without another word he stepped up, addressed the ball and swung. The ball hopped along the top of the tee and came to rest in some very tall grass about 25 yards ahead.

"This can't be a very long hole," I suggested politely. He gave me another of those quick looks. I smiled and stepped forward.

"NOW let me see," I mused. "I keep my eye on the ball—hug my left arm—shift my weight to my right tonsil—and"——

"Oh, for heck's sake," he hissed. "Will you drive?"

"Oh, all right," I said and swung. And by a curious coincidence the ball went steaming ahead about 175 yards.

"Well, well," I remarked comfortingly, "that was probably just luck."

"Oh, no," said my friend. "Oh, not at all."

I watched him as he took four strokes to get out of the tall grass. I watched his ball eventually come to rest behind a tree on the opposite side of the course. I watched him take five more strokes—and then I took my second shot.

Once more the ball miraculously sailed forward and landed on the edge of the green.

"That's two for me," I announced.

"Oh, is it?" said my friend.

I took, of course, four putts—he won the hole.

"Now where?" I asked.

In silence we walked over to the second tee.

"What's the name of this one?" I asked, cheerfully. My friend made no reply, so I looked it up on the score card.

"Lover's Leap," I read—and drove. It wasn't as good a drive as the first—but it wasn't bad. About [illegible] yards, I should say, if anybody asked me. Nobody asked me, but I said it anyway. And I said it, unfortunately, just as my friend was addressing his ball.

"Would you mind shutting up?" he demanded, looking up.

"Of course not," I replied, with another of my winning smiles. And then he drove.

It was a very strange drive. It started forward—and then hooked quickly to the left. And then it plopped suddenly into a small lake.

I'm afraid I laughed—and that laugh is the last thing I remember except that I do remember my friend starting towards me with his driver in his hand. At any rate, I came to in the clubhouse and my friend was bending over me and there were apologies and a drink or two and I decided then and there that perhaps golf was not my game, either.

So this May I think I'll take a shot at fishing. I don't see how that can do me any harm—or the fish either, for that matter.

Creamed magnesia corrects oily skin in the same easy way that milk of magnesia purifies the stomach

Oily Skin is Horrid

Doctors say oily skin is a sign of seborrhea, which, when neglected, covers the face with enlarged pores like the skin of a lemon

The newest discovery in beauty culture is that creamed magnesia corrects oily skin instantly, in the same way that milk of magnesia purifies the stomach. This is because oily skin is acid. Doctors treat acid inside the body with milk of magnesia. And now, dermatologists are getting amazing results in banishing complexion faults with creamed magnesia. All you do is anoint your skin with it, massage and rinse with water. It's as simple as washing your face. It reduces enlarged pores to the finest, smoothest texture almost as if by magic. Being astringent, it drives away the tell-tale signs of age. You will marvel at the effect of your first five-minute facial massage. It rejuvenates the skin so quickly that any woman can look lovely tonight, years younger. It's marvelous how magnesia dissolves blackheads, clears eruptions and corrects oily skin.

And because it is so mild, mothers use it instead of soap to bathe infants. It certainly is a blessing as a face wash for fine, sensitive skins that soap so easily irritates and coarsens. Being greaseless, it cannot fatten the face or grow hair. It removes make-up and extracts impurities deep-set in the pores better than soap or cold cream. It changes dull, sallow off-color skin to true-color clearness and fades out freckles better than a bushel of lemons. Test it on those clogged nose pores that stand out so boldly. Let it whiten your neck. It will also keep your hands soft and white. Until recently, creamed magnesia was used only by New York doctors' wives, and nurses. But now the large druggists everywhere find it hard to keep enough on hand to supply the demand. To get genuine creamed magnesia, ask for Denton's Facial Magnesia. Remember, five minutes works wonders. So, get your magnesia today and look lovely tonight. It costs almost nothing to try. It's Guaranteed!

No More Ugly Nose Pores

CAUTION—Modern skin-specialists say never use soap on your face if your skin is oily. All soaps contain caustic which paralyzes the little oil glands of the skin, keeping them constantly opened. That's why oily skin always gets even more greasy looking after the use of soap.

Eugène SACHET
WITH PERFORATED STEAM-TAB
PAT. NO. 1,449,874 MARCH 27, 1923

THE Eugene Sachet has revolutionized the art and science of permanent waving—made it gentle, natural and safe for your hair... From its perforated steam tab, tiny jets of steam spray forth, and beautifully wave your hair.

¶ The placement and area of these tiny perforations are under control; so much so that, in rewaving, the Eugène operator can treat the newly grown hair, while protecting the already-waved hair remaining from your previous permanent wave.

¶ No other device used by permanent wavers possesses this exclusive Eugène feature .... no substitute sachet has the patented perforated steam tab ... essential for complete control and adaptability to your individual head of hair.

¶ Be Sure You Get the Genuine

The shops that feature low prices can scarcely afford to use genuine Eugene Sachets. Other shops, heedless or unaware of recent improvements in permanent waving technique, have not yet adopted them.... Make sure your waver uses them—for your hair's sake.... Look for the Eugene Trade Mark figure stamped boldly on each genuine Sachet.

Send for Free Sample

We will gladly send you a sample Eugène Sachet for your inspection, together with our interesting booklet, "The Eugène Method," and a list of genuine Eugène Permanists in your vicinity. Eugène, Ltd., 565 Fifth Ave., N.Y.C. England, France, Germany, Australia.

Into The Smuggler's Clutches

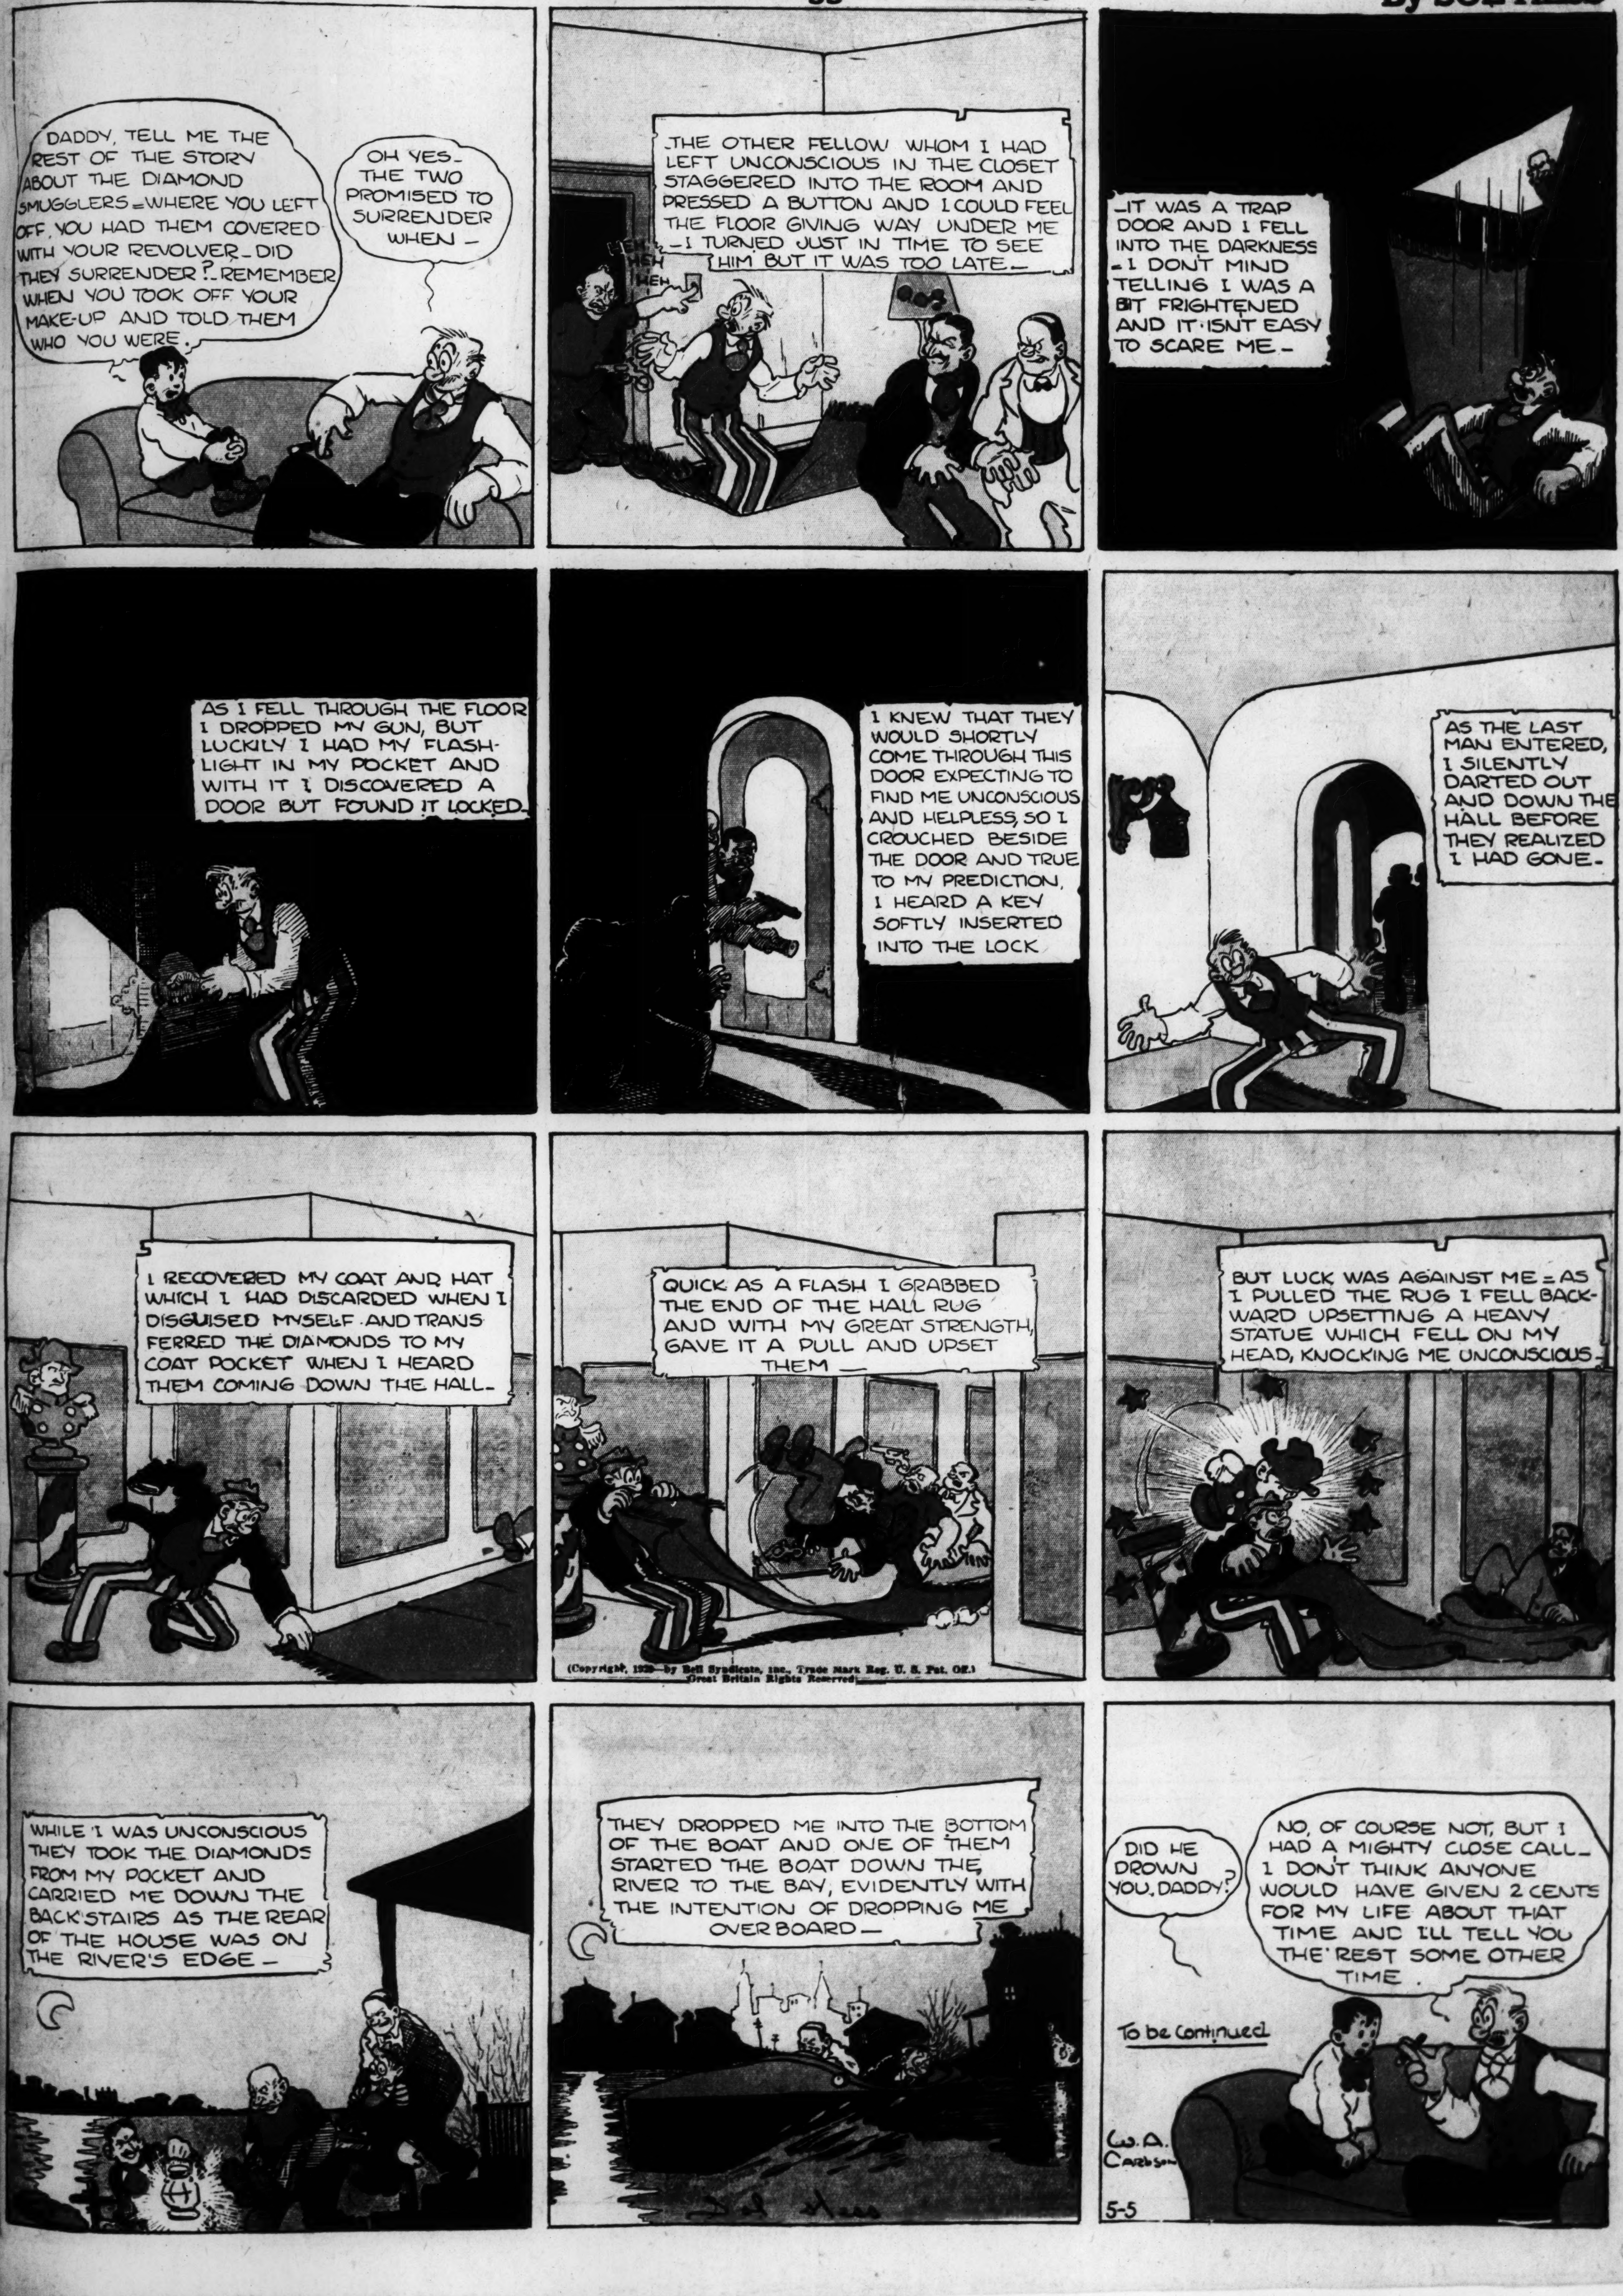
By SOL HESS



DADDY, TELL ME THE REST OF THE STORY ABOUT THE DIAMOND SMUGGLERS = WHERE YOU LEFT OFF. YOU HAD THEM COVERED WITH YOUR REVOLVER - DID THEY SURRENDER? - REMEMBER WHEN YOU TOOK OFF YOUR MAKE-UP AND TOLD THEM WHO YOU WERE
OH YES - THE TWO PROMISED TO SURRENDER WHEN - THE OTHER FELLOW WHOM I HAD LEFT UNCONSCIOUS IN THE CLOSET STAGGERED INTO THE ROOM AND PRESSED A BUTTON AND I COULD FEEL THE FLOOR GIVING WAY UNDER ME - I TURNED JUST IN TIME TO SEE HIM BUT IT WAS TOO LATE -
HEH HEH HEH
- IT WAS A TRAP DOOR AND I FELL INTO THE DARKNESS - I DON'T MIND TELLING I WAS A BIT FRIGHTENED AND IT ISN'T EASY TO SCARE ME -
AS I FELL THROUGH THE FLOOR I DROPPED MY GUN, BUT LUCKILY I HAD MY FLASHLIGHT IN MY POCKET AND WITH IT I DISCOVERED A DOOR BUT FOUND IT LOCKED.
I KNEW THAT THEY WOULD SHORTLY COME THROUGH THIS DOOR EXPECTING TO FIND ME UNCONSCIOUS AND HELPLESS, SO I CROUCHED BESIDE THE DOOR AND TRUE TO MY PREDICTION, I HEARD A KEY SOFTLY INSERTED INTO THE LOCK
AS THE LAST MAN ENTERED, I SILENTLY DARTED OUT AND DOWN THE HALL BEFORE THEY REALIZED I HAD GONE -
I RECOVERED MY COAT AND HAT WHICH I HAD DISCARDED WHEN I DISGUISED MYSELF AND TRANSFERRED THE DIAMONDS TO MY COAT POCKET WHEN I HEARD THEM COMING DOWN THE HALL -
QUICK AS A FLASH I GRABBED THE END OF THE HALL RUG AND WITH MY GREAT STRENGTH, GAVE IT A PULL AND UPSET THEM -
BUT LUCK WAS AGAINST ME = AS I PULLED THE RUG I FELL BACKWARD UPSETTING A HEAVY STATUE WHICH FELL ON MY HEAD, KNOCKING ME UNCONSCIOUS -
WHILE I WAS UNCONSCIOUS THEY TOOK THE DIAMONDS FROM MY POCKET AND CARRIED ME DOWN THE BACK STAIRS AS THE REAR OF THE HOUSE WAS ON THE RIVER'S EDGE -
THEY DROPPED ME INTO THE BOTTOM OF THE BOAT AND ONE OF THEM STARTED THE BOAT DOWN THE RIVER TO THE BAY, EVIDENTLY WITH THE INTENTION OF DROPPING ME OVERBOARD - DID HE DROWN YOU, DADDY?
NO, OF COURSE NOT, BUT I HAD A MIGHTY CLOSE CALL - I DON'T THINK ANYONE WOULD HAVE GIVEN 2 CENTS FOR MY LIFE ABOUT THAT TIME AND I'LL TELL YOU THE REST SOME OTHER TIME.

I DON'T SLEEP WELL ANY MORE, AND WHEN I DO GET TO SLEEP I HAVE THE AWFULEST NIGHTMARES! WHAT CAN I DO ABOUT IT?
I ALWAYS READ MYSELF TO SLEEP—WHY NOT TRY THAT? HERE'S A NEW THRILLER—'THE GHOST OF THE MARSHES.'
That night
'—AS ALICE TOSSED FITFULLY, THE SOUND OF CLANKING CHAINS DISTURBED HER SLUMBER. THE FLOOR CREAKED, A WINDOW RATTLED—'
THIS IS GREAT FOR NIGHTMARES! LISTEN: 'A GUST OF DAMP AIR EXTINGUISHED THE LIGHTS SUDDENLY A WEIRD PRESENCE MADE ITSELF FELT—THE GHOST OF THE MARSHES!'
CLANK
BONG
Came the Dawn
I KNEW THAT BOOK WOULD GIVE ME ANOTHER NIGHT-MARE! I DREAMED THE GHOST OF THE MARSHES CAME IN AND I SOCKED HIM! HOW SILLY!
OGEEGOSH! MR. GLUMP—YOU'RE IN THE WRONG APARTMENT! AND WHAT ARE THE CHAINS FOR?
I CHAINED MYSELF TO MY BED TO STOP SLEEP-WALKING! BUT IT DIDN'T WORK—THAT'S WHAT I GET FOR READING 'THE GHOST OF THE MARSHES!'
LET'S FIND THE AUTHOR AND CHAIN HIM UP!
